A French book, written upon Parchment by a French hand; and in the ſecond page of the firſt ſpare Leaf bearing this more modern Title,

Hors la Librairie de Monſieur le Comte de Maine, comme il appert folio ultimo verſo de ſa main propre.

Concerning this Book, I take leave farther to obſerve,

That this Hiſtory is written, for the moſt part in French Verſe,; beginning at the 25th of April 1399. when the Author was deſired by a Man of Quality to accompany him into England; and ending upon the delivering up of the young Queen of England, Widow of K. Richard II. to the Commiſſioners of her Father the French King.

That the Note at the end of the Book abovementoned, is this, "Ce Livre de la Prinſe du Roy Richart d'Angleterre, eſt a Monſeigneur Charles-Damon, Conte du Maine, et de Mortaing, et Governeur de Languedoc. Charles.

That John Stow hath taken very much from this Author, even verbatim in a manner, without making any mention of him: and that Raphael Holingſhead hath alſo borrowed ſome light of him, for which he citeth a French Pamphlet, or Poem, in the Poſſeſſion of Doctor John Dee; which perhaps, may be this very Book.

That the Hiſtory is illuſtrated with ſixteen Pictures; wherein the perſons, and eſpecially the habits of that age or time, are well repreſented: which might have been of good uſe to Seignr. Antonio Verrio in his repreſenting the triumphant Entry of Edward the Black Prince (in St. Georges Hall at Windſor Caſtle) & have prevented his arming & dreſſing our Engliſh People à la Romaine; which was little leſs abſurd than his repreſenting, in the ſame Picture (wherein I will now find no more faults) the ſaid Prince carried on the ſhoulders of naked men, when as Hiſtory ſaith, (vid. Froiart, Cap. 173.) "The French Kynge rode throughe Londone on a whyte Courſer well apparelled, & the Prince on a lytell black Hobbey by him.

'Therefore some learned Men were appointed to compare all that had been written on it; & out of all the 'Transcripts of the MSS. of Fathers & Councills, to 'gather together whatsoever did strenghten it. Severall 'of these MSS. I have seen. One is in Mr. (Richard) 'Smith's Library, where are the Quotations of the 'Fathers, Councills, Schoolmen, & Canonists written 'out at length:' which I take to be this very Book; and take leave to add farther concerning it, that by the adorning the Cover, with the Rose & Crown, with Fleurs de Lis thereon (not to mention the plainess of the Hand-writing) it should seem to have been done for the King himself. My Lord goes on and says, 'There are three other 'such MSS. in the Cotton Library; of which, One '(OTHO. C. 10) contains a large Vindication of these 'Authorities from some Exceptions made to them. 'Another (ibidem) is an Answer to the Bishop of Rochester's Book for the Queen's Cause. A third (VESPAS. 'B. 5.) digests the matter into twelve Articles,—and 'these are there enlarged on, and proved. But all these, & 'many more were summed up in a short Book & printed 'first in Laine, then in English, with the Determinations of the Universities before it.'

Whether his Lordship, by these printed Books meaneth, that entituled, "Italiæ ac Galliæ Academiarum Censuræ de ducendo Relictam Fratris mortui, London, 1530." and another printed at London 1552. and whether the present MS. be contained in them, or either of them; or only an Abstract of it, (not having those Books ready) I cannot now enquire.

It may be also noted, that although the Determinations or Censures abovementioned are but eight in Number; yet the Prologue to the Treatise immediately following them, mentioneth TEN: for it beginneth thus, "Habes hic, candide Lector, Censuras et Decreta, que DECEM Illustrissime ac omnium quas habet Ecclesia Christiana maxime celebres Academie"——Two therefore are wanting, which, whether they might be those of Oxford & Cambridge, or of other Foreign Universities, I cannot now tell.

An Heraldical Book in 4to, written by different hands; wherein are contained,

1. The Names of the Marshalls of England since the Conquest, to Anno 1577. 1.
2. Arms, given by Christopher Barker als Garter, Knight, (with some other auntient Armes) who died the 2d day of Januarie being Thursday, &c. A.D. 155-. copied out of an old Booke tomtyme William Colbornes York-Herald; and of late tyme Rafe Brookes York-Herald, now in the custodie of Sir Edward Deringe, Knight & Barronet. 2.

These Arms are described in French Blazon; and room is left all along for expressing the same in trick.

3. Notes relating to the Families of Howard, Scales, & Bardolf, taken in the Churche of Garboldesham in Com. Norf. A.D. 1607. 65.
4. Notes touching divers Earls Marshals of England, extracted from the public Records. 67.
5. Arms of Malyart, both tricked, & in French Blazon. 68.

Turning to the other end of the Book, I find,

6. Some Geometrical Rudiments, for Learners. 1.
7. A Tract to which this Title is prefixed, "This Monument briefly conteyneth sundry auntient Remembrances of Armes, Genealogies, and other Notes of Gentilitie belonginge to the worshipful Names and Familes of Pigot or Picot; that came out of Normandie with Duke William, at the Conquest of England; and hath flourished in diverse Provinces of this Kingdome even to our age; being in contract of Tyme dispersed into multiplicitie of Houses, advanced by younger Brethren through Militarie Service, Civil Desert, or Preferment of Marriages; as both by the varitie of their differenced Markes, as also the succeeding Pedegree appeereth. Collected from the Records of the Tower, with other Registers and Evidences: lastly confirmed by the Heralds Bookes of Visitation; and some of our Common Histories or Chronicle of this Realme." 3.

The History of Pigot seemeth to have been drawn up, temp. Elizab. Reginæ, and perhaps in Latin: this Tract seemeth to be only an Extract from it; and the Arms & Pictures therein are done in hast.

8. Thinne als Botvill, his Crest. 20. b.

This Crest is a Rain-Deer, the Horns whereof are here pretty truly tricked. It may be noted, that the Horns of this Beast, are seldom accurately represented either by Painters, or Gravers; an instance of whose carelessnes may be this, The Right Honble. the Lord Viscount Weymouth (still living A.D. 1712.) was Envoy Extraordinary in Sweden, A.D. 1667. where he bought the Horns of some of those Creatures, which were afterwards sett up in the Hall of Long Leat, his Lordship's pricipal Seat: and yet when I was there, all his Lordship's Plate, that I saw, with respect to the Horns in his Lordship's Crest & Supporters, was eroneously engraven.

9. A loose Paper, containing a Note touching the Matches of the Daughters & Coheires of Sr. Robert Itchingham; one of whom was married to Worseley, & after to Sr. Fra. Walsingham, by whom he had a daughter first married to Sr. Philip Sydney, & then to the great Earl of Essex. Another was married to Wroughton, whose daughter was wife to Sir John Thynne of Long-Leat, whose son Mr. Charles Thynne wrote this Paper: inserted at fol. 20.
10. Of the Descendants from John Bothvile of Stratton de Com. Salop. surnamed otherwise John le Thynne, 21 E. 4. related, by marriage, to Pigot; with the Arms of Botvile, Thynne, &c. 21.

Perhaps this may yet be a part of the precedent Account of the Family of Pigot.

As to the Note about Thynne; authority seems to be quoted in these words, "The first part of this Note is found in the Evidence of Stratton in Stratton-dale aforesaid." Perhaps such Evidence may be in my Lord Weymouth's Evidence-Room at Long-Leat: now I remember that when I was there, near 3 years ago, I saw in a fragment of some Rental, mention of Roger de le Inne,

Num. 1364, 1365.

Inne, as holding a Tenement (I think called the Hethe) in Stretton, in Com. Salop. ann. 17 R. Hen. VII. which Tenement was then ſaid to have been ever ſince that time in my Lord's Family: and I believe his Lordſhip is alſo Lord of that Mannor.

11. Some other Notes relating to Pigot: perhaps belonging to the Tract abovementioned. 21. b.

12. A laboured Pedegree of Pigot, with Arms; which ſeems alſo to belong to the ſame Tract. 22.

A Book in 4to, which by another now in the poſſeſſion of William Shires Painter-Stainer of Southwark; as alſo by the Book N° 1465. ſeemeth to have been written by Thomas Chaloner Arms-Painter in Cheſter. It containeth,

Although the Surnames of ſome Families be erroneouſly written in this Book; I nevertheleſs take it to be of good uſe. This Thomas Chaloner was a diligent & an able man; was Deputie there to Norroy, & was alſo Ulſter King of Arms in Ireland. There is much of him among Holme's books in this Library.

1. A Table shewing the method observed.

2. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families, whose Arms & Crests are herein exhibited.

3. An Ordinary of Crests well tricked from some other Book by John Withie, as it seems: with some Additions of his own: all done in printed Escocheons. By the Colors of the Ink, it looks as if he tricked the Arms & Crests first, & afterwards putt the Names & Colors to them.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written by divers hands; wherein are contained,

1. Alphabetical Tables of the Surnames of Families mentioned in many other Books; some or all of which may perhaps be now extant in this Library. 1.

Collected & extracted out of Letters Patents, Writts of Summons, History, and other authenticke Evidences; and composed by John Tilston Gent. Anno 1670. 87.

I take this to be no more than a private Extract made by Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer, from Tilston's Book; to which he put some few Notes of his own.

3. The auncient & right worshipful Descent of Sir Harbottle Grimston of Bradfeild in the County of Essex Kt. & Baronet; continued in a lineall Stemm from the worshipful Sylvester Grimston of Grimston in the County of York, Esq. who did homage to William the Conqueror, &c. 92. b.

This, perhaps, may have been drawn up by the same Tilston; and copied by Mr. John Saunders.

2. A Table to find every Name, (i. e. Surname) and its Armes in his Page.

3. Some Entrances of the Arms of deceaſed Perſons, about whoſe Funeralls Mr. John Spicer was employed as Painter: which Arms, as I ſuppoſe, were tricked by him.

NB. This Mr. John Spicer, bought Mr. John Saunders's Books after his death; as Mr. Saunders likewiſe bought Mr. Withie's; who bought thoſe of the Collection of Mr. Edmund Barwick the Painter Stainer. Mr. Spicer's books were bought of Mr. Foreſight an Apothecary, who was his Executor. But although all that were in Mr. Foreſight's hands are now in this Library; there are wanting divers excellent Books which Mr. Spicer was known to be maſter of; which ſeems to be occaſioned by his lending them to divers; & alſo leaving them behind him in his different Countrey Lodgings, which he took, time after time, for the ſake of the Air.

A Book in fol. begun by John Withie; whoſe deſign ſeems to have been to trick haſtily & privately herein, the Arms of the Gentry of England, from the laſt Viſitation-books. I believe that this Copie was made in ſome haſt; not only becauſe of the variety of hands, but by reaſon of the great want of Tranſcripts of old Deeds, Tricks of pnblic & private Seals, with Church Notes, wherewith the Copie done by Mr. Withie (who rode Painter at this Viſitation) aboundeth. Num. 1414, 1415.

1414.

An Heraldical Book in large fol. at the beginning thus entituled,

"The greate Alphabet of Armes, in Trick."

Note, many of the Arms, eſpecially at the beginning, have been coloured upon the tricking.

An Heraldical Book in fol. for the moſt part written & tricked by one hand; it containeth,

1. The Booke of Entrances made in the tyme of the Viſitation of Yorkeſhier; begone A. D. 1584. and continued A.D. 1585. by Robert Glover alias Somerſet Herald at Armes, Mareſhall & Deputie to William Flowre Eſq; alias Norroy Kinge of Armes, & principal Herald of the Eaſt, Weſt, & North Partes of the Realme of England, from the River of Trent Northward.

In this Copie, beſides many Tricks of private Seals, Extracts from Deeds; & ſome Church Notes; I find,

2. Part of the Record of Domeſdei, relating to Yorkſhire. 2.

3. Nomina Villarum et Terrarum infra Richemondſchire quæ quondam, ante Conqueſtum Angliæ fuerunt Edwini Comitis; et quas Willelmus Rex, Angliæ Conqueſtor, dedit nepoti ſuo Alano Comiti Britanniæ, in tempore Obſidionis Villæ Eboraci, circa annum 10 regni ſui, diu ante conſtructionem Caſtri de Richemond, ſicut continetur in quodam Libro in Theſauraria Dñæ Reginæ vocato Domeſday, Deſcriptionem totius Angliæ continente. 2. b.

4. Certificationes factæ de Feodis Militum tempore Regis Henrici II. pretextu mandati Regis ejuſdem; ſicut habentur in Libro Rubeo, in Scaccario Weſtmonaſterij reſervato, pro Eborschire. 4.

NB. The Arms of moſt of theſe Yorkſhire-Lords who held in Capite, are here added.

5. Nomina eorum qui Scutagium ac Auxilium perſolvebant, diverſis temporibus, ab anno ſcil. ſeptimo R. Henrici II. uſq; ad ann. 2 R. Johannis, pro terris ipſorum in Comitatu Eboracenſi. 6. b.

8. Nomina eorum qui tenent 20 Libratas Terræ de Rege in Capite, vel de illis qui ſunt infra ætatem, in Comitatu Ebor. qui ex mandato Regis diſtringebantur per Vicecom. ad transfretandum ad Regem Henricum III. in Vaſconiam, contra Regem Caſtellæ, qui Terram Vaſconiæ hoſtiliter ingreſſurus erat, pugnaturi: anno R.R. Hen. III. 38. et Salutis a Chriſto 1253. ibid.

9. Nomina habentium 40 Libratas Terræ in Comitatu Ebor. A.D. 1299. i. e. ann. 28 R. Edw. I. ibid.

11. Arms & Seal of the Borough of Pontefract. 26 b.

12. Seals of the Towne of Doncaſter. 34.

I will not be poſitive as to the hand who wrote this Viſitation, becauſe it is known that many Officers of Arms wrote very like to one another. But this I will affirm, that comparing one or two of the Deſcents herein, with the Book 81. B. 10. written by Mr. Nicholas Charles, I found thoſe Deſcents to be larger here; and, as I thought, more correct.

13. Arms of Johnſon of the North, by Mr. John Saunders. 46.

Num. 1415.

14. Beginning of an alphabetical Table of Surnames as mentioned in the preceding Deſcents. 47. b.

15. Then followeth, Part of another Copie of the ſame Viſitation-book of Yorkſhire, written (although more haſtily, yet) by the ſame hand, & in ſmaller Leaves. 48.

Herein I find,

16. Two Seals of the City of York. 48. b.
17. Seal of the Metropolitical Church of York. 49.
18 Arms & Seals of the Town of Beverley. ibid.
19. Seal of the Towne of Headon in Holderneſſe. 54. b.
20. Seals of the Towne of Kingſton upon Hull. 80. b.
21. Nomina et Arma illorum Equitum de Comitatu Eboracenſi qui cum Edwardo I. Rege ſtipendia merebant in Scotia, et alibi. Ex Libro Gloveri Somerſett de Viſitatione Com. Ebor. 1584. 1585. 97.

In this laſt Copie of the Yorkſhire Viſitation, there are divers Tricks of private Seals, Extracts from old Inſtruments, & Church Notes.

Then followeth in another hand, as it may ſeem at the firſt ſight; but really is of the ſame Man, 22. The Viſitation of Stafford-ſheire, made by Robert Glover alias Somerſett-Harold, Marſhall to William Flower alias Norreye, Kinge of Armes, Anno Dñi 1583. 105.

In this Copie, I obſerve,

23. Notes ſhewing what is to be performed at a Herolds goinge in Viſitation. ibid.
24. The Tenor of Robert Glover's Proclamation for diſclaiming of divers perſons inhabiting within the Hundred of Pirehill. dat. . . . Auguſt 1583. ibid.
25. Mr. Glover Somerſett's Charge to the Bayliffe of the Hundred of Cudleſtone, to ſummon the Gentry to appeare before him at Stafford, in order to the enregiſtring their ſeveral Arms & Deſcents, dat. . . July, 1583. 105. b.
26. Mr. Glover Somerſett's Charge to . . . . . to appear before George Talbot Earl of Shrewſbury, Earle Marſhall of England, & anſwer to the Contempt of his refuſing to appear at the Viſitation. dat. 20 Auguſt, A.D 1583. 105. b.
27. The Names of thoſe that in the tyme of this Viſitation of Staffordſhire, have made no proofe of theire Gentrie, bearinge no Armes, and yet before tyme had called & written themſelves Gentlemen; and were therefore diſclaimed in the cheife place of the Hundreds where they dwell. A.D. 1583. ibid.

The laſt of theſe is induſtriouſly blotted out, the Poſterity or Relations of him, being perhaps grown aſhamed of that diſclaiming. However, in the book 61. C. 26. at 34. b. the Name remaineth plain enough, being John Coleman of Canke.

28. Nomina Militum, ut videtur, de Comitatu Stafford. tempore Rich. II. vel Hen. IV. 106.
29. The Seale of the Towne of Lichefeld. ibid.
30. The Sealle of the Towne of Stafford. ibid.
31. The Sealle of the Burgh of New-caſtell under Lyme. ibid.

Here are alſo the Tricks of very many private Seals of Families, & Extracts from ſome old Deeds. If the whole book was written by one man, I ſhould be inclined rather to think it might be done by Sr. William Dethick, who uſed to write the three ſeveral hands herein uſed; than by any other.

32. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of thoſe Families whoſe Deſcents are inſerted into this Viſitation of Staffordſhire: in a modern, & no very ſtaunch hand. 136. b.

Num. 1416, 1417.

An Heraldical Book in large fol. dedicated unto Queen Elizabeth, and (as it ſeemeth to me) deſigned to be preſented to her. It is entituled,

The Progenie of the Monarchs of the Engliſhmen, conteyning the Titles & Reignes of them; the Coronations & Parentage of them & their wyves; the Names, Armes, Nativities, Mariages, Deceaſſes, Burialles, & Iſſue of them, theire wyves, & theire children. 1595.

This work is divided into two Books, the firſt beginning with Noah, & ſo proceding through the Saxon Line to K. Harold. The ſecond begins with K. William the Conqueror, & endeth with the Children of K. Edward III.

The whole is embelliſhed with Armes, & written in a large hand. The Deſign was ſuch, as if the Compiler had confined himſelf to ſuch things only for which ſufficient Authority was found; he would have ſaved much pains, & thereby had time to finiſh with the Queen then reigning.

An Heraldical Book in fol. whoſe beſt part was tricked and written by Mr. John Gough the Paynter-Stayner, being not only his Maſter-piece as to the fineneſs, beauty, & regularity of the Tricking, but the beſt in that kind that I have ſeen either here or elſewhere: and hath alſo been eſteemed as the beſt Book of Tricking by divers both Heralds & Painters, who had formerly ſeen the Book, and ſuppoſed it to be loſt or torn to pieces. This great beauty and fineneſs of the Tricking, which ought to have induced its ſucceſſive owners to have preſerved it with the more Care, is that which hath been chiefly the occaſion of its Ruin. For being thought to be the beſt WORK-BOOK of its kind; it all along lay in the Shop or Work-Room, being the Pattern from whence every young Apprentice learned to draw: unto whom, and to the Maſter's children, it was a perpetual Slave & Diverſion. From hence it hath happened that what by their ſlabber & driveling, what with their naſtineſs, ſcribeling, blotting, tearing, & mangling; it is but as a Skeleton to what it was; or as an heap of Ruins, which by the Remains of Capitals, Columns, Arches, Architraves, &c. might ſhew the judicious beholder, that in former days the Building had been very regular & magnificent.

It was deſigned to be a ſort of Regiſter of ſuch Armes, as had been granted by the ſeveral Kings; expreſſing ſome entirely which might be thought more remarkable than others. But letting all that paſs; this Book now containeth,

1. Atteſtation des Armes de la Maiſon de Micault, par Pierre d'Hozier, Sieur de la Garde, Gentilhomme Ordinaire de la Maiſon du Roy, Chevallier de ſon Ordre de St. Michiel, et un des Herautz d'Armes de ſa Majeſté du Tiltre de Toloze. Fait, le 18 jour du Mois de Juin, 1634. 1.

The Arms & Seal with the Creſt were finely tricked: but having taken Wet (and perhaps the Ink not being well gummed, that it might flow the more eaſily from the Pen) they are now not very viſible. And this is the caſe (more, or leſs) of the Tricks belonging to the ſeven Grants next enſuing.

2. Grant of Armes, without a Creſt, unto William Swayne; by William Wrexworth Guyan King of Armes. dat. 29 Jan. 39 Henr. VI. 1. b.
3. Grant of Armes, unto William Crokey aliàs Johnſon; by Criſtofer Carlyle Norrey, rincepall Herauld & King of Armes. dat. 3 June, A.D. 1496. 2.

2. Confirmatio

Num. 1422.

4. Confirmatio Armorum ac Criſtæ, Thomæ Mountford S.T.D. per Gulielmum Camdenum Clarenceux, Regem Armorum, dat. 18 Febr. A.D. 1602. 2. b.

5. Alteration of the Coat (in reſpect of its confuſion in Blazon) which was granted unto Henry Randes of Holbech, made Bp. of Rocheſter, & afterwards of Lincoln; under the name of Henry Holbech, which name he had from the place of his birth, according to the cuſtom of that Age amongſt men of Eccleſiaſtical Profeſſion: made by William Camden Clarenceux, to Thomas Randes a Juſtice of the Peace in Lincolnſhire, ſon & heire to the Biſhop. dat. 10 July, 1599. 3.

6. Atteſtation of the Pedegree, Armes, & Creſts, of John Thomſon Eſq; 31 March, 1574. 3. b.

7. Certificate of Robert Cooke Clarenceux; that he had regiſtred the Armes & Creſt granted to Sir Francis Drake. dat. 20 June, A.D. 1581. 4.

In my poor Opinion, the Creſt would have been more adroit, & agreeable to the Uſage of Antiquity, if the Hand had been a right Hand, & the Arm, naked, or at leaſt clothed in more antique ſort; for ſo the Antients uſed to expreſs God, & his Power, & Providence: as I have ſeen in very many old MS. in Oxford, Cambridge, & in this City.

8. Confirmation of 25 ſeveral Coats, with the Creſts, unto Thomas Penyſton of Hawruge in the County of Bucks. by Robert Cooke, Clarenceux. dat. 8 Febr. A.D. 1573. 4. b.

9. Confirmation of Arms, to Dorothy Bewprey the wife of Robert Bell of Bewprey-Hall in the County of Norfolke; by Robert Cooke Clarencieulx. dat. 17 June, A.D. 1571. 7. b.

10. Grant of Arms & Creſt to William Carpenter of Cobham in Com. Surrey, by Sir Edward Byſshe Clarenceux. dat. 4 March, A.D. 1563. 8.

Theſe two laſt, are written by another Hand; and want the Tricks of the Arms.

Then followeth the Collection of Arms granted, being tricked in Eſcocheons before made for the purpoſe, twelve in each Page: beginning at pag. 51. where, it is to be noted, that Mr. Gough did not putt all the Arms in his beſt manner of tricking; but only ſuch as he thought fit. They are,

11. Arms, or Creſts, granted or confirmed, by Robert Cooke Clarenceux; Thomas Holme Clarenceux; William Harvey Clarenceux; Laurence Dalton, Norroy; John Borough, Norroy; William Camden Clarenceux; Richard St. George Clarenceux. 51.

12. Ten Coats granted to perſons of the name of Moore, or More; whereof Five of them are to the ſame man, one John Moore Dr. in Phyſic, whoſe firſt Arms having, as he might fancy, no reputable Relation to his name, nor to any worthy Deed of his Anceſtors or himſelf (unleſs they ſhould hint as if they had been Birdcatchers) by four ſucceſſive alterations, he comes at laſt to bear S. a plain Croſs Argent, as being, forſooth, an old Chriſtian; with a Moor's head adorned with a Chapeau, & Jewells, for his Creſt, as if deſigned to be underſtood of ſome Saracen, or Moor-Commander, whom his Anceſtor fighting valiantly in defence of Chriſtianity, had killed or taken in ſingle Combat. But whatever fancy the Doctor might get into his head, about his Family & Arms, of which, the laſt are aſcribed to one Sr. William De la More, whoſe Family might be extinct long ſince; the Heralds, we ſee, took not only his Money, but Care to preſerve his Name & all the alterations he had procured from time to time. 53.

13. Arms, & Creſts, granted & confirmed to many, by Sr. Richard St. George, Sir William Segar; William Camden. Robert Cooke; Sir William Dethick; Thomas Hawley Clarenceux; Robert Glover Somerſet,

I fuppofe moft of thofe Pedegrees are entred into this Book, & make the firft Treatife, to fol. 197. As to the Books of George Carew Earl of Totnefs, among which were a moft noble parcel of Manufcripts relating to the Affairs of Ireland, they were fold, and the MSS. bought, as I believe, by Archbifhop Laud. Some few of them he gave to the Bodleyan Library at Oxford, where they have been often conſulted by the Irifh Nobility & Gentry. The reft (which they knew not where to find) I have feen in the Metropolitical MS. Library at Lambeth.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers hands; of which, notwithſtanding the Title on the outſide, I ſhall give the following account. For it containeth,

1. An Alphabetical Table to the enſuing Viſitation-book of Hertfordſhire, as it is called. 1.

2. The Viſitation of the Countie of Hertford, made by . . . . . in Anno . . . . 7.

This Title, I am afraid, is a Painter's Title: for Painters when they ſee a Book of Pedegrees relating to one County alone, uſually call them Viſitations, without further examination. As for this, I find three Dates therein, viz. ann. 5 Car. 1. A. D. 1631. and ann. 11 Car. 1. and yet the laſt is no Addition to the Viſitation-book of A.D. 1534. with neither of which, nor that of 1572, it doth agree. I ſhall therefore look upon it only as a Collection of the Arms & Deſcents of the Gentry of that County, which Deſcents are all putt down by way of Narration. In this Tract, I alſo find,

3. A Catalogue of the Names of the Gentry yet remaininge in this Countie, or that lately were; according as their Anceſtors firſt ſeated themſelves therein. 7.

4. Arms of ſome of the Gentry, in Blazon. 14.

5. Arms of Gravell, taken from a Window in the Pariſh-Church of Gravell. 21.

This Title is to be underſtood only of the Arms of the Northumbrian Gentry, herein put down from the Viſitation book above-mentioned. 45.

7. The Viſitation-book of the County of Surrey, as the ſame was made & taken A. D. 1623. by Samuel Thompſon Windſor-Herald, & Auguſtine Vincent Rouge-Croix, for William Camden Clarenceux. 1.

I will not call this Tract a Copie, or an Original: for turning it over this morning June 13, 1712. I found divers hands therein, which ſeemed to be Originals; as well as many others which at firſt ſight appeared plain Copies. In order therefore to come at ſome certainty, I took Boat immediately for the Heralds Office, where I found two notable Books of this Viſitation, both written by Auguſtine Vincent, one of which was in moſt places ſubſcribed by the hands of the Gentlemen who gave the Information. Comparing this Book with them, I found, that of the Deſcents in this Book which ſeemed to be ſubſcribed & atteſted by the original hands of thoſe Gentlemen who gave the Information, Three (fol. 66. b. 84.) were entred into their original Book, either with the ſame original hands, or at leaſt an Imitation of them from this Book.

That as to the reſt (viz. at fol. 67. b. 73. 75. 75. b. 76. b. 78. b. 82. 89. 91. 96. 97. 97. b. 98. b. 101. 101. b. 102. 102. b. 104.) either the Subſcriptions were wanting in thoſe Books, or in the original Book; or with the Subſcriptions the Arms were alſo wanting, which are extant in this Book; or elſe (which was the caſe that happened oftenеſt) there were neither Deſcent, Arms, nor Subſcription. Which therefore made it plaine to me, that when Auguſtine Vincent made thoſe two Books, one for the Office, & the other for himſelf, even ſo early, ſome of the original Papers were miſlaid; & never after came into the Office.

As to the different hands which wrote this Viſitation, I will not now determine who wrote all the Deſcents, & all the Continuations: but this I may affirm, that the Deſcent of Carique at fol. 49. is certainly of the hand-writing of Auguſtine Vincent, who alſo ſeemeth to me to have tricked moſt of the Armes here, eſpecially at two places after-named. And I believe that more of his hand may be found herein, as at fol. 150. and perhaps his own Deſcent at fol. 144. b. and in other Places.

Obſervables in this Viſitation-book, beſides the ordinary Pedegrees & Arms, may be,

8. Notes taken in the Church of Carſhalton. 2. b.

9. Notes taken in the Pariſh Church of Riegate. 19. b.

10. Armes & Seals uſed by the Borough of Guldeford. Tricked by Auguſtine Vincent. 74.

16. Arms of five Gentlemen of the County of Surrey. 187. b.

An Heraldical Book in fol. all written & tricked by the Hand of Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer, who at the beginning thereof, hath left written, the following Title,

1. HEREFORD-SHIRE, 1619.

From this Title the book hath been look'd upon by many, as a Copie of the Visitation-book of that County, taken the same Year. But to speak my opinion, I much doubt it; not only because of the variety of the Dates found at the bottom of many of the Descents; but because I could never certainly learn that there was any Heraldical Visitation of that County made in, or near the year 16.9.

Besides the Descents & Arms of the Hereford-shire Nobility and Gentry;

I find therein,

2. An alphabetical Table to the same; at the beginning.

3. Arms of St. Ethelbert of Hereford. 1. b.

4. Arms of St. Owen of Herefordshire. ibid.

5. The Arms of the See of Hereford; i. e. those of St. Thomas de Cantelupo. ibid.

An Heraldical Book in fol. at the beginning thus entituled by Mr. John Withie,

1. The Visitation of Westmerland per Rich. St. George Norroy.

Sir Richard St. George made this Visitation A.D. 1615. But this Book is somewhat better; for here are many Continuations of Descents, and also additional Pedegrees; even from a later Visitation of this County, made A.D. 1638. as it is believed.

2. It may be noted, that the Pedegrees in this Book, are mostly of the hand-writing of . . . . . but those Arms which are found herein, were tricked by Mr. John Withie.

3. The same John Withie's alphabetical Table to the Pedegrees; at the end.

Num. 1436, 1437.

William Harvey Clarenceux; they following one another in alphabetical Order; which prevented a Table at the end. 1.

To these Descents there are many Additions.

3. Pedegrees & Descents of the Gentry of the same County; copied by John Saunders from the Visitation-book thereof made A.D. 1502. by Richard Lee Richmond-Herald, for Robert Cooke Clarenceux; with many more modern additions, inserted paginatim, among the Pedigrees of A.D. 1562.

4. Among these abovementioned Descents, are some Proofs from Evidences; as also, the laboured Pedegree of John Thamworth Esq.

5. Laboured Pedegree of Dighton. 114. b.

6. The Coates of the several Families who have been Earls of Lincoln, of such Noblemen who had Estates in Lincolnshire, and of the Lincolnshire-Gentry, as they were sett forth in the Lord Burghleys Gallery at Tibalt (l. Theobalds) by Robert Cooke Clarenceux, for Lincolnshire. 121.

In this Copie some of the Arms are omitted.

8. De Exitu Gilberti Nevill Domini de Grimesthorpe. 124. b.

9. Grant of a Crest to Richard Johnson of Gainsborough, by William Flower Norroy. dat. 7 May, 1579. 125.

10. Attestation of a Grant of Armes to Thomas Revell Sheriffe of the Towne of Galloway in Ireland; in presence of the Mayor of the Place & a Public Notary, 2 March 1673-4. ibid.

A Book in fol, wherein are contained,

1. Many, if not most of the loose Papers wherein the Descents of the Lancashire Gentry were taken & registred at the Visitation of that County A.D. 1613. by Richard St. George Norroy, and Henry St. George Blewmantle, his Son, in his company. Which Gentry subscribing the same, this Book (so far as it goes) is therefore the ORIGINAL BOOK of this Visitation.

Observables touching this Book, may be

3. The same John Withie hath added the Arms; & some Continuations to divers Descents.

4. Here are divers Copies & Extracts of private Deeds, & Tricks of Seals; made by the Visitors.

5. Some of these Descents are not subscribed by the Persons who gave in the Information; and some want the Word ENTRED or ENT, which Sir Henry St. George, when he made the Office-Book generally putt upon them: It would therefore be worth the while to consult some other books of this Visitation, & see whether they have been entred into them, or remaine peculiar to this.

6. An original Letter of William Haydoke to Richard Norrey Kinge of Armes (i. e. Mr. Richard St. George here called Norroy only, according to the antient usage) written 11 September, during the time of this Visitation. 113.

7. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of those Families, whose Descents are registred herein.

8. At the end, is fastened in, a loose Paper, printed, with this Title, " A true purtraiture of sundrie Coynes found the 8 of Aprill & other daies following, in the yeare 1611, in a certaine place called the Harkirke within the Lordship of Litle Crosbie in the Parish of Sephton

An Heraldical Book in fol. written by divers hands ; and at the beginning entituled by John Withie HEREFORDSHERE, 1586. concerning which, I ſhall beg leave to make one or two ſhort Obſervations, I finding therein,

1. Arms of many Herefordſhire Gentlemen, haſtily tricked ; being, for the moſt part, granted to them A.D. 1634. At the beginning.

2. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families, whoſe Deſcents are contained in this Book.

3. The Viſitation-book of the County of Hereford, of the year 1586. if any ſuch was made that Year, as I cannot hitherto certainly learn that there was. However it is plain, that divers Deſcents here are brought down lower than in the Viſitation-book of Robert Cooke Clarenceux, made A.D. 1569. and if it may not be reputed a Viſitation-book, it cannot be denied the reputation of being a Collection of Pedegrees of the Gentry of the ſame County, very fairly ſett forth.

4. It appears that John Saunders's Book 82. A. 9. above deſcribed, is a Copie of this ; but withall, that the ſaid Copie hath ſome additions, made afterwards unto it, which are not to be found here.

5. It appeareth alſo, that this book is a tranſcript from that of William Penſon in this Library, inſcribed 66. A. 24. breaking off abruptly in the midſt of Blounts Deſcent, at fol. 104. b. of that Book : which therefore could not be expreſſed intirely, in the book 82 A. 9.

6. In this Book there are ſome additional Pedegrees, & continuations, inſerted therein by John Withie & others ſince it was copied from Mr. Lancaſter Penſon's : and ſome of them ſince it was copied by John Saunders.

7. As to the Hand that wrote it ; although it be ſomewhat like the hand of Mr. Penſon, Mr. Anguſtine Vincent, & John Withie ; yet I am inclined to believe that is is not of any of them ; unleſs it might have been done by Mr. Penſon, when he was reſolved to write better than he commonly did.

An Heraldical Book in fol. all written & tricked by the hand of Mr. John Withie the Paper-Stainer, who hath given it the Title following,

1. The Viſitation of the Countie of Wilts made & taken by Henry St. George Eſq; Richmond-Herald, and Sampſon Lennard Blew-mantle ; Marſhalls & Deputies to William Camden Eſq; aliàs Clarenceux King of Armes of the South, Eaſt, & Weſt Parts of England, from the River Trent, Anno Dom. 1623. Together with the Viſitation of the ſaid Countie, taken Anno Dom.

Num. 1443—1445.

1565. by William Hervy Clarenceux, with additions, & continuations.

Here it muſt be underſtood, that the two Viſitation-books ſaid to be contained in this Volume, are not ſeparate one from the other; but that the Vis. of 1623. is grafted upon, or a Continuation of that made in anno 1565. which is a very uſeful way of writing Pedegrees; although the acquiring of each ſeveral Viſitation-book, of every County, is by no means to be rejected.

2. In this Book, beſides the Deſcents & Armes, are ſome few Tricks of Seals & private Evidences; and

3. The Armes & Supporters of the Citie of New Sar. 1.

4. Seales of the Towne & Borough of Wootton-Baſſet. 2.

3. Alphabetical Table to the abovementioned Deſcents. At the beginning.

1445.

An Heraldical Book in fol. all written & tricked by the hand of Mr. John Withie the Painter-Stainer; who hath given this Title to it,

With the Viſitation as made Anno Dom. 1565. Whether the date of the laſt-mentioned Viſitation, viz. 1565. be right, I now not: having at preſent, no other knowledge of any Viſitation made of this County in that year, but from hence. Richard Mundys book. N° 1559. maketh no mention of any ſuch; yet it appears that he was diligent in getting the old Viſitations, having tacked his Deſcents taken in A.D. 1623. to thoſe taken by Ralf Brooke in A.D. 1591. & alſo to thoſe taken by Robert Cooke in ann. 1573. which, perhaps, may be in the Viſitation that Mr. Withie meant.

Num. 1445—1447.

In this Book, beſides ſome few Continuations, Proofs from Evidences, and Tricks of Family-Seals; I find, Written & tricked by the hand of Robert Glover Somerſet-Herald. 15.

3. Part of an Ordinary of Arms in Trick; by the ſame Robert Glover. 27.

1. An imperfect account of the Contents of this Book, by John Withie; at the beginning. 1.

Herein I observe, besides some explanatory Notes,

3. A short Descent of Marlor. 9.

4. A short Descent of Wardour. 13.

Then followeth,

5. A Tract of Ralph Brooke, or Brokesmouth Yorke Herault, under this Title, "Dyverse Guifts of Armes passed by Sir William Dethick when he was Garter; as they were informed to the Earle of Essex Earle Marshall of England, by York Herald." Herein honest Ralph endeavors to take away Sir William Dethick's reputation; if he had any left. What became of this Complaint I cannot yet tell; but Sir William was turned out of his Office of Garter (or, as the Heralds had rather say, "Deposed") for fresh matter.

It seemeth as if Sir William Segar upon inspecting this Tract, did not approve of the making mention of his Name therein; which might occasion some marginal Notes, at pagg. 128, 129, 130, 131, 136, 138, 139, 140.

9. Here is also a short Descent of Cooper. 132.

A thick Heraldical Book in fol. before fol. 1. thus entituled;

1. "This is a true Coppie of a Booke of Armes (otherwiſe called a Booke of Ordinaries) which was tricked and written by the hands of the late worthy Gentleman Robert Glover Eſq. Somerſet-Herauld; but put into a more ample & playne order & methode, and alſo inlarged (the which you ſhall finde marked & written with Vermillion) by mee John Withie, 1628."

Beſides which, Mr. Withie hath alſo written herein.

2. A Table (for expedition) to finde out every thing of ſpeciall Note, conteyned in this Booke: that is, ſhewing the method uſed in this Ordinary. At the beginning.

4. Some few Additions have been made by Mr. Saunders to this Ordinary; which is all along tricked in printed Eſcocheons.

It is plain by the date, that Mr. Withie made this excellent Book when he was but a young man; which may be the reaſon why it doth not contain all the Arms found in other Books that came to his hands. I obſerve this, not by way of detraction from his, or Mr. Glover's labours, but to encourage the Reader, if he cannot find a deſired Coat in this great Collection, not to forbear conſulting others, although they may be in many reſpects inferior to this.

An Heraldical & Hiſtorical Book in fol. written by the hand & painted or illuminated with Metals & Colors, by the order of a whimſical Author, one Paine or Fitz-Paine Fiſher; who afterwards died in the Fleet, as I have heard; having printed many Encomiums and Compliments on thoſe who had been eminent for their Loyalty to King Charles 1. This Book containeth,

1. The Atchievement of an Emperor of Fitz-Paine's own making; with the following Inſcription,

2. As to the Work itſelf; it beareth this Title, "A perfect Regiſtry of all the Collours (and Standards) taken from the Scotts at Preſton in the County of Lancaſter, by the then Lieutenant-Generall Cromwell, anno 1648. As alſo, of all the Collours both of Horſe & Foot, taken from the Scotts at Dunbarr in Scotland, by his then Excellency, the Lord Generall Cromwell, 3d Sept. 1650. And for the perpetuall Memoriall of thoſe ſignall Trophies of his Highneſſe Victories & Valour to ſucceeding Ages; carefully collected & compiled by FF. FF. (i. Fitz-Paganum Fiſherum, Fitz-Pagani filium) Hiſtoriographer of his Highneſſe Warres in Irland & Scotland.

Theſe Standards & Colours were in number 223. and are all of them, or ſo much of them as remained, repreſented in this Book, which looks as if deſigned for the preſent Book.

3. But before the ſaid Colours, is a Dedication to Oliver's Privy Councellors, each of whoſe Arms are done with proper Metals & Colors, in the following ſtyle, "Ad Olivari Dei Grat. Ang. Scot. Hib. cum ditionibus circumjacentibus, nec non inſularum longius Occidentalium perampliſſimi Protectoris, et Imperatoris ſemper Auguſti Conſilia cooptatis, Dom. A Book in fol. for the moſt part of the hand of Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer; containing,

This ſeemeth to have been taken from John Withie's Book of this Viſitation (which was alſo grounded upon the Viſitation book of A. D. 1584. taken by Richard Lee Portcullis for Robert Cooke Clarenceux) but not immediately; and, in my opinion, is inferior to Withies Copie, ſo far as it goes. This with the Arms mentioned N° 5. appears to be copied from the Book compiled and written by the diligent Mr. Mundy, which is now extant in this Library at 90. A. 16. only it may be noted that ſince this was taken from that, ſome Additions have been made to it, which are not to be found in this. In like manner, ſome Continuations, Explanatory Notes, with the additional Pedigree of Bromfield are inſerted into this, and wanting in the other. Moreover as this appeareth to be a Copie of Mr. Mundy's Book; ſo, by the + made with Black Lead over moſt of the Deſcents, with ſome other Notes, it is plain that ſome other Book hath been made from this.

7. At the end is a Table containing the Names of moſt of the Families whoſe Deſcents are herein ſett down according to the Order as they ſtand in this Book; but the Notation of the Pages ſhew that it referreth not to this Book; nor to the Book 90. A. 16. It is of the handwriting of . . . .

And this Notion muſt include the heraldical Monſters, as living Creatures. Whether Mr. Withie ever made another Volume for Creſts, compoſed or conſiſting of things inanimate, I know not.

4. In ſome parts of this Book, are inſerted a few Leaves of an older Collection of Creſts, diſpoſed methodically in way of Ordinary, ſome part of which may perhaps be of the hand of Richard Scarlet the Painter-Stainer. Two large folios intitled, Regiſter of Accounts and papers brought in to the Commiſſioners appointed by Act of Parliament to ſtate the Accounts of the Kingdome.

A Book in fol. given by Sir Thomas Hoby of Byſham in the County of Hertford, Baronet.

The Cover of it of crimſon Velvet, edged with crimſon Silk & Gold-Thread, and with Taſſels of the ſame at each corner; lined in the inſide with crimſon Damaſk.

Upon each ſide of the Cover are five Boſſes, made of Silver wrought & gilt. Thoſe in the middle have the Arms of K. Henry VII. with his Crown & Supporters made of Silver, gilt, coulered, & enameled in their proper Places. In the others at each Corner, are ſo many Portcullices, being one of his Badges, gilded on the Field Party per Pale Argent & Vert, made of Enamel.

It is to be made faſt by two Haſps which are faſtened to two thick Labels coming out of the edge of the Cover on the one ſide of the Book, & put over two ſhort Pins of Silver gilt on the other ſide. Theſe Haſps are of Silver gilt, each with the red Roſe of Lancaſter, partly gilt, & partly enamelled of a crimſon Color, with a Demy-Angel proceeding out of a Cloud, the top of whoſe Head is faſtened to a Ring of Silver gilt as the Angel; to which are faſted two Strings of white & green Silk & of Silver & Gold Thread all platted together, in order to open & ſhut the Book with the more eaſe.

The Book conſiſteth of Four Indentures all fairly written on Velum, with many principal Letters illuminated; beſides thoſe hereafter to be mentioned; which ſaid Indentures being the Originals, the Leaves are all indented at the Top, & the Cover alſo, conformably to them.

1. The firſt Page of the firſt Deed, is illuminated in this manner; a Bordure is putt on all the Margins thereof: at the top are the Arms of K. Henry VII. with his Crown & Supporters painted on a golden Plan; on each hand are the Portcullices & Chains in a Plan of fine blew ſpotted with Gold. Below them on each ſide, are Sprigs of the red Roſe Tree, with like Portcullices & Sprigs painted interchangeably, ſo as in the whole, to render the ſame rich & agreable to the eye.

2. In the firſt or principal Letter, which is large, is a Picture wherein is repreſented King Henry VII. with his Royal Robes, Crown & Scepter, ſitting on his Throne, giving this Book to John Iſlipp Abbot of Weſtminſter, who kneels before him, holding his Croſier in his left Arm; (Weſtminſter being a Mitred Abbey;) he ſtretcheth out both his hands to receive the Book; and is attended by divers of his Monks, kneeling behind him.

3. "This Indenture" ſheweth, that it was "made between the mooſt Criſten & moſte Excellent Prince King Henry the Seventh, & John Iſlippe Abbot of the Monaſtery of Saynt Petre of Weſtminſtre, & the Priour & Convent of the ſame Monaſtery, binding their Succeſſours. Dated the 16th day of July, the nynetene Yere of his moſt noble Reigne."

NB. This his Style of moſt Chriſtian, is no new thing; for I can find the ſame given to many of our Kings ſince the Conqueſt; and alſo to ſundry of our Saxon Kings before the Conqueror's time This and the following Deeds declaring & reciting many particular Covenants between the Parties; in order to make them better underſtood, I take leave to collect the Heads of the ſame, as they are written in the margins.

A Book in fol. well written by divers Hands; wherein are contained,

1. A complete Tranſlation of the Cavaliero Domenico Fontana's Book, entituled of the Tranſportation of the Vatican Obeliſk; and of the Buildings of Pope Sixtus v. Printed at Rome A.D. 1590.

None of the printed Cutts are annexed to this Tranſlation.

This is followed by a French Book engraven on Copper-Plates, and thus entituled,

2. Repreſentations Geometrales de pluſieurs parties de Baſtiments, faites par les Reigles de l'Architecture Antique; et de qui les Meſures ſont reduittes en Piedz, Poulces, & Lignes, a fin de s'accommoder a la Maniere de Meſurer la plus en uzage parmy le Commun des Oeuvriers, par A. Boſſe. A Paris, chez l'Autheur, A.D. 1659.

This Tract is alſo tranſlated into Engliſh, and the Tranſlation is bound up along with it, foliatim.

Num. 1503—1505.

An old Heraldical Book in fol. wherein is contained,

1. A large Collection of Armes, painted about the time of K. Edward VI. or the latter end of his Father's Reign.

2. Although ſome of theſe Armes be fabulous, and are to be found in other Books of the ſame Age; this Collection is nevertheleſs very uſeful, upon ſundry Accounts.

3. Some of theſe Arms are alſo expreſſed in Blazon; ſome are diſpoſed in way of Ordinary; others according to their Counties; and the moſt, promiſcuouſly, in no method at all.

4. Among them is a ſprinkling of Foreign Armes, as French, Scotch, Iriſh, Welſh, &c.

5. Here & there, occurre ſome Notes & Emendations by ſome modern Hand.

6. At the end is an alphabetical Table referring to the abovementioned Armes; drawn up by Henry Parker and others of late times.

At the beginning, are the Armes of Herbert with Quarterings; to which Familie this Book once belonged, as may appear by the Names written upon the ſame Page.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers hands; wherein are contained,

1. The Viſitation of Hartfordeſhire, taken by . . . . . Anno Dñi 1579. 1.

This is the Title of the firſt Tract; and many of the Deſcents are ſo dated; but yet whether this County was then viſited I cannot ſay. It was certainly viſited ten years before (viz. A.D. 1569.) by Robert Cooke Clarenceux, as appeareth by the Book N° 615. and it is affirmed that it was again viſited A.D. 1572. at which the ſame Robert Cooke continued to be Clarenceux; and it would have been a burthen upon the Gentry of any County to be viſited three times in ten years.

At the end of this Tract which hath many Continuations & Additions, both of the firſt Hand, and alſo of Mr. Henry Parker the Painter-Stayner; I find,

2. A Collection of the Deſcents, with Tricks of the Armes, of many eminent Citizens of London ſett down by the firſt Hand in ſuch manner as to look like the latter part of the precedent Tract. 79.

Here are alſo ſome few Additions & Continuations of the ſame Henry Parker.

3. The Vizitation of Hertfordſhire taken by Sir Henry St. George Richmond-Herauld Anno 1634. being Deputy to Sir John Borough Garter & Sir Richard St. George Clarenceux, Kings of Armes. 130.

Herein are alſo ſome additions & continuations of Henry Parker & others.

4. An alphabetical Table to the Deſcents contained in this Book; made by thoſe who entered the Deſcents therein. At the end.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein is contained a Copie of that Viſitation-book which was made for the County-Palatine of Cheſter A.D. 1580. by Robert Glover Somerſet-Herald, Marſhal and Deputy to William Flower Norroy his father in law.

This Copie was made by that perſon who made the Book N° 1424. and perhaps from it. The Arms are better tricked in N° 1424. than in this, which hath alſo more faults than that.

There being nothing to be ſaid by me touching the Contents of this Copy, but what hath been mentioned of the other already; I ſhall forbear to repeat the ſame here; making only this Remark, that ſince both theſe Books were written, ſome few Additions have been entred entred into each of them, by their reſpective Owners, unknown to one another; which are therefore wanting in the one Copie, though inſerted in the other.

A Book in fol. conſiſting of divers Tracts bound up together, in the Order following,

1. The Armes of Brute, Albanact, Camber, Bellinus, Uterpendragon, Arthur, Cadwallader, Egbert, Swanus the Dane, Edward the Confeſſor, & William the Conqueror, &c. painted, or tricked perhaps by Sylvanus Morgan, the Painter-Stainer; with a written account of the ſame. 1.

2. Short Notes touching the Creations & Acts of the Engliſh Nobility from the Conqueſt to the beginning of the Reign of Q. Elizabeth. 14.

4. Remarque de la Genealogie de tres-excellent Seigneur Henry de Bourbon, Premier Prince et Premier Pair de France; et de quelques Heroiques Actions de ſes Anceſtres, depuis Sainct Louis: par Frere Joſeph Texeira Portuguaiz Conſeilleir du Roy Tres-Chreſtien, Aumonier & autrefois Predicateur du Tres-Sereniſſime Anthoine Roy de Portugal. 51.

This Tract wanteth the firſt Leaf, containing the beginning of the Author's Dedication.

5. Libellus vocatus de Officio Militari, ſcriptus per Baddeſworth, Anno Dñi 1458. Tranſcriptus per R. Gloverum, alias Somerſett. Heraldum Armorum ſereniſſimæ Elizabethæ Angliæ, Franciæ, et Hiberniæ Reginæ, Anno Dñi 1572. 83.

Apographum iſtud (pluribus in locis mancum atq; mutilatum) videtur Libri cujuſdam Johannis de Bado-Aureo nuncupati, quem Publici Juris fecit D. Edwardus Biſſæus.

6. Part of an old Ordinary of Armes; tricked rudely, & with confuſion. 124.

8. A Copy of Mr. Walter Mountagues Letter to his Father: and the Earl of Manchеſters Anſwere to it, 20th November, 1635. 156.

This Walter was ſecond ſon to Henry Montagu Earl of Manchеſter: His Letter was to acquaint his Father that he had reconciled himſelf to the Church of Rome, without conſulting him, & what reaſons had induced him to do ſo. The Earls Anſwer is a noble Piece, and ſheweth him to have been Maſter of great Reaſon & Learning in that Controverſie; and alſo a truly loving Father. I know not whether I may add, that this Walter Montagu not being to be brought back by any Arguments, was made an Abbot in France.

11. Deſcent & Arms of Hutton of Goldeſborough in Com. Ebor. as alſo of Hutton of Penrith in Cumberland. dat. A.D. 1612. 164.

12. Copie of Queen Elizabeth's Charter, whereby ſhe erected the Free-Men of the Myſtery of Painters-Steiners into a Body Corporate. Imperfect at the latter end. 165.

13. Copie of an Order of the Privy-Council, dated 15 July 1640. for preventing of falſe Muſters in his Majeſties Army. 176.

He cenſureth his Majeſties Declaration of War againſt the Dutch as couched under captious & equivocal Termes & Expreſſions with regard to the French that the French Ordonnance Robe d'Ennemy confiſque celle d'Amy, hath been for many Years aboliſhed in France as odious & unjuſtifiable, and therefore exhorteth the King to lay by all thoughts of eſtabliſhing any ſuch Law, &c. dat. 26 March 1664-5. 145.

Herein, like Men of ſolid Wiſdom & Honor, they eaſily wipe off the Imputations caſt on his Majeſtie & themſelves in Mr. Comenge's Memorial; ſhewing wherein, on divers occaſions he did forget himſelf; that they had made an Order, whereby in the Court of Admiralty, the French claymers were prefarable to all others. That the French Merchants this Yeare, appeared to claime & colour more Goods in Dutch Veſſells, than they have ever ventured in many Yeares before; pretending that all is laden on their proper Riſque & Accompte: ſoe that the Dutch in one Yeare have forgott to be Merchants, & left their Shipps to the French; who have ſoe much engroſſed Trade, as to be enforced to hire the whole Dutch Fleete, though upon the diſadvantage of paying extraordinary Duties in their owne Countrey. That this appeared in all the Prizes his Majeſtie had taken; where, though the Shipp be condemned, & confeſſed Dutch, yet all her Lading was almoſt univerſally pretended French. That as to the French Law, Robe d'Ennemie confiſque celle d'Amie, the Yeare 1645. according to his beliefe, & 1650. according to his averrment was the firſt time that ever it was diſpenced with; and that not obteined without a Treaty, and afforded only to the Dutch & Hanſe-Towns. That the ſame is, & has been the Law of England, by Act of Parliament ſome hundreds of Years paſt; and is to this day both the Law of Spaine & Portugal.

And though generally theſe ſoe pretended French Goods are all laden in Dutch Bottomes, and going to or from Dutch Ports, and the Ship ſailed by Dutch Maſters & Mariners; yett conſtantly, both forward & backward, to the aſtoniſhment of all Men that know the Dutch were the great Traders at Sea before, the whole Lading is avowed in the Court of Admiralty & ſworne alſo, to belong to Frenchmen, and to run upon their Accompt & Adventure onely, and that noe Dutch perſon had any ſhare or intereſt therein, &c. A Remonstrance of the Lords Commissioners to his Majestie, wherein they vindicate their Proceedings from some Imputation laid upon them; since the Dutch East-India and other Prize-Ships had not answered expectation, as to their Value, by reason of the exorbitant imbezzlement of the Goods; and their Lordships considering the great loss accruing to his Majestie, by giving all the Goods between Decks & the Orlopp (being the most valuable sort of the Lading) to the Seamen, as also the great Scandal thrown upon the Nation thereby, since many Ships seized only upon suspicion, were always plundered between Decks (if no worse used) and being afterwards cleared as plainly belonging to Friends, neither the Goods taken away nor the Plunderers were to be found. They propose therefore, that now upon the above-mentioned horrid Imbezzlements, his Majestie would only give them for the future a sixth or a fifth Part of the whole clear Profit, whereby the Officers may be obliged to preserve the Prizes from being plundered, the Seamen kept in better discipline, and the Shares to the Commanders and Seamen better preserved, & more equally divided. 361.

Num. 1525—1527.

A thin Book in large fol. bought of me; and entituled,

An Harmonie of the Bible, with a diligente Regiſtre of the Times; by Hugh Broughton.

This is the original (I have lately procured a Print of Hugh's Effigies; did faſten it at the beginning of the Book.)

1526 & 1527.

Two Velum-Books in fol. which being formerly bound up together in one Volume, ſhall now be conſidered by me, as ſuch.

The firſt of theſe conſiſteth of 28 Leaves: the latter beginneth with fol. 29. & endeth with fol. 178.

That, relating only to the two Books of the Maccabees; this is to the New Teſtament.

The New Teſtament is taken as Four Tracts, namely the Goſpels as one Harmony; the Acts of the Apoſtles; the Epiſtles; and the Apocalypſe.

The Method obſerved in theſe Books, in this. Firſt to begin with a Text of the Scripture, according to the vulgar Latin; and over againſt it, to repreſent the ſubject thereof in Painting, in a pretty large Circle. Underneath the ſaid Text of Scripture, is put down in Latin, the meaning of the ſame, according to the Senſe & Judgment of the Author, who generally draweth the ſeveral Texts to ſhew & declare the Benefits accruing to ſuch who live a good Life, and the Puniſhments attending a bad one: and he eſpecially & frequently inveigheth againſt thoſe evil Prelates & Clergymen, who neglecting & forſaking the Work of God (having obtained their Dignities by corrupt means) continued, out of Ambition, to make their Court to great Men, and at length abandoned themſelves to Pride, Covetouſneſs, Luxury, and all manner of worldly vanities. Theſe Explications are alſo repreſented in Circles under the other; all columnatim. So that on each Page there is four Columns, one of Writing a Text & its Allegory lower; then four Circles exhibiting the ſame by way of Illumination: then another like Column of Writing; and laſtly another Column of four like Circles; which with proper illuminated Ornaments fill the Page.

From theſe Pictures, many good Notices & Hints may be had, touching the Habits of Princes, Clergy, & laſtly, meaner Men & Women; Machines, Inſtruments of War, muſical, & domeſtic, &c. as alſo for the explaining divers Uſages & Cuſtoms, ſacred & civil. Among which, one I will here take notice of, touching the variation of the more modern Popery from the more antient. Every body, almoſt, knoweth that in the Primers, Breviaries, Miſſals, ſecundum Uſum Sar. &c. one of the ways of repreſenting the ever-bleſſed Trinity, is by a Body with a Head conſiſting of three faces. Now in this Book, Antichriſt is repreſented after that manner, as may be ſeen at fol. 26. 95. 152. 153. Here it may be remembred, that the Numbers are written on the Blank ſide of each Leaf.

This Book (taking both Volumes for one Book) ſeemeth to have been made in France, about 500 Years ago; and is painted & gilded aftar the beſt manner uſed in that time. Here & there, alſo. are ſome directions, in a French Hand of that time, & in the French Language, for the Workmen to alter ſome things done amiſs.

Among the faults; the Shield fol. 137. exhibiting a Plain-Croſs Vert, on a Field Gules, is not noted; although it hath been found guilty of falſe Heraldry, by an eminent Officer of Armes to whom I lately ſhewed it; there being Color upon Color; which their Rules will not allow. But, in my Opinion, the Book-painter was not to blame, his Work being older than, I believe, the Heralds can prove their Rules of Blazoning to be; and where there is no Law, there is no Tranſgreſſion.

Moreover,

Num. 1527, 1528.

Moreover, other Arms, more antient, labor under the ſame defect, if it was any; as, the antient Arms ſaid to have belonged to the Kingdom of France, vizt. Three Toads Sable; on a Field Vert; which is Color upon Color. I need not add, that the Arms born by Godfrey of Bullen after his being King of Jeruſalem, were Metal upon Metal, & yet allowed as good.

This Book without doubt, was formerly one Volume, of that glorioufly illuminated Biblical Manuſcript, the firſt Volume of which, beginning with Geneſis, & ending with Job, was given unto the Bodleyan Library by Sir Chriſtopher Heydon the elder, where it ſtill remaineth marked ARCH. A. 154.

A Velum Book in fol. written in old Engliſh, containing;

The Chronicle called Brute of England, concluding with the Siege of Roan, which was ſurrendered anno 6 R. Henr. V. This ſeems to be moſtly, a Tranſlation from the Chronicle in French (no. 200.) which Sr. Simonds D'ewes called Fructus Temporum.

This Book agreeth very well with that, in this Library, marked no. 24. excepting the Prologues, which are here wanting.

This Copie is alſo more remarkably illuminated than moſt of the others that I have ſeen.

In making ſome compariſon between this Book & that inſcribed no. 266. I find that to have been ſuch a Chronicle as this, although that be brought down lower, and containeth more matter than this, in the later times. But it ſeemeth a little extraordinary to me, that Sir Simonds D'Ewes ſhould (as he hath done with his own hands) take his old Book, and cutt off the firſt leaf or leaves; raſe off the 3 firſt lines in another place wherein were the concluſion of a former Chapter, & the Title of the next; write thereon a new Title for the Book; that he ſhould raſe off the remaining Numbers of the Chapters, & ſett new Numbers thereon, ſucceſſively following what he had thus made the firſt Chapter; that he ſhould do the ſame by the Numbers of the leaves; that he ſhould raſe out the firſt Words of the firſt Chapter now remaining (except the principal Letter) and write other Words in the room thereof, and that he ſhould, to crown the matter, prefix a new Frontiſpiece or Title of his own Invention thereunto, to make the World believe that this was not to be deemed a book of that Kind that it proveth to be.

Q. Whether it be fair for any Gentleman to do theſe things by an old Hiſtory, although the Book be his own Property.

A Paper Book in fol. and another Copie of the ſame (in this Library inſcribed No. 1225.) thus entituled,

The Parſons Law; collected out of the whole body of the Law, & late Reports.

An heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers Hands; more eſpecially by Mr. Nicholas Charles, and Mr. Richard Mundy; wherein I find,

1. An alphabetical Table of Surnames; directing to the Arms & Deſcents following. At the beginning.

Then followeth.

2. A very good Copy of the Viſitation Book of the County of Stafford; as the ſame was made & taken A.D. 1583. by Robert Glover Somerſet-Herald, for William Flower Norroy.

Scattered among the Deſcents, there are,

14. Very many Enlargements & Continuations, by Mr. Richard Mundy & others.

15. Very many Tranſcripts of, & Extracts from private Evidences; with very many Tricks of private Seals.

16. Some Notes written by William Latton Eſq; with Stamps of two of his Familie-Seals; which, after all, I cannot but think to be modern. 43. b. & 75. b.

17. A Note inſerted by me, touching the tearing part of the Deſcent of Unwyn out of this Book, and likewiſe out of another Book in the Office of Armes. 70.

18. Arms & Creſts of divers particular Staffordſhire Families. 80. b. 81.

19. Some Deſcents entred by Mr. Mundy, which were either not at all regiſtred at the Viſitation of this County A.D. 1583. or at leaſt not in ſo ample a manner. 81.

An heraldical Book in fol. for the moſt part written & tricked by Mr. Richard Mundy; containing,

1. An alphabetical Table of Sur-Names, directing to the Armes & Deſcents following.

2. Extracts from Domeſdei-book, relating to the County of York.

4. Some Leaves marked with printed Eſcocheons, intended to contain the Armes of the Yorkſhire Gentry; but none are tricked therein, ſave only thoſe of Hoppy.

Then followeth at a Diſtance,

5. Richard Mundy's Copy of the Deſcents regiſtred at the Viſitation of this County A.D. 1584. & 1585. by Mr. Robert Glover Somerſet-Herald, Marſhall & Deputy unto his father in law, William Flower Norroy.

Herein I find,

6. Two Seals of the City of York, the largeſt of which is ſtiled SIGILLVM SECRETVM.

7. The Seal, as it may ſeem, of the Metropolitical Church of York. ibid.

8. The Armes & Seals belonging to the Towne of Beverley.

9. The Seal belonging to the Borough of Headon, &c.

10. The Armes & Seal belonging to the Towne of Kingſton upon Hull.

11. The Armes & Seal of the Towne of Pontefract.

12. The Seals belonging to the Towne of Doncaſter.

13. Many Tranſcripts of & Extracts from private Evidences; & tricks of private Seals, illuſtrating the Deſcents & Armes of Families.

Num. 1571—1573.

14. Very conſiderable Enlargements, and perhaps intire additional Pedegrees, added hereunto by Mr. Mundy, from the Viſitation-book of this County made A.D. 1575. by William Flower Norroy: which Viſitation-book, as I have been informed, is not now to be found in the Library belonging to the College of Armes.

15. Very many Continuations of Deſcents, made principally by Mr. Mundy; as alſo other Continuations by Mr. Latton, Mr. Dale, and others. ſparſim. (vid. fol. 15. b.)

16. Among the private Evidences, I take leave to mention particularly that tranſcribed in fol. 14. & relating to the Family of Rereſby; which, I hope, hath ſtill the Poſſeſſion of others of better Authority to ſupport its Antiquity.

17. Seven Deſcents (viz. of Swyft, Skelton, Eagleſfeld, Eſcot, Danyell, Aſlakeby & Thorpe) ſaid by Mr. Mundy, to be taken out of an old Viſitation of Yorkſhire, made by William Harvey alias Norroy, in the Raigne of King Henery the VIIIth. Which Booke was ſomtimes in the Cuſtody of Raphe Brooke Eſq; Yorke-Herald. 224.

Here ſeemeth to be ſome Miſtake in this Account; for I cannot find that William Hervey was Norroy before Edw. VI. or that he ever made any Viſitation of the Northern Province.

18. Additional Armes & Deſcents, entered into this Book by ſome Painter. 240.

A Book in fol. and containing a large Treatiſe, beginning from pag. 1. and yet wanteth the firſt Chapter. The Titles of the other Chapters are,

2. That late Forraigne Writers may eaſilie bee Miſtaken in the Antiquity of the Lawes of England. 1.

3. That our owne Countrey Writers, not being Lawyers, are very ignorant in matters of the Common Law; and conſequently, theire Writings concerning the ſame, not to be credited. 51.

4. That our owne Countrey Writers are fitter, and better able to deſcribe our Actions and Lawes than Forraigners, &c. 193.

5. That ſometimes the deniers of the Antiquity of the Common Law, affirm that to have bin uſed in the Common Law in the time of the Conqueror, which began long after the Conqueſt, which is inſtanced in the firſt inſtitution of Juſtices of Peace, &c. 273.

6. Of the Antiquity & Lawfulneſſe of Wardes. 341.

7. Authors refuted that hold, the Court of Common Pleas, firſt erected in 9° Ed. III. That Glanvill the Chiefe Juſtice of England, wrote the Treatiſe of the Common Law. And that the Chiefe Juſtice of England and the Chiefe Juſtice of the Kinges Bench were all one Officer. 421.

9. The adverſe Reaſons produced and anſwered, that the Common Law was here eſtabliſhed by William the Conqueror. 525. to 735.

By this turning over the Book, I am ſomewhat apt to believe, that this may be a Volume of the excellent Work of Sir Roger Owen, concerning the Antiquity, Ampleneſs, & Excellency of the Common Law of England.

(It is ſo; and the MS. 3 C. 13? ſupplyeth the firſt Chapter, wanting herein: as this Book ſeemeth to ſupply that and the other two Volumes with four Chapters; they wanting all from the 7th Chapter to the 15th).

1. Κικραγάρια ψαλλαίμενα εἰς τὰς ἐπισήμους ἑορτὰς συν τὸ —κατευθυνθήτω.—ἦχος α'.* 1.

2. Κατευθυνθήτω ἡ προσευχή μου. κ.τ. λ. ejusdem Psalmi Versus est secundus.

In margine scribitur* (Γ ϐ) i. e. ni fallor, ἦχος πρῶτος. Ἦχος in Cantu Græco Ecclesiastico, idem est quod Tonus in Latino. Quatuor Toni priores simplicem appellationem sunt pacti. ἦχος α primus; ἦχος β' secundus; ἦχος γ' tertius; ἦχος δ' quartus. Quatuor posteriores disparem sortiuntur denominationem. Quintus enim est ἦχος πλαγίου πρώτου Tonus obliquus primus; Sextus est ἦχος πλ. δ'. Tonus obliquus secundus; Tertius dicitur ἦχος βαρὺς Tonus gravis, propter moram et Vocis gravitatem inter illum canendum. Ultimum est ἦχος πλ. δ' Tonus obliquus quartus. Goar. Κανόνα vocant Græci Seriem plurium τροπαρίων. ἀναστασιμὸς enim de Resurrectione agit; σταυροαναστασιμὸς Crucem Christi simul et Resurrectionem commemorat: θεοτοκου verò, in Honorem Deiparæ Virginis cedit. Goar. Capit, Musicis Græcis, præfinitam, præscriptam, ac determinatam Mensuram Hymnorum significat: præterea et Canonem vocant, quod Modulationes eam Mensuram non excedant. Goar ex Arcadio.

Κανὼν μέσας.—Hebdomas postea sequitur quinta Quadragesimæ. Hujus Hebdomadis Feria v. canitur Magnus Canon, cujus Auctor fuit Andreas Hierosolymitanus ex Damasco oriundus, Cretæ Archiepiscopus; qui collecta universa Veteris et Novi Fœderis Historiâ, Canticum composuit; cohortans omnes, ut quæ videant in Historiâ esse bona et laudabilia, pro Viribus sectentur, mala fugiant et execrentur. Leo Allat.

Ἀκάθιστος ὕμνος, Hymnus qui Hebdomade quinta Quadragesimæ Sabbato in Matutinis, in Honorem B. Virginis canitur. Origo Nominis, ut recte Cl. Meursius in Glossario suo observat, à Victoria quam Heraclij tempore adversus Chosroæ Legatum obtinuerunt; ob quam impetratam, totam Noctem stantes Hymnum in Honorem B. Virginis decantabant. Hinc. ἀκάθιστος Epitheton B. Virginis. Suicer.

294. Τῶν ὁίκων. ψάλλομέν τὸ παρὸν, καὶ Ἀλληλουάριον ὁμοῦ. πλ. δ'.* ibid. πλ δ'.* 180.

Ο ὁίκος Hymni genus est, in Dei vel Sancti alicujus Laudem ita constructum, ut quasi compagem, ædificium, fabricàmq; virtutum ejus et gloriæ videatur componere: et ideo κοντακίῳ opponitur, ut eo amplius et diffusius. Itali quoque sua Poëmata habent, Stanze suâ Linguâ, id est Domus sive Habitacula, dicta. Goar.

Ἀλληλουΐα. In Officijs Quadragesimalibus Canticum Alleluia fræquentant sæpius et iterant Græci, eiq; decantando facilius indulgent, quo tempus illud diuturniores divinas Laudes requirere agnoscunt: idem quoq; in Mortuorum Exequijs assumunt atq; ita, non sicut Latinis Lætitiæ, sed potius Moeroris, Compunctionis, Devotioniq; apud eos est Argumentum. Goar. pag. 205. videsis autem ejusdem pag. 541.

Τροπάριον. Vox generica, et Canticis in Ecclesia Græca receptis communis: Modulum semper vertit, et Antiphonas Latinorum quadantenus respondere observat Goarus. Du Cang.

In Ecclesia Orientali, canebantur certis diebus certi Canones, quos in Troparia dividebant, plerumq; 30. et nonnunquam plura: excepto uno Magno Canone, qui 250 complectebatur. Suicer. ex Triodio.

Canones in Odas dividuntur; Odæ in Troparia, ex quibus componuntur. Singula namq; Troparia continent aut plura aut pauciora, cum eorum Numerus determinatus non sit. Troparia quandoque libera ac vaga relinquuntur; quandoque primis Litteris quasi Annulis in Verbis veluti Catenula inseruntur, quam Acrostichida autores vocant. Du Cang ex Allatio de Georgijs.

Ἀντιφωνον. Fæmineum Antiphona a Neutrio Antiphonum diſcrimen apud nos obtinet maximum: quamvis ab uno Græco vocabulo, utrumq; fuerint Latini mutuati. Antiphona namq; eſt Sententia vel Modulus cuilibet Pſalmo decantato adjunctus et quaſi ex oppoſito reſpondens, inquit Honorius Solitarius Lib. 2. Cap. 17. Antiphonum autem ut hic uſurpatur, Pſalmi ſunt plures Verſus, ad quorum ſingulos, una et eadem fit ſemper ab altero Choro Reſponſio: et propter hanc Unam et Reciprocam Sententiam ſemper illatam, αντιφωνον, quaſi Vox oppoſita, ſeu Vocis oppoſitio vocatur. Ejus forma qualis ſit, ex his Miſſalibus Antiphonis (i. e. Liturgia S. Chryſoſtomi) fol. 105. et ſeq. poſitis innoteſcit. Extat enim ibi Pſalmus αγαθὸν τὸ ἐξομολογεισθαι τῳ κυριῳ, &c. cujus ſingulis Verſibus reſpondet αντιφωνον, Ταῖς πρεσβειαις της θεοτόκε, καὶ τα ἑξης, illis ſæpius opponendum. Quamvis fatear rem potius in adverſum ſenſum trahendam: cum enim Pſalmus ipſe vocatur αντίφωνον, ejus Verſus ſunt qui uni et eidem dicto, i. e. reſumpto (ἐφυμνίῳ ejus frequentius repetito) opponuntur. Vel certe, quia mutua et utriuſq; Chori ad invicem Reſponſio: et voces jam auditæ, rurſum vel ex toto, vel ex parte, iterantur (prout quoque in Latinis Reſponſorijs contingit) αντίφωνον appellatur. Unde, tum propter Vocis Significationem, tum propter Compoſitionis formam, Latine Reſponſorium congrue reddi poſſet. Vetat tamen Uſus loquendi antiquus, ut Miſſæ Introitum alio quam Antiphoni vel Antiphonæ Nomine dicatur, &c. Goar.

422. Ὁ δὶ ἱιρευς τὴν Συναπτην, τὸ—Πληρώσωμιν κ. τ. λ. ibid.

Συναπτή. In Ecclesia Orientali, ut cl. Meursius docet, variæ erant precationum Formulæ à Diacono pronunciari solitæ: quæ, quia Connectebantur, et simul pronunciabantur, συναπταὶ simpliciter vocabantur. Erant autem, 1. ἡ μιγάλη Συναπτὴ τῶν Ἰιρηνικῶν, major Connexio Irenicorum; in quâ ad finem singulorum Versuum Populus respondebat Κύριε ἐλίησον; ad penultimum σοὶ κύριε; ad ultimum ἀμήν. 2. μικρὰ Συναπτὴ τῶν Ἰιρηνικῶν, minor Connexio Irenicorum: ab ejus Initio, alias dicta Ἔτι καὶ ἔτι 3. Συναπτὴ τῶν αἰτήσιων, Connexio Petitionum; ad cujus singulos Versus respondebat Populus; παράσχου κύριε: exceptis penultimo et ultimo, ubi eadem erat Responsio quæ τῶν Ἰιρηνικῶν. Suicer.

427. Εἶτα, καὶ ὑπὶρ τῆ κατὰ ευαγγίλιον δωδίκατον κατὰ Ματθαῖον. 247. b.
428. Τρισάγιον. ibid.

Τρισάγιον, Trisanctum, Hymni genus, cujus hæc erant Verba Ἅγι◎ ὁ θεὸς, ἅγι◎ ἰσχυρὸς, ἅγι◎ ἀθάνατος, ἐλίησον ἡμᾶς: in quo, ἅγι◎ ὁ θεὸς referebatur ad Deum Patrem; ἅγιος ἰσχυρος ad Deum Filium; ἅγι◎ ἀθάνατος ad Spiritum Sanctum. Vocatur etiam τρισάγ◎ ὑμνολογία, χιρουβικὸς ὕμν◎ ἀγίλλων ὑμνολογία, τρισάγι◎ αἶν◎, ἀγγέλων ὑμνῳδία, et τρισαγία φωνή. Anno enim Theodosij Junioris quinto (vel trigesimo secundum Cedrenum, &c.) magno existente Terræ Motu, et Muris corruentibus, quia Amalechitæ intra Urbem inhabitarent, et adversus Hymnum hunc Blasphemias proloquerentur: Preces et Supplicationes in Campo Tribunalis, Theodosius cum Proclo Patriarcha instituit. Cum vero Κύριε ἐλίησον clamarent Horis aliquot continuis, Adolescentulus quidam in conspectu omnium in aërem sublatus est, audivitque; Angelos clamantes, Ἅγι◎ ὁ θεὸς, ἅγι◎ ἰσχυρὸς, ἅγι◎ ἀθάνατος, ἐλίησον ἡμᾶς. Quod cum mox demissus narrâsset, omnes eodem modo Trisagium canere cœperunt, et cessavit Terræ Motus. Huic Hymno Imperator Anastasius post illa ἅγι◎ ἀθάνατος addi voluit ὁ σαυροθὶς ὑπὶρ ἡμων, verum id cum magno Malo et suo, et Constantinopolitanorum.—Observandum tandem discrimen quod est inter τὸ Τρισάγιον et Hymnum Epinicion, in quo similiter Ἅγι◎ canebatur, hunc in modum, Ἅγι◎, ἅγι◎, ἅγι◎ κύρι◎ σαβαὼθ.—Ergo τρισάγιον initio Liturgiæ ante Epistolæ Lectionem canebantur. Hymnus vero Cherubicus et ἐπινίκι◎, post Catechumenorum et Poenitentium dimissionem. Τριτάγιον quoque usurpabant pro Sacrosancta Trinitate. Suicer.

Codex membranaceus et optimæ Notæ in fol. cui præfigitur Titulus his verbis litteris miniatis scriptus.

1. "Incipit Prologus in Librum qui Flores Historiarum intitulatur." Superiùs etiam, hæc Verba vetustâ manu scripta cernuntur, "Flores Ystoriarum est omnium Primus Liber" (in eâ scilicet Bibliotheca ubi tunc reponebatur) quia Fructus omnium Ystoriarum hic inveniuntur: et paulò inferius aliena ac longe recentiore manu (s. D. Joannis? Dee) "Matheus Florigerus." Hinc etiam in Catalogo Codd. MSS. in Angliæ Bibliothecis adservatorum, edit. Oxon. A. D. 1697. 212. no. 6862. disertis verbis Matthæo Monacho Westmonasterienſi tributus legitur. Verum vel primo intuitu appareat Codicem præsentem longe antiquiorem esse temporibus Matthæi Westmonasterienſis, qui claruit circa A. D. 1377. regnante Rege Anglorum Edwardo III. si non potiùs nepote suo Richardo II.

In eo habentur Annales rerum gestarum ab Origine Mundi, usq; ad Mortem Regis Henrici II. qui diem suum clausit extremum, Anno Salutis 1189.

In evolvendo Codice, priorem partem A. D. 1065. aut 1066., præcedentem, impresso Matthæi Westmonasterienſis Libro omnino fere convenientem comperi: posteriorem vero partem, ab Angliæ nempe conquisitione, usq; ad prædictam mortem R. Henrici II. Matthæum Parisiensem de S. Num. 1666.

talogue of MSS. printed at Oxford A. D. 1697. no. 6938. entituled Wicliff's Wicket, but it is plainly different from the little Treatiſe upon theſe Words, "Hoc eſt Corpus meum," entituled "Wycklyff's Wycket; "whyche he made in Kyng Rychards days the ſecond, "in the yere 1395. and ſaid to be (together with Mr. "Tracies Will, & Tindale's Comment upon it) in-"printed at Norenburch 1546." (Which muſt be a falſe Date, ſince Wycliffe died, ult. Decemb. 1387.)

The Deſign of this preſent MS. is a ſort of Summary of the ſeveral Books of the Old Teſtament, with certain Declarations of their Authority, & Uſe to Chriſtian Men. Whether this Tract took in the Books of the New Teſtament, doth not now appear. Nor can I now tell whether this Tract be that Prologue to the Bible aſcribed to John Wyckliff & printed at London A. D. 1550. becauſe that Book hath been lately taken away from a private Collection, & is too ſcarce to be gotten again in haſt.

That this Treatiſe was written originally by an Engliſhman & a Lollard, may plainly appear by fol. 89. b. where mention is made of London: and by fol. 74. b. where are theſe words, "Now in Engelond it is a comyn Protectioun azens Perſecuſcion of Prelatis & of ſumme Lordis, if a man is cuſtomable to ſwere nedeles, & fals, & unaviſid, by the Boonys, Nailes, & Sids & othere Membris of Criſt; and to be Proud and Leccherous; & ſpeke not of Godds Lawe; and repreve not Synne aboute him. And to abſteyne fro Oothis nedeles, & unleevefull; and to eſchewe Pride; & ſpeke Onour of God, & of his Lawe; and repreve Synne bi weie of Charite: is Matir & Cauſe now, whi Prelatis & ſumme Lordis ſclaundren Men & clepen hem Lollardis, Eretikitis, & Riſeris of Debate & of Treſoun azens the King."

When the Term Lollards was firſt uſed in England, I find not: but by Fox's Martyrology it ſhould ſeem to have been uſed by Henry Crompe a Ciſtercian Monke & Regent in Divinity, in his Lectures at Oxford, before or about the 14 July 1382. at which very time & place, the Perſecution raged moſt violently againſt John Wycliffe and his adherents. I will not affirm that theſe & former Troubles there, provoked him to lay ſome horrid Imputations on that Univerſity & the Clergy there, worſe than Perjury & Simony, and in terms beyond the Truth; the Places may be found fol. 100. b. & 101. as to locking up the Holy Scriptures; and eſpecially fol. 101. b. & 102. where he ſaith that "the ſecond Orrible Synne "is —— & ſtrong mayntenaunce thereof: as it is knowen "to many Perſones of the Reume, & at the laſt Parlement." I have taken ſome pains to inquire into this foul matter, but could not find ground ſufficient for ſuch a Charge.

Moreover, the Author declaims againſt Tranſubſtantiation, fol. 91. b. Image-Worſhip, fol. 76. Simony fol. 68. 102. and divers other public Scandals, with reference to Religion. Among others, that of Public ſetting the Pardons of Sins to Sale, did not eſcape, for at fol. 67. b. he ſaith —— "Summe Criſten Lordis "ſenden general Lettris to alle her Myniſtris & Leegemen "either Tenauntes, that the Pardouns of the Biſchopis of "Rome (that ben opin Leeſings, for the igraunten many "hundred zeeris of Pardoun after Domes day) be prechid "generally in her Rewmes & Lordſchipis: and if eny wijſe "man azen-ſeith the opin Errouris of Antecriſt; and teche "men to do her Almes to pore nedy men, to aſcape the "peynes of Helle, and to win the bliſſe of Hevene; he be "preſoned, as a man out of Criſten Bileve, and Traytour "of God, & of Criſten Kings & Lordis."

One thing more as to the Author of this Treatiſe, fol. 3. b. he writeth thus: "And therefore Y tranſlatide "not the Thridde, neither the Fourth Book of Eſdre, that "ben Apocrifa: but only the Firſt, & of Neemye, that "ben rikened for Twey Bookis anentis Grekis & Latyns."

All theſe Citations ſeem to agree well enough with the Perſon & Opinions of Wycliffe; who is alſo commonly ſaid to have tranſlated the Bible out of Latin into Engliſh; though I could never yet ſee ſuch a Book with his Name written therein by the firſt Hand. (Not to mention what Sir Thomas More wrote, that there were then divers Tranſlations of Scripture into Engliſh, allowed by Authority; & that the Wyclivites were only charged with keeping certain Prefaces to Biblical Books of Wycliffes compoſure).

Not having the printed Prologue now by me, I will not affirm that this MS. is the ſame with that, which Mr. Wharton in his Appendix to Dr. Cave's Hiſt. Litt. deſcribeth in theſe Words. 53.

"Prologus ad integram Bibliorum Verſionem "Anglicam, ab ipſo adornatum, Anglice, Lond. 1550." 8vo.

Nor will I affirm (though it may be likely) that it is the ſame with what he calls "prolixa admodum Introductio de Autoritate atq; Uſu S. Scripturæ" (at the beginning of a MS. New Teſtament in Engliſh, in the Univerſity-Library of Cambridge, claſs 3. no. 4.) "Sub cujus initium, enumeratis, ex Judæorum ac Reformatorum ſententia, libris Scripturæ Canonicis, reliquos omnes Apocryphos eſſe, et Autoritate Fidei carere aſſerit."

I believe this Tract may be found entire in certain old Engliſh Bibles, in Her Majeſties Royal Library; & in that in the Ld. Bp. of Ely.

From theſe ſhort Collects a Queſtion is ſtarted (in the Account given of this Book in the Great Catalogue of MSS. Printed at Oxford. pag. 212.) Whether this Book did not belong to Ely-Abbey? To which an Anſwer may, with probability enough, be returned in the negative; for as much as our Ethelburga was not the Ely-Saint (but St. Etheldrith wife to Ecgfrid King of the Northumbrians) & it appears, that St. Ethelburg was much about the ſame Time ſett over the New Monaſtery of Nuns, which her brother Erkenwald Biſhop of London had built at Barking; to which place if this Book had been given, in all likelyhood it would have ſtaied there till after the Diſſolution thereof. But before the Diſſolution 'tis certain that it was the proper goods of a very great Lady, who was firſt the wife of William Viſcount Beaumont (who died the 28 December 24 Hen. VII:) in which capacity ſhe wrote her Name herein (Elyſabeth Beaumont) twice, as may be ſeen at fol. 11. & 216. in the former place writing thus, "Thys is my Boke." She was afterward married to John Vere Earl of Oxford; and as ſuch (or at leaſt as his widow, for ſhe ſurvived him many years) She entered her Name four times more, to be ſeen at fol. 3. 93. b. 95. & 214. b. in which laſt Page, at the top thereof, are theſe words; "Thys yes my Boke; quod Elyſabeth Oxynforde."

Num. 1730—1732.

A Book in 4to, (ſomewhat imperfect at the end) written in Old Engliſh, upon parchment; wherein is contained,

A Treatiſe, by a modern hand, entituled Wicklifs Poſtills; but is really a Collection of Sermons de Tempore, for the whole Year: which is here almoſt complete, as beginning with Advent-Sunday, and ending in the 22 Sunday after Trinity.

This Work being aſcribed to John Wycliffe (as many others are, which do not appear to have been written by that great Man) I curſorily turned it over, and upon the whole do believe it may be of his compiling. For;

1. The Author was an Engliſh man.

2. The Author complains of the Schiſm then in being between Pope Urban & another. Now Pope Urban VI. at Rome, & Pope Clement VII. at Avignion, were Anti-Popes to one another A. D. 1378 at which time John Wycliffe publickly ſett forth his Doctrines.

3. The Doctrines here taught are agreeable to the Holy Scriptures, and to that held by the Church of England at this day. He preacheth againſt Tranſubſtantiation, Image-Worſhip, Indulgences: the inordinate Lives of the Popes, Cardinals, Biſhops, & generally of the Whole Clergy: and above all, he exclaimeth againſt the Pride, Hypocriſie, & Frauds of the four Mendicant Orders, namely the Auguſtinians, Carmelites, Dominicans, & Franciſcans.

4. I am not unſenſible that ſome of our late & preſent Divines, have charged John Wycliffe with the holding of divers unwarrantable, abſurd, & heterodox, if not heretical Tenets. I ſee none ſuch in this Book, nor do believe that all that which was alledged againſt him by Wydford & others his ſworn enemies was true. If his Trialogus could be retrieved (which was his chiefeſt Work) this matter might ſoon be ſett in a true Light.

I hear there is a Copy of the Trialogus now remaining; being found ſome years ſince, in an old Monaſtery. Moreover, my Lord Weymouth hath lately bought the Trialogus (or at leaſt a great part of it) of a very old Print: perhaps ſett forth by the Huſſites in Bohemia.

An Old Engliſh-book in 4to, written upon paper, wherein are contained,

1. A Theological Poem entituled, at the end, Pryke of Conſcyence: compoſed, as I find in Pitts, by Richard the Hermit of Hampole. 1.

This ſeemeth to want a Leaſe or two at the beginning

2. An old Engliſh Poem grounded on Alcuin's Epiſtle de Virtutibus & Vitijs ad Guidonem Comitem, here called (as is alſo ſeen in ſome of the more modern Latin Manuſcript Copies) Guy Earl of Warwick; which can by no means be true, even ſuppoſing that there was ſuch a man, by reaſon of an Anachroniſm of above an hundred years. 134.

This is imperfect at the end.

By a Note at the End, it appeareth, that on the 5th of July 1473. one Richard Ryder of Petyrsfelde, delivered up to the Commiſſary-General of the Dioceſe of Wincheſter three Books; there ſeverally deſcribed (according to the antient manner) by ſpecifying the firſt Words in the Second Leaſe of each of them. By which it is plain, that this Book was one of the Three; the owner being perhaps ſuſpected of Lollardiſm.

1732.

Num. 1732—1734.

2. Theological Collections, from the Writings of Dr. Downham. 173.

At the other end of the Book, I find

4. A Breife recitall of certain Untruths ſcattered in the Pamphletts & Libels of the Papiſts, concerning Conferences in the Tower betwixt Edmund Campion; Goad, & Dr Walker; with an Anſwer to the ſame. by Alexander Nowell, & C. Dayes. 32.

5. A Remembrance of the Conference had in the Tower with Edmund Campion Jeſuit, by William Fulke & Roger Goad, Doctors in Divinity, 16 September 1581: with an Epiſtle to the Reader by John Feild Student of Divinity. 38.

This is called the Second Dayes Conference.

6. A Remembrance of the Conference had in the Tower, with Edmund Campion Jeſuite, by William Fulke & Roger Goade, Doctors in Divinitye, September 23. 1581. 70.

This tract ſeemeth not be perfect, for want of room: but rather referreth to another book for the remaining Part.

A velom-Book in fol. given by the Very-Reverend & learned Dr. Francis Atterbury, now Dean of Chriſt-church; being a very antient & fair Copie of Geffrey Chaucers Canterbury-Tales; of which it may be worth while to give the following particular account, becauſe the Manuſcript books of this Treatiſe differ not a little from one another.

1. The General Prologue under this Title, "Here begynnethe the Book of Tales of Caunterburye; compiled by Geffraie Chaucers of Brytayne chef Poete." 1.

Herein Chaucer ſaith that they were 29 in company, beſide the Hoſt; but in the Characters he deſcribeth more. The agreement alſo was, by Order of the Hoſt, that every Perſon ſhould tell two Tales in the way to Canterbury, & Two more in the way back; now here, no Perſon (but Chaucer himſelf) telleth more than one Tale; which ſeemeth as if the Work was not finiſhed. More-over, among the Tales that remain, here are none of Two of the Prioreſſes Chaplains, the Haberdaſher, Carpynter, Webbe, Dyer, Tapicer, Ploughman, & Hooſt, who are all particularly mentioned; but there is of the Chanons Yeman, of whom I find no particular Character.

This Prologue is imperfect at the end.

2. The Knights Tale. 10.

This is imperfect at the beginning; perhaps the leaf wanting had the Picture of the Knight on Horſe-back, and was therefore cutt out.

3. The Millers Prologue, & Tale. 33.

Here ſpace is left for his Picture, which was not filled up; and another Leaf wanting, wherein were written, the latter end of the Prologue, & the beginning of the Tale.

4. The Reves Tale & Prologue. 40.

5. The Cokes Tale & Prologue, both imperfect; a Leaf being cutt or torn out. 45. b.

Here room is left for his Picture, which was not inſerted.

I am of Mr. Urry's opinion, that the Story about Gamelyn doth not tally with the former part thereof; and perhaps it might have been what he judges it. The Tale of the Squires Yeoman, or Part of it.

6. The Prologue & Tale of the Man of Lawe. 55. b.

7. The Squyers Tale & Prologue. 68.

A thin Parchment-book in fol. lately given (with ſome others) by Dr. George Hickes; wherein is contained,

An Imperfect Treatiſe, in old Engliſh, containing Counſels to young Ladies & other Women how to govern themſelves, by following Vertue & eſchewing Vice. Made by a Knight for the more particular & immediate Uſe of his three Daughters: in this manner, Y parted (ſaith he) and yede oute of the Gardein, and fonde in my Way two Preſtes & two Clerkes that Y had; and Y ſaide to hem that Y wolde make Boke of Enſaumples for to teche my Doughters that thei might vnderſtond how thei ſhulde governe hem, and knowe good from evelle, And ſo Y made hem extraie me Enſaumples of the Bible, and other Bokes that Y had; as the Geſtis of Kinges, the Croniclez of Fraunce, Grece, of Inglonde; and of mani other ſtraunge Londes: and Y made hem rede me everi boke, and ther that Y fonde a good Enſaumple, Y made extraie it oute; and thanne Y made this Boke. But Y wolde not ſette it in Ryme, but in Proſe, for to abregge it, and that it might be beter & more pleinly to be underſtonde. And Y made this Boke for the gret loue that Y had for my ſaid Doughtres; the whiche Y loued as Fader aught to loue his Childe. Hauing hertely Joye to finde Wayes to ſtere & turne hem to goodneſſe & worſhippe; and to loue & ſerue her Creatoure; & to haue Loue of her Neigheboures and of the Worlde, &c.

Num. 1764, 1765.

Hereby, it appeareth that the deſign of the book was good; but the Legendary Stories are ſo numerous & idle, as much to impair the Reputation of the Performance. However, one Uſe may be made even of them; they ſerving to make one laugh at the extreme ridiculouſneſs of groſs Popery: and the book may be alſo farther conſulted about Habits & Faſhions; and the Significations of certain Words now obſolete & not eaſily underſtood.

The Title of the Work doth not now appear at the beginning. The end is wanting; as alſo ſome leaves after 24. & 32.

The Author or Compiler's Name is not expreſſed; but it appeareth that he was a Knight (as is abovementioned) that he had ſerved in the Wars in Poictou; and that he began his Work A. D. 1371. ſo that in that Progreſſe thereof he might well write (fol. 50. b. col. 1.) "ſin the Tyme & Journey of Crecy the which is 26 Wynter agone;" the Battle of Creſſy being foughten A. D. 1346. But his Effigies, with thoſe of his Three daughters, in their Habits, were painted in the Principal Letter of the Book, but now (through the Neglect of former Owners) very much damnified.

His Countrey ſeemeth to have been France; which he preferreth before England not only in the place above cited from fol. 1. b. but alſo in fol. 53. col. 2. The Perſons alſo of either Sex named by him with honor, are French; as "the Noble Princeſſe Johanne now late Quene of Fraunce," fol. 50. col. 2.——"This good Ladi was the Baroneſſe D'artus," fol. 50. b. col. 1.——"Two Knightes that were in that Tyme, which were called Sir Raoul de Luge, & Sir Piere de Luge; and they were bothe bretheren & Knightes of gret Worſhipe, the whiche as in tho dayes deſire to do Armes & fought Worſhip in ſtraunge Cuntreies; and they hadde gret Renoune, as Charmylour, Cicault, or Sarmitre:" which (with divers French words occurring here & there) make me of Opinion, that this Book was not originally written in Engliſh, but rather tranſlated from French.

Num. 1766—1768.

Although the written Copies of this Book be pretty numerous; this is nevertheleſs more remarkable than any of them that I have yet ſeen. And that for two reſpects, Firſt, among the impertinent Scribbles at the end, I find theſe words, "Thy ys ye boke callyd Bokas, tranſlatyd owth of Latyn in to Ynglyſch, Amen q. D I Lydgate Mownke off Seynt Edmundys Bury. Amen." Which muſt have been written either by Dan John himſelf, or by ſomebody that perſonated him, becauſe the word q (i. e. quod or quoth) in theſe Notes, generally ſignifies a Perſon ſpeaking or writing of himſelf, and perhaps Lydgate might put this Note modeſtly at the end, if this Book was his Preſent. In the Second Place, this Copie is more than ordinarily remarkable for the Pictures painted therein, in order to illuſtrate the whole work. Which (notwithſtanding the Workmans Ignorance, and abſurd repreſentation of Old Hiſtories in the Modes & Faſhions uſed at the Time then preſent, that is of K. Henry VI.) may nevertheleſs be uſeful & inſtructive to thoſe who have Occaſion to ſearch for the Habits, Inſtruments, &c. which then obtained. Such in my Opinion, may be

4. Thoſe (among divers others) at fol. 18. 54. b. 63. 63. b. 64. b. 65. 76. 76. b. 107. 111. 132. 141. b. where is a Gallows whimſical enough: 175. 230. b. 235. 259. b. which I mention for the ſake of the Engliſh Banner.

Codex (oblongioris formæ) membranaceus, in fol. min. quem, caris conditionibus, in Hollandia redemit Illustrissimus Dominus meus a Joh. Aymone. Variantibus hiſce, ex infinitio pene numero, Lectionibus (quæ nec Editioni Hieronymianæ neque Vulgatæ hodiernæ conveniant) in medium productis; ut eædem unam ſaltem referret (ſi non Italam illam veterem) eorum Exemplarium Latinorum ante D. Hieronymi Caſtigationem obtinentium, omnino mihi neceſſe videatur.

Teſtimonia nonnulla de vetuſtis Latinorum Editionibus, a me raptim congeſta.

Hieron. Præf. in Joſ.—"maximè cum' apud Latinos tot ſint Exemplaria quot Codices: et unuſquiſque pro arbitrio ſuo, vel addiderit vel ſubtraxerit, quod ei viſum eſt."

Ejuſdem Præf. in Paral.—"idcirco feci, ut inextricabiles moras, et Sylvam nominum, quæ Scriptorum confuſa ſunt Vitio, Senſuumq; barbariem, apertius et per Verſuum Cola digererem—"

Ejuſdem Præf. in Job. "Cæterum' apud Latinos, ante eam Tranſlationem quam ſub aſteriſcis & obelis nuper edidimus, ſeptinginti ferme aut octingenti Verſus deſunt; ut decurtatus, et laceratus, corroſuſq; Liber fœditatem ſui publice legentibus præbeat.——Audiant quapropter Canes mei, idcirco me in hoc Volumine laboraſſe, non ut Interpretationem antiquam reprehenderem, ſed ut ea quæ in illa aut obſcura ſunt, aut omiſſa, aut certe Scriptorum vitio depravata, manifeſtiora noſtra Interpretatione fierent."

Ejuſd. Præf. in Evang. "Si enim Latinis Exemplaribus Fides eſt adhibenda, reſpondeant quibus; tot enim Exemplaria penè quot Codices. Sin autem Veritas eſt quærenda de pluribus, cur non ad Græcam originem revertentes, ea quæ vel a vitioſis Interpretibus male reddita; vel a præſumtoribus imperitis emendata perverſius; vel a Librarijs dormitantibus aut addita ſunt, aut mutata, corrigimus."

Aug. de Doct. Chr. Lib. II. Cap. II. "Qui enim Scripturas ex Hebræa lingua in Græcam verterunt numerari poſſunt; Latini autem Interpretas nullo modo. Ut enim cuiq; primis Fidei temporibus, in manus venit Codex Græcus, et aliquantulum facultatis ſibi utriuſq; Linguæ habere videbatur, auſus eſt interpretari. Quæ quidem res plus adjuvit Intelligentiam quam impedivit, ſi modo legentes non ſint negligentes. Nam nonnullos obſcuriores Sententias plurium Codicum ſæpe manifeſtavit inſpectio."

Num. 1772.

Ibid. Cap. 15. "Plurimum hic quoque juvat Interpretum Numerositas collatis Codicibus inspecta atq; discussa ; tantum absit Falsitas. Nam Codicibus emendandis primitus debet invigilare Solertia eorum qui Scripturas Divinas nosse desiderant, ut Emendatis Non-emendati cedant, ex Uno duntaxat Interpretationis genere venientes. In Ipsis autem Interpretationibus, Itala cæteris præfertur, nam est verborum tenacior, cum perspicuitate Sententiæ. Et Latinis quibuslibet Emendatis, Græci adhibeantur in quibus Septuaginta Interpretum (quod ad Vetus Testamentum attinet) excellit Autoritas——Latini ergo (ut dicere cœperam) Codices Veteris Testamenti, si necesse fuerit, Græcorum autoritate emendandi sunt,——Libros autem Novi Testamenti, si quod in Latinis varietatibus titubat, Græcis cedere oportere non dubium est——"

Aug. cont. Faust. Lib. xi. Cap. 2.—"Ita si de fide Exemplarium quæstio verteretur, sicut in nonnullis (quæ et paucæ sunt, et Sacrarum Literarum studiosis notissimæ Sententiarum varietates) vel ex aliarum Regionum Codicibus, unde ipsa Doctrina commeavit, nostra dubitatio dijudicaretur ; vel (si ibi quoque Codices variarent) plures paucioribus, aut vetustiores recentioribus præferrentur. Et si adhuc esset incerta varietas ; præcedens Lingua, unde illud interprætatum est ; consuleretur." (Et vide Lib. xxxi. Cap. 16.)

Bed. Præf. Retract in Act. Apost. "In quo etiam quædam quæ in Græco sive aliter, seu plus aut minus posita vidimus, breviter commemorare curavimus : Quæ utrum negligentia Interpretis omissa, vel aliter dicta, an incuria Librariorum sint depravata, sive relicta, nondum scire potuimus : Nàmq; Græcum Exemplar falsatum fuisse suspicari non audeo. Unde Lectorem admoneo, ut hæc quæcunq; fecerimus, gratia Eruditionis legat, non in suo tamen Volumine velut emendatos interserat, nisi forte ea in Latino Codice suæ Editionis antiquitus sic interpretata repererit. Nam et Hieronymus pleraq; testimonia Veteris Instrumenti ut Hebraica Veritas habet, edocet ; nec tamen hæc ita in nostris Codicibus aut ipse interpretari, aut nos emendare voluit."

His licet addere, diversam plane Sententiam D. Hieronymum, ex eisdem veterum Interpretum Latinorum verbis elicere, cum per alienam interpungendi ac distinguendi rationem ; tum per Ordinem vocum immutatem ; sicut diligenti hujusce Codicis Lectori (ut de alijs taceam Codicibus) liquido constare queat.

Quinetiam, quamplurimæ conspiciuntur Lectiones, aut variantes, aut præstanti Codici quasi peculiares, quas Antiquarius dum Codice emendando insudaret, non penitus deleverit, sed subductis solummodo lineolis notaverit, et tanquam obelis jugulatas, spectabiliores ob occulos posuerit.

Id genus sint, hæc verba in Hebr. Cap. xi. inter Com. 28. & 29. "Fide praedaverunt Aegyptios exeuntes." quæ in alijs MSS. non habentur, etsi Facti ipsius vindicem adepta fuerunt S. Augustinum contra Faustum Manichæum sic scribentem, "Quid ergo jam de expoliatis Ægyptijs Faustus objicit, nescians quid loquatur ? Quod faciendo Moyses, usque adeo non peccavit, ut non faciendo pecaret, &c."

Inferius etiam, pars Comatis 32. sic legitur scripta, "*fatigavit (deficiet) enim me tempus enarrantem, de Gedeon, Barach, Samson, Jephte, David, et Samuhel ; et prophetiarum, Ananias, Azarias, Misahel, Daniel, Helias, Helisæus ;" quæ quidem verba in ἀντιγράφῳ reperta, in nova Exemplaria fuerint relata.

Cap. 3. ait. "H Literam (sive illam Spiritum magis quam Literam dici oportet) inserebant eam Veteres nostri plerisque Vocibus verborum firmandis roborandisq; ut sonus earum esset viridior vegetiorq; atq; id videntur fecisse studio & exemplo linguæ Atticæ.——Sed quoniam AHENI quoq; exemplo usi sumus, venit nobis in memoriam Fidum Optatum multi nominis Romæ Grammaticum, ostendisse mihi Librum Æneidos Secundum, mirandæ vetustatis, emtum in Sigillarijs 20 aureis, quem ipsius Virgilij fuisse credebat ; in quo, duo isti versus cum ita scripta forent,

'Vestibulum ante ipsum primoque in limine
'Pyrrhus
'Exsultat telis, et luce coruscus aena, additam supra vidimus h litteram, et ahena factum." Eodem modo, et in 38 alijs hujusce Codicis locis, h cernitur supra posita.

Poſterior autem, octingentis abhinc, ut videtur, annis, Codicem per totum (ſuper-additis Accentibus ac Spiritibus) ad normam ſui temporis Exemplarium emendavit, Sacrum textum in qualibet fere pagina delendo aut interpolando. Num. 1775.

Quod ad Versionem Evangeliorum attinet Hieronymianam ; ipsum Hieronymum audi in Præfatione ad Damasum Papam sic differentem, " Igitur hæc præsens præfatiuncula pollicetur quatuor tantum Evangelia, quorum Ordo est iste, Matthæus, Marcus, Lucas, Johannes: Codicum Græcorum emendata Collatione, sed et Veterum: quæ ne multum a Lectionis Latinæ consuetudine discreparent, ita Calamo tempevarimus, ut his tantum quæ sensum videbantur mutare correctis, reliqua manere pateremur ut fuerant." Num verò fidem suam liberaverit doctissimus ille inter Latinos Pater, Theologis præsertim Criticis ipse Laicus adjudicandum censeo. Hoc, interim, ab omnibus fere qui hac infudarunt palæstrâ, pro confesso est, temporibus scilicet Gregorii Magni Papæ (ut etiam multis citerioribus Seculis) exemplaria Versionis Hieronymianæ in Scrinijs Ecclesiarum ac Monasteriorum ubique fere reperiri, in quibus quamplurimæ Veteris Italæ Versionis ante D. Hieronymum ab Ecclesia Latina usitatæ, tunc retinebantur. E quibus forte (si Sententiolam nostram qualem qualem, in medium proferre fas sit) super-additis Correctionibus Alcuini Presbyteri Angli, * Lanfranci Archiepiscopi Cantuariensis, † Senati dicti Bravonij, Prioris Ecclesiæ Wigornienſis, regnante Rege Henrico II. (qui in corrigendis Biblijs usus est Exemplari vetustissimo quod Offæ Merciorum Regi misit Pontifex Romanus, sicuti in Præfatione ad Matthæum testatur) et alijs nonullis, permixta ista Latinorum Bibliorum Editio, quæ hodie VVLGATA nuncupatur, emanavit.

* Elogium Lanfranci, quod citat Cl. Millius (Proleg. pag. 104.) ex Anonymo Vitæ ejusdem auctore per Lucam D'acherium edito; ipsissimis verbis extat in Sigeberti Gemblacensis Chronico, ad Ann. MLXXXIX.

† Ipsum forsan Senati αυτόγραφον jam ante 14 annos in instructissima Collegij Corporis Christi apud Cantabrigienses, Bibliotheca, vidi inter Codices Parkerianos conservatum ; etsi nec a diligentissimo Millio, nec ab alijs de SS. Bibliorum Latinorum Correctione scribentibus (quod sciam) memoretur.

Sed, ut ad præsentem venerandæ vetustatis Codicem redeamus; per totum habitâ Colis et Commatibus ratione, conspicitur exaratus. Hoc modo in scribendis Evangelijs ipsum D. Hieronymum fuisse usum, haud temere dicam ; licet similem in alijs miræ antiquitatis Codicibus observatus sum ; insuper præfationis ejusdem ad Paulam et Eustochium in translationem Esaiæ haud omnino immemor ; cujus Exordium est, " Nemo cum Prophetas Versibus viderit esse descriptos, Metro eos existimet apud Hebræos ligari, et aliquid simile habere de Psalmis vel operibus Salomonis ; sed quod id Demosthene & Tullio solet fieri, ut per COLA scribantur & COMMATA, qui utique Prosa et non Versibus conscripserunt." Emendatores, diuturnitate temporis, nactus est Codex binos, patria (ut videtur) Francos ; quorum Vetustiori, Literæ quas vocant Unciales sive Majusculæ, ordinario et communi fuerunt usui : Recentior autem, ut ex manu ipsius liquet, ante septingentos annos vixerit ; plus laboris impensus in dividendis Syllabis, in Elemento b supra Voces quasdam addendo, et alijs ejusmodi minutijs, quam in Textu Sacro ad fidem præstantissimorum Exemplarium emendando : adeo ut Grammatici fere vices suppleviſſe potiùs videatur.

Qui Codicem descripsit Antiquarius, omni procul dubio fidelem navavit operam, ut Exemplar suum (quoad fieri potuit) Accurationis causâ ubique bene audiret. Verum tale fuit ei αντίγραφον ut (præter Errores omnibus ferme Librarijs communes) ingens in illo cernitur Lectionum messis ab hodierna VULGATA discrepantium ; e quibus nonnullas heic quasi, verbi gratiâ, lubens adnotabo.

Hactenus de NOTIS SENTENTIARUM quas manu primâ Codici inſertas repperi: nunc de NOTIS ut dicebantur VULGARIBUS, quas invenerunt Tyro, Seneca, Cyprianus, alij; perpauca reſtant obſervanda. Eas adpoſuit Emendator Codicis poſterior, cujus tempore Uſus earum adhuc vigebat. Id conſtat ex Præfatione Claudij Preſbyteri (qui Nono ſeculo floruerit) in edito Commentario ſuo in Matthæum præmiſſo (Cod. MS. Bibliothecæ Regiæ, no. 1048.) ubi hæc leguntur verba——

'Quod vero quædam minus ordinata quam decet in hoc Codice multa reperiuntur, non omnino tribuas imperitiæ; ſed quædam propter Paupertatem, quædam ignoſce propter Corporis Infirmitatem, et meorum Oculorum Imbecillitatem; quia non fuerunt in TABELLIS EXCEPTA, vel SCEDULIS DIGESTA; ſed ut a me inveniri vel differi potuerunt;' i. e. ſi fas ſit me vel ſemel Paraphraſtis vicem ſupplere, Quia non fuerunt conductitio Notario a me dictata, qui conſuetus Notis Vulgaribus & Vocum Compendijs Excepta quam-ocyoſiſſime referret in Tabellas Cereas, eadem denuo in Schedis Membraneis producte deſcripturus; ſed ut a me raptim inveniri vel ſine præmeditatione differi potuerunt.

De hujuſmodi Notarijs et eorum Notis, plurimum ex Veterum ſcriptis in unum quaſi faſciculum jam ante multos annos coegi, quæ non tanti æſtimo ut hic proferrem. Verum ne dubij aliquid oriatur de ſuperiore Paraphraſi, Teſtimonium unum atq; alterum ſupponendum arbitror.

Hieron. Præf. in Tobiam.——Et quia vicinum eſt Chaldæorum Lingua Sermoni Hebraico, utriuſque linguæ peritiſſimum loquacem reperiens, unius diei laborem arripui: et quicquid ille mihi Hebraicis verbis expreſſit, hoc Ego (accito NOTARIO) ſermonibus Latinis expoſui.

Hiſce videtur quadrare vetus illa Inſcriptio quam in diverſis exemplaribus MSS. Homiliarum B. Auguſtini in D. Joannem vidi: quæ quidem in Regio Codice no. 1021. ſic ſe habet.

"D'un Exemplaire Latin des quatre Evan-"giles ecrit en vieux Caracteres Saxons.
"Reflexions ſur les diverſes écritures
"des Livres Manuſcrits."

"On trouve dans la Bibliotheque du Roy un beau Manuſcrit Latin des quatre Evangiles ecrit il y a pour le moins 800 ans en vieux Caracteres Saxons. Le Copiſte qui étoit un Moine Benedictin prend le nom de Dom Ælbrigte, & il ajoute à la fin de ſon Exemplaire pluſieurs Lignes en langage Saxon. Outre le Texte des Evangiles, cet exemplaire contient de petites Gloſes interlineaires en Latin ſur de certains mots, avec quelques Notes marginales qui compoſent une eſpece de petite Chaine recueillie de Saint Hilaire de ſaint Ambroiſe, de Saint Jerôme, de Saint Auguſtin, de Gennadius, et ce me ſemble de Bede, qui eſt indiqué par la ſeule lettre B. comme Saint Jerome eſt indiqué par la Lettre H. Ces notes, dont il y en a quelques unes fort Impertinentes, et qui ſont apparement du Compilateur, viennent de deux mains; car les unes ſont en Caracteres Saxons, et les autres en Caracteres Latins: celles-ci ſont beaucoup plus recentes.

"Apres le Prologue de Saint Jerome on lit 'Matthæus ex Judæis, ſicut in ordine primus,' &c. Sur le mot de Matthæus on a écrit Donatus qui eſt la Signification de ce nom Hebreu. On a fait la même choſe ſur pluſieurs autres noms. Mais l'Auteur n'eſt pas toujours heureux dans ſes explications. Par exemple, ſur ex puplicanis, car c'eſt ainſi qu'il lit au lieu de publicanis, il a mis cette gloſe: Id eſt Regalibus. comme ſi Publicanis etoit la même choſe que Royaux: puis à la marge on lit pour expliquer cette gloſſe interlineare: Les Puplicains tirent leur Nom du Roy Puplus, comme les Herodiens prenoient leur Nom du Roi Herode, & le Chrétiens, de Chriſt. Puplicani a Puplo Rege, ut Herodiani ab Herode, et Chriſtiani a Chriſto. Les Saxons, autrement les Anglois Saxons prononcoient apparement P*u*plicains, au lieu de P*ub*licains. Nèanmoins dans le texte de Saint Matthieu on lit Publicani; et on remarque en même tems, que les Publicains étoient ceux qui exigeoient les tributs publics, Publicani qui publica vectigalia exigunt. Cet ouvrage quant aux notes, eſt une compilation qui eſt bonne lorſque le Compilateur cite de bons Auteurs: mais quand il parle de de ſon chef il dit quelque fois de grandes Impertinences.

"Quant au fond du texte des Evangiles, il differe peu de notre Vulgate, ſi l'on excepte un tres petit nombre d'endroits. La principale diverſité conſiſte dans une gloſe ou addition dès le commencement de Saint Matthieu dans la Genealogie de Jeſus-Chriſt. Après ces paroles du chap. 1. v. 17. uſque ad Chriſtum generationes XIV. on a ajoute celles-ci: Omnes itaque generationes ab Abraham uſque ad Chriſtum generationes ſunt XLII. Et ce qui prouve que ces Mots ont éte inſerez, comme s'ils etoient veritablement du Texte de la genealogie, c'eſt qu'on adjoute immediatement apres, finit; cèſt-adire que la genealogie finit en ce lieu. Les autres diverſitez ſont peu importantes. On remarquera quera ſeulement que cette genéalogie eſt ſeparée du Texte de Saint Matthieu : car aprés la genealogie ſuit un petit Dictionnaire de l'explication des noms Hebreux qui ſont dans le nouveau Teſtament ; et il a pour titre, De Interpretatione Ebr. nominum. On lit en ſuite les Prefaces qui ont eté publiées ſous le nom de Saint Jerome pour chaque Evangeliſte. Et en fin, à la tete des Evangiles on explique pourquoi il y en a quatre ; parce que les Evangiles repreſentent une ſeule Egliſe qui devoit ſe repandre dans les quatre parties du monde. On ajoûte encore, que les Evangiles ſont comparez auz quatre liqueurs, Evangelia quatuor liquoribus comparantur. Saint Matthieu eſt compare au Miel, Matthæus melli ; Saint Marc au Vin, Marcus Vino ; Saint Luc au lait, Lucas lacti ; Saint Jean al' huile, Johannes oleo. L'on donne en ſuite des raiſons miſtiques & allegoriques de ces comparaiſons.

" Pour ce qui eſt des caracteres Saxons, dans leſquels ces quatre Evangiles ſont écrits, ils ſont trés beaux, et different de ceux que le Pere Mabillon a repreſentez dans ſa Diplomatique. L'Orthographe Latine eſt en quelques endroits differente de celle d'aujourd'hui. On y confond quelque fois les lettres o & u. On lit par exemple parabula, diabulus, &c. Les dipthongues étoient en uſage dés ces tems-la parmi ces Saxons, car on trouve æ & e. Et ce qui merite encore plus d'étre obſerve c'eſt que la lettre h qui eſt plútôt eſprit, comme parlent les Grammairiens, q'une veritable lettre, y eſt écrite en effet ſur de certains mots au deſſus des lettres, comme on marque les eſprits dans la langue Grecque : par exemple au lieu de phares, on lit dans le manuſcript p'ares, au lieu d'Abraham, on lit Abra'am, au lieu de horrea, 'orrea, &c. il eſt certain que cette figure ⊦ eſt la marque de l'eſprit âpre, non ſeulement dans pluſieurs anciens manuſcrits Grecs, mais auſſi dans quelques livres Grecs imprimez : l'eſprit doux y eſt marqué par cette figure ⊣ De ces deux figures jointes enſemble ⊦ & ⊣ a été formée notre lettre h.'

So far Father Simon, whom common Fame reporteth to be the Editor of this Book, and the Author of moſt of the Tracts contained therein. Among them, there are indeed Two which relate more particularly to England, vizt. Capp. XVII. & XIX. which together with this Cap XVIII. he ſaith (Pag. 270.) were found in England among Monſr. Juſtel's Papers. However, the Editor not affirming that they were of Mr. Juſtel's compoſure ; nor denying them to have been written by himſelf ; but judging them to be valuable Pieces, as appeareth by his Character of the whole Collection in his Advertiſement at the beginning ; their Subject being in his way of Learning ; and the handling thereof like his manner : I hope he will not take it ill, if I believe what I have been aſſured to be true, namely that He (Father Simon) did draw up the above-written account. Upon which, having the ſame individual Manuſcript here before me, I crave leave to make ſome Obſervations, in order as the French Account leadeth me.

1. Un beau Manuscrit Latin des iv Evangiles, escrit il y a pour le moins, 800 ans.

I will not quarrel with his Term BEAU as applied to this Manuſcript, although here in England, it may not look ſo fair or fine as multitudes of others. But as to its being at leaſt 800 years old, I muſt beg his pardon. When Mr. Toland firſt ſpake of it to me (for I had the firſt Notice of this & the other MSS. bought of Mr. Aymon from him) he ſaid it was 900 years old : and upon the large account he gave of its rarity, joined to 900 years

Num. 1802.

Antiquity, I preſently offered 20 Guineas for it. As I remember, Mr. Aymon's Catalogue (which was drawn up by Mr. Toland) repreſented it as 800 or 900 years old : but when I ſaw the book it ſelf, I knew well by the Character (having before ſeen much of the ſame ſort) that it could not be near ſo antient. In ſome other Converſations I had with Mr. Toland (concerning divers foreign Libraries, and the chief MSS. in them) he told me that he could prove this MS. to be 900 years old, by ſome Notes at the ends of the Evangeliſts, which ſhew it to have been written A. D. 805. to which I could in no wiſe conſent, becauſe I ſaw the Hand was far newer than that Time. Afterwards, when I ſaw Mr. Toland again, he confeſſed that his Memory had failed him as to the Antiquity of the book, inaſmuch as Cormac Mac Carthaig (or the Smith's ſon) was not killed A. D. 805· but A. D. 905. ſo that the Book was but 800 years old : but to this I could not aſſent, for the reaſon above mentioned.

Among the Reguli whoſe Names appear in the ſaid Notes, I found (fol. 60.) mention of Tairdelbach hua Briain (or Tirlough o Brian) but could not eaſily believe that this was that Prince, (mentioned by O Flaherty) who died A. D. 1086. becauſe in my eie the Hand ſeemed yet newer. I therefore reſolved to ſatisfie myſelf about its Antiquity ; becauſe if I could aſcertain the Date, it would be a Standard to judge of other Books by. The Reſult of this Enquiry will appear lower, and the Proofs ſhall be brought forth, whereupon I ground my opinion, That this Book was written in or about the year 1139.

2. " En vieux caracteres Saxons." The Father was miſtaken here : for theſe Old Letters are not Saxon, but IRISH. I ſuppoſe his having ſeen ſome of our Saxon Printed Books, & a few Specimens of Saxon Hands in Pere Mabillon's Diplomatique, made him take them for Saxon. For there is ſomewhat of a reſemblance between the antient Iriſh & the Saxon writing in many Letters; both coming from the ſame Font, to wit, the Roman.

3. " Le Copiſte, qui étoit un Moine Benedictin," It doth not appear by the Book, that the Scribe or Copiſt was a Benedictine Monk.

4. " Prend le nom de Dom Ælbrigte." He doth doth take that Name ; but wrote himſelf Mæl-Brigte, (about which, more in due time) but the Father not knowing how to diſtinguiſh the Iriſh words, thought that the Prepoſition do with m the firſt Letter of the next word, would make a very good Title, and the reſt would be Ælbrigte of courſe ; which, by the way, was no Name amongſt our Engliſh-Saxons that I knew of, And here the Father might better have remembered that 800 years ago, Domnvs was a Title not ſo much appropriated to the Benedictines, as it is now ; ſince, at that time, & before, & after, great Perſonages in the State as well as in the Church, even Emperors & Popes, were ſaluted Domni.

5. " Et il ajoute à la fin de ſon Exemplaire pluſieurs lignes en Language Saxon." Theſe Lines (which are now but thirteen in Number, the reſt being eraſed) are not in the Saxon Language, but IRISH. I ſuppoſe the Father believing the Hand to be Saxon, thought the Language ſo too.

6. —" avec quelques Notes Marginales, qui compoſent une Eſpece de petite Chaine recüellie de S. Hilaire, S. Ambroiſe, de S. Jerôme, de S. Auguſtin, de Gennadius, et ce me ſemble de Bede." I am afraid that if any body ſhould come hither to ſearch (upon the good Father's words) for material or curious quotations from any of the Gennadij ; that he will go near to loſe his Labour. For in the Iriſh or more antient Hand, I have hitherto found nothing of any Gennadius: although in the Newer or Engliſh hand I meet with the Name Gennadius five times, viz. at foll. 28. 122. b. 130. 130. b. & 145. and perhaps ſome of the Notes entered by the ſame newer hand may have been taken from the ſame ignoble Writer. The beſt of theſe his notes (in my Opinion) is the firſt, and that is indifferent enough in all conſcience. It is upon the words, Nónne duo paſſeres aſſe vœneunt; Matth. x. 29. Here, in the bottom of the Page, comes the learned Note. As nominativus, aſſis genitivus. GENNADIVS, Aſſis, nummus parvus. Idem, paulo poſt, hic as, hujus aſſis, dimedia pars denarij. ſc. obolus. Inſtead of this Gennadius (who ever he was) the Father might better have added Gregory the Great, of whom here are many Places of his Homilies, marked with the common Mark for his Name $\overline{gg}$. Priſcian who is cited, fol. 22. b. Leo, cited fol. 22. b. & perhaps at fol. 55. Cyprian, cited fol. 21. b. Iſidore, cited fol. 13. 21. 39. b. & 54 b. Euſebius, cited fol. 4. b. & perhaps, fol. 24. b. Origen, cited fol. 7. b. fol. 10. & 10. b. and above Mancanus or Manchanus, if that was his Name (for he is denoted by theſe Marks, $\overline{m}$, $\overline{ma}$, $\overline{man}$,) cited fol. 20. b. 44. b. & 49. in both which laſt pages he mixeth Iriſh with his Latin: fol. 47. b. 48. 48. b. 49. 49. b. 50. 52. b. 53. 54. 55. b. 56. and perhaps elſewhere, eſpecially in ſuch places where the Bookbinder hath cut too cloſe. As for St. Hilary, I can find as little of him as of Gennadius.

7. "—de BEDE, qui eſt indiqué par la ſeule Lettre B. comme S. Jerôme eſt indique par la Lettre H." If the Father wrote this to ſhew his Sagacity, it might have been ſpared for a better occaſion. Becauſe in citing Bede, the writer uſeth theſe abbreviations, beſides the b, viz. $b\bar{e}$ as fol. 8. b. 27. b. 37. 40. b. 61. b. 62. 63. 87. &c. bea fol. 12. b. 13. b. &c. and even his Name at length beaꝺa. fol 26. b. 30. & I think, elſewhere. The ſame method is taken in expreſſing St. Hierom; as beſides the Single letter h, we find IR fol. 62 62. b. & 64. hiꝛ occurs very often as in fol. 2. 4. &c. and this becauſe the annotator when he wrote his own words, wrote him thus at length, hiꝛonimuꝰ as appeareth by fol. 2. lin. 2.

8. As to the Impertinence of the Notes, I ſhall not now meddle. Nor do I underſtand what the Father means when he ſaith——"ſont apparemment du Compilateur, & viennent de deux mains; car les unes ſot en caracteres Saxons, et les autres en caracteres Latins." I will only obſerve that the Letters he again calls Saxon, are IRISH; and that thoſe he calls Latin, are ENGLISH, or an Engliſh Hand. Nor is it unuſual to find things written by Iriſh-men in Engliſh Hands. I have ſeen divers things written even in the Iriſh Tongue, in Engliſh Hands: and have found that in divers Ages the Welſh & Corniſh have uſed the Engliſh Hand of the Times then preſent, when they wrote in their own Language.

9. "Mais l' Auteur n'eſt pas toujours heureux dans ſes Explications." Par exemple ſur ex puplicanis car c'eſt ainſi qu'i lit au lieu de publicanis, &c." The writing of Puplicani for Publicani, was according to the corrupt uſage which crept in about the time of the Lower Roman Empire; ſome of the Relicks of which uſage continue to this day. As for the Marginal note "Publicani a Puplo Rege &c." (fol. 3.) After the multitudes that I have ſeen in MSS. of other Nations, even of the French, which have been to the full as groſs as this: I can eaſily forgive it, and alſo ſuſpect that it was tranſcribed from ſome other Book.

Num. 1802.

10. "Les Saxons, autrement les Anglois-Saxons prononcoient apparemment puplicains, au lieu de publicains. I am afraid that this is more than the learned father Simon can prove. For, in the Anglo-Saxon Goſpels where we have their own words, we find Publicanuꝰ, Matth. x. 3. and Publicanum Luc. v. 27. although they for the moſt part rendered it by man-ꝑul or man-ꝑulla; and ſometimes by beoꝛ-ꝛpiniȝ. as Luc. xix. 2. I think I need not mention many very antient Copies of the Goſpels written by Engliſh-Saxons in divers Centuries, wherein I have conſtantly found Publicanuꝰ, becauſe here his aſſertion muſt be applied to the Iriſh; who with the Roman Letters, retained the corrupt way of writing Latin, which obtained not only in the times of the Saints Palladius & Patric, but long both before & after them. Thus in Gruters Inſcriptions, we find many words where P is corruptly put for B: as, for inſtance, pag. 150. no. 6. (vet. Edit.) in the word POPLICO for PVBLICO. And the word PUPLICUS for PUBLICUS is extant in ſo many books written in France, Italy, Germany, &c. as is needleſs, and indeed would be too tedious here to enumerate.

11. "Néanmoins dans le Texte de Saint Matthieu on lit publicani, —— Publicani qui publica, &c." Tis ſtrange that the Learned Father ſhould be out here: for the place he ſpeaks of, is in fol. 24. lin. 15. (i. e. Matth. ix. 10.) where any body may ſee the words pupliceam & puplica. I ſay no more.

12. As to the compariſon of the Four Evangeliſts to Four Liquors (at. fol. 9.) I can ſcarce believe it to be particular to this Book, or of the Scribes Invention; although I do not think it worth the while to ſearch whence he might have taken it; or the following Compariſons (which perhaps might have been mentioned if the Father had read a little farther) viz. to the Four Elements; to the Four Seaſons of the Year; with the following Concluſion, His quatuor Temporibus, Annus Domini acceptabilis cum duodeno Apoſtolorum numero, quaſi duodecim Menſibus completur." Becauſe I can remember ſome other Compariſons made by Great Men: as thoſe of Irenæus. to the Four Quarters of the World; the Four Winds; Four Pillars; and (what he took from Ezek. i. 10. & Revel. iv 17. being therein followed by Hierome, Sedulius, & others,) the Four Animals; nor Ven. Bedes Rings, & Wheels; nor the many different Repreſentations I have ſeen of them in old Books.

13. "Pour ce qui eſt des Caracteres Saxons dans leſquels ces iv Evangi les ſont écrits, ils ſont treſbeaux." I grant the Firſt Hand to be well enough; but no rarity. At the ſame time I take leave to ſay, that I have ſeen numbers of Saxon MSS. (which the Father here doth not mean) and many Books written in Ireland (where this Book was written) ſo far exceeding it with reference to the beauty of the Hand, as that it will not bear a Compariſon with them.

14. "Et different de ceux que le Pere Mabillon a repreſenté dan ſa Diplomatique." This is true: and might very well be, ſince Pere Mabillon in his whole Book hath not given one Specimen of IRISH writing.

15. "L'Orthographe eſt Latine, en quelques endroits differente" (I ſuppoſe here a miſtake of the Preſs, and that it ſhould have been, "L'Orthographe Latine en quelques endroits eſt differente) de celle d'aujourd'hui." This is no News to thoſe who often read in very old Latin MSS. or recenter Copies faithfully tranſcribed from them.

16. "On y confond quelque fois les Lettres o & u. On lit, par Exemple, PARABULA, DIABULUS, &c." Here, and with what follows I own I am almoſt amazed.

amazed. I could hardly have believed, that the Learned Father Simon had ſo little Experience in old MSS. as to make ſo trivial Obſervations. Surely Mr. Juſtel above mentioned muſt needs have known better: ſince he brought a good parcel of exceeding Antient & Valuable Manuſcripts into England, part whereof do now adorn the Bodleyan Library at Oxford; and others I have ſeen in private Hands: among which books I have ſeen this change of o for u often enough. The truth is, this was one particular of the corrupt way of ſpelling Latine (whereof Caſſidore & others complain) It frequently occurs in old Inſcriptions, and (as I remember) in all the very old Latin Books that I ever ſaw.

17. "Les Diphtongues etoient en uſage dés ces tems-là parmi ces Saxons, car on trouve æ & e." Here I ſuppoſe another Typographical error, and that e (which is another way of expreſſing æ) is meant by the laſt Letter. To be ſure the Diphthong æ expreſſed conjunctly by wayof Jugation or Monogram, was uſed by the Saxons when they wrote Latin or Saxon with Roman Letters; and ſometimes alſo when they wrote with Runic Letters. Now the IRISH had the ſame Pattern to follow as the Saxons had, namely the Roman Writing, wherein the Diphthong Æ did often appear, as is plain by their Books, & the Marble Inſcriptions.

18. "Et ce qui merite encore plus d'étre obſervé, c'eſt que la Lettre H—y eſt écrite en effet ſur des certains mots au deſſus des Lettres, comme on marque les Eſprits dans la langue Greque."—Really, this is no new diſcovery, though not mentioned by Mabillon, as I can ſee. They are commonly ſeen in Latin Books of great Age. Thus, many years ago, finding the ſame Letter or Spirit ⊦ in our Saxon MSS, I took occaſion in my printed Catalogue of Anglo-Saxon MSS. (pag. 156.) to mention the way of writing ⊦ for h, which I think I ſufficiently ſhewed to be antient. I alleged the Authority of almoſt all the antient Grammarians whoſe works are in Print, and would take up too much room to have cited particularly; from Iſidore of Sevil, who as to this Mark, gave the antient uſage; from Aulus Gellius, who is ſaid to have flouriſhed in the beginning of the Second Century; and from Quinctilian who is affirmed to have written in the Firſt. And this is high enough I think: unleſs people will ſet me upon diſcourſing of the Greek Spirits & Accents; which perhaps I may be able (when occaſion ſhall offer) to run up higher. Now the Aſper Spirit ⊦ being uſed by the Romans from whom the IRISH received their Letters: no wonder if the Iriſh retained it. And indeed they did, and do ſtill retain it in common uſe, only deviating in the Figure: for in their old MSS. they draw it right ⊦, but in their modern MSS. & Printed Books, for more eaſe & conveniency, they expreſs it thus · by a point only, the Force & Sound being the ſame.

19. "Des ces deux figures jointes enſemble ⊦ & ⊣, a été formée nôtre Letter H." This I doubt very much. Every body knows that H is a Roman Letter and that the Roman Letters were derived from the Greek. Now why may not theſe two Spirits ⊦ & ⊣ have been derived from the Greek Η, from whence the Roman H ſeemeth to have had its Original? This indeed may look ſomewhat New: but let us try a little. In the late Dr. Edward Bernard's Sheet of Alphabets, publiſhed at Oxford A. D. 1688. (wherein ſome things are done with good Judgement) in the Oldeſt Greek or Ionian Alphabet, we find the Poteſtas of Η to be h, c, & ch. In Gruters Inſcriptions (vet. Edit. pag. 27.) we have the forms of the Oldeſt Greek Characters, as they were found engraven on two Pillars in the Appian Way, which were afterward carried to the Farneſian Gardens. Here (among divers other Letters borrowed of the Greeks by the Romans) we find the Letter Η in full poſſeſſion of the power of the Aſper Spirit, as in the words HO ὁ: HODOI ὁδῷ: HERODO Ἡρώδου: ENHODIA formerly (as it ſhould ſeem) written ἐνὸδία: & HOI οἱ. This is ſo antient as to precede the Invention or Diſtinction of Long & Short Vowells among the Greeks. Joſeph Scaliger in his Animadverſions upon Euſebius (Edit, 1658 pag. 110.) gives a Copie of theſe Inſcriptions, with very learned Notes, from whence I ſhall borrow a few lines. "Exemplum tibi damus priſcarum Ionicarum Literarum, quas Herodotus ſimiles Phœnicijs eſſe dixit.—Atqui Herodotus tanquam rem vetuſtiſſimam narrans, ſe in quibuſdam locis Literas Ionicas vidiſſe ſcribit, quæ Phœnicijs ſimillimæ eſſent.—et pag 113. HTA—olim fuit ἠῶτμον apud priſcos Jonas, ut hodie H apud Latinos, fungens Aſpirationis munere.—— Sed tamen idem poteſt dici de HTA Epiſemo Ionico, quamdiu ipſa Aſpirationis tantum nota fungebatur; ut hactenus Latini, & Iones ſolum E tam pro Longo quam Brevi habuerint.—Igitur quæ prius erat Aſpirationis nota καὶ ἐπισημον duntaxat, ea cœpit eſſe Litera, quod dictum eſt ἦτα ἀντίστοιχον τῷ Ε; hoc eſt, oppoſitum τῷ Ε μικρῷ. Eſt enim E longum.— Sed quemadmodum ſublata confuſione Longæ & Brevis E, multum lucis et Lectioni et Orthographiæ acceſſit: ita, quæ antea erat commoditas Aſpirationis, hac novatione ſublata eſt. Quia vero HEKATON pro ἑκατον ſcribebant, propterea H veteribus, erat nota Centenarij numeri." I remember that Bernard Montfalcon in his Palæographia, exibits the above-mentioned Inſcriptions,* with ſome others of the like† Antiquity & Characters; together with his ‡Obſervations to this Purpoſe: but not having the Book now by me. I can only mention it.‖

H — olim — pro aſpiratione tantum uſu veniebat; atque tam correptum quam extenſum, per E expreſſum obſervatur in Ionicis Inſcriptionibus, οὐ γὰρ Η ἰχθύμεθα, ἀλλὰ Ε τὸ παλαιὸν inquit in Cratylo, &c. pag. 129.

Plato utique in Cratylo narrat H pro E expreſſum antiquitus fuiſſe; ita ut diceretur ἡμίρα pro ἡμέρα. Scio dixiſſe quoque Platonem H etiam per I pronuntiatum olim. Verum quid inde? niſi Vocalem H, nec E, nec I, quoad ſonum valuiſſe, ſed aliud munus in vocalibus expleviſſe: quod nos ultro fatemur: alias enim fruſtra invectum fuiſſet H, ſi eundem ipſum quem E aut I ſonum habuiſſet —Sonum quippe ut et literæ nomen antiquitus ſervabant Græci: ſiquidem Phœnices & Syri HETHA, quemadmodum et priſci Græci, ut liquet ex ſupradictis. pag. 139.

"H litera tanquam ſonus magis ſit quam litera, & accidens literæ . . . . (Male diſſimulant editi lacunam hic ſubeſſe) Et utuntur auctoritate Græcorum, apud quos ut ſupervacua ſublata eſt. Fuiſſe tamen & apud illos, manifeſtum eſt ex veteribus ſcriptis, & ex eo quod hodie, quum apud illos Numeri prima ſemper litera nominis, quo ſignificantur, notentur, ut δέκα Δ, πεντήκοντα Π, ſic HEKATON, H notetur. Unde apparet hanc literam loco aſpirationis non fuiſſe: alioquin per E notaretur." Diſſert. de priſc. Græc. & Lat. literis, in fine Palæograph. pag. 566. col. b.

Ezech. Spanhem. de Præſt. & Uſu Num.

Num. 1802.

By what is above written, it may appear, that the H had the Sound of the Aſper Spirit, and being with other Greek Letters borrowed by the Romans, continued to have the ſame Poteſtas among them in all ages, as it doth among us to this day, in as much as our Anceſtors borrowed the Roman Letters. But among the Greeks, the matter went otherwiſe; for in proceſs of time, when certain of the Greek Vowels were diſtinguiſhed into long & ſhort, the Letter E which before had been uſed both as long & ſhort, was now to be uſed as a Short Vowel only: and the H which before was no Vowel, was for the future to denote the Longer E. After this, it may be eaſily conceived that the Loſs of the Aſpirate was apparent, and that therefore the Grammarians dividing the H, applied the Right half of it ⊦ to ſuch Letters where an Aſpirate was neceſſary, and the Left half or ⊣ where no ſuch Sound was required; or where the ⊦ might have been put in a wrong place. This I think may ſuffice to ſhew, that in all probability, the Spirits ⊦ & ⊣ were taken from H, & not H from them.

The remaining part of the Chapter not relating to the Book in hand, I forbear any conſideration upon it.

So far with regard to Father Simon & his Remarks on this Book: Now I ſhall proceed to give ſome ſhort account of it, waving thoſe few particulars which have been obſerved by him. It beginneth thus,

1. Orditur Prologus Canonum quatuor Evangeliorum decem minuationibus, vel articulationibus diſtinctorum. fol. 2. lin. 1. quos Hironimus Damaſo flagitante, conſtruxit. 1.
Incip. "Novum opus facere me cogis."
In this Page, and in divers others that follow, ſome of the Notes are raſed off the Parchment:
2. Argumentum Evangelij Matthei. 3.
Incip. "Matheus ex Judeis."
Nota in ſuperiore margine. Argumenta dicuntur quæ cauſas oſtendunt, et ex brevitate Sermonum Senſum. Argumentum nunquam Teſtibus, nunquam Tabulis dat probationem, ſed ſola inveſtigatione invenit veritatem. Argumentum argutum inventum: Argumentatio argutæ mentis ratio.
3. Genealogia D. N. J. C. ſive Initium Evangelij ſecundum Matthæum; cum Notis. 3. b.
This is written ſeparately from the reſt of the Goſpel, and amongſt other Prefaces; as being looked upon but as a Preface. I have ſeen other antient Copies of the Evangeliſts, written in Ireland, or coming from Books written by Iriſh men, wherein, although this Sacred Genealogy was not rejected, or miſplaced, there would nevertheleſs appear a great diſtinction between it, and what followed; the words X̄pi autem Generatio being illuminated again, as if the Goſpel had begun there.
4. De Interpretatione Ebraicorum nominum. 4 b.
This is an Explication of ſuch Names as occur in the Goſpels, as well Syriac as Hebrew; perhaps taken from St. Hierom.
5. Gloſſariolum quoddam Hebræo-Latino-Hybernicum. 5. b.
6. Two Notes; the former ſaid to be taken from Gregory; the latter (which follows) from St. Hierom, "Augeant Sacerdotes Scientiam magis quam divitias; et non erubeſcant diſcere a Laicis qui noverant quæ ad officium pertinent Sacerdotum." This, perhaps, may be one of the Notes called Impertinent by Father Simon. The truth is, in looking into St. Hierom's Works I could not find it: But the Father doth ſay, on different occaſions, what may be almoſt tantamount,
7. The Prologue or Preface commonly put before St. Mark, beginning thus, Marcus Evangeliſta Dei. 6.

Num. 1802.

Of this, Eraſmus in his Index Operum Divi Hieronymi, ſaith, "Non eſt Hieronymi, licet ſit erudita; apparet è Græco verſam; et in vetuſtiſſimis Codicibus Manuſcriptis non erat aſſcriptum Hieronymi nomen."

8. The Preface commonly put before S. Luke, beginning thus, Lucas Syrus natione. 6. b.
Of this Eraſmus ſaith, "Ipſa ſatis arguit ab Interprete, non optimo, verſam eſſe e Græco; ſicuti docuimus pleniùs Tom. III." 51.
9. The Preface frequently written before S. John's Goſpell, beginning, "Hic eſt Johannes." 7. b.
Eraſmus writes of this, & the former, "Falſo inſcribitur Hieronymo, cujus nomen non erat aſſcriptum in vetuſtiſſimis Codicibus, quemadmodum nec in ſuperiore."
10. Notes taken from Gregory, Bede, & Hierom. 8. b.
11. Notes, wherein the Goſpels, or the Writers of them, are compared to Liquors, Elements, &c. abovementioned by me (§ 12.) 9.
12. An old Iriſh Poem concerning the Twelve Apoſtles. 9. b.
13. The Goſpel of St. Matthew (beginning at "Criſti autem generatio") with a ſort of Interlineary Gloſs, and a Catena Patrum. 10.
I was, at firſt, ſomewhat of opinion that this Catena was not taken from the Authors themſelves, but from Claudius Preſbyter's Comment on Matthew, where many places which I had read in this Catena are to be found, as being taken from the ſame Authors (Not to mention that Claudius is by divers learned men deemed to have been an Iriſhman by birth, and therefore was called Scotvs). Part of the Account this Claudius gives of his Work (which is not yet in Print, and the written Exemplars ſo rare, that I know of but two or three in England) is this, in his Preface to Juſtus the Abbat.——"Cumq; ad aliud ſcribendum, ex præcedenti jam tempore mea teneretur Voluntas, ad id quod juſſeras meam continuo ſtudui dirigere voluntatem, et Evangelium ſecundum Matthæum ex opuſculis Sanctorum Patrum; licet non ad purum (quod etiam difficile eſt fieri) tamen ut valui inquirere atq; explanare conatus ſum, ex tractatibus Doctorum & Majorum noſtrorum, qui nos in ſtudio hujus Operis, ſicut Scientia ita et Tempore præceſſerunt: Id eſt, Origenis, Hylarij, Ambroſij, Ieronimi, Auguſtini, Rufini, Johannis, Fulgentij, Leonis, Maximi, Gregorij, & Bedæ.—multis etiam in locis, ubi horum defuit Senſus vel Verba, hoc utcunque valuit, explere ſtuduit mea Paupertas.—legat et alios ipſius Evangelij Latinos expoſitores Hylarium et Fortunatum; et juxta Hyſtoriæ ordinem omnis ſenſùs Phyſicos, Allegoricos, atq; etiam Ethicos requirat diligenter ad purum, et tunc noſſe poterit utrum Ego otioſe an devote, ſuperflue an neceſſarie, in hoc opere laboraverim."—but what convinced me to the contrary, was the conſiderations, 1. Here are paſſages of Claudius's Authors, either not cited by him, or at leaſt cited in different words. 2. Here are many Quotations from Authors not uſed by Claudius, namely from Manchanus (more of whom preſently, God willing). 3. The ſame ſort of Catena in the ſame older Hand, extendeth itſelf to the beginnings of Mark & Luke, upon which Claudius wrote nothing that I can find.
I have obſerved that the ſame Paſſages cited by Claudius & by the compiler of this Catena, do differ: I ſhall now give, one Inſtance of many, of the difference in a Paſſage as cited in this Catena, & as extant in Print; being St. Hierom's Note on the words et lunaticos, Matth. iv. 24.

Num. 1802.

MS. Catena.

b. Non vere lunaticos, ſed qui putabantur lunatici, ob demonum fallaciam; qui demones lunaria tempora obſerbabant creaturam infamare ut in Creatorem inducerent blasfemiam.

Here is a great difference in the latter part of the Citation; wherein the Printed book ſeemeth to me to be much more accurate than this MS. and if this Print be juſtified by written Books older than this Catena, I ſhall believe them to be of better Authority than this. And ſo in other places.

14. The Goſpel of St. Mark (with a Picture of a Lion before it, made by one who never ſaw the Creature) beginneth at fol. 61.
The little Catena above mentioned, goes no farther than ſeven pages.

15. The Goſpel of St. Luke (with a rude picture of an Ox before it) 87.
The old Catena at the beginning of this Goſpel breaks off after two Leaves.

16. St. John's Goſpel (deſtitute of an Eagle, as St Matthew's of an Angel) beginneth at fol. 128.
This hath no Catena in the antient Iriſh hand; and endeth with fol. 156.
Before I diſmiſs this antient Iriſh Hand, I take Leave to obſerve that the writer of the Notes in fol. 7. lin. antepenult. calls St. Luke lucanur, according to the antient Cuſtom of the Iriſh; and of many of our antient Engliſh Saxons, who derived their Learning from them. I have ſeen divers antient Copies of the Goſpells, where the ſame name hath occurred: and ſpoken at large concerning it in my deſcription of the Cottonian Goſpels NERO D. 4. Printed in Dr. Hickes's Theſaurus.

In the Notes written in the Newer & Engliſh Hand, I find cited,

1. S. Hierom. as at fol. 1. 1. b. &c.
2. Gregorius Magnus; as fol. 27. 45. b. 96. &c.
3. The Miſſal; as at fol. 137. b.
4. The Breviary; at fol. 103. b.
5. Capitulare Arrovaſienſe. ibid.
6. Johannes Beleth (who is ſaid to have flouriſhed about A. D. 1162.) ibid.
7. Hiſtoria Scholaſtica of Petrus Comeſtor, who died A. D. 1198. fol. 153. b.
8. Galfridus Babion, or Babienſis; who made a Gloſs upon S. Matthew, & perhaps upon the other Evangeliſts. fol. 39. 81. 105. b. 115. b. 124. b. 154. &c.
9. Gennadius. fol. 28. 122. b. 130. 130. b. 145. & perhaps at fol. 45. This man ſeemeth to have been a mere Grammarian.
10. There are ſome Notes ſhewing the Leſſons to be read in the Church; as at fol. 34. 34. b. &c.
The Perſon who wrote theſe more modern Notes, hath often raſed off the Old Notes, that he might put the Number of the Chapters in their place, as at fol. 12. b. 14. 15. 18. b. 20. b. &c.
Sometimes the ſaid old Marginal Notes have been raſed off, upon other Occaſions, as fol. 28. 31. b. &c.
I have before mentioned MANCHANUS as one of the Authors who makes the little Catena upon St. Matthew. He is cited under the Marks m̄ & mā̄ & mān̄, And plainly appeareth to have been an Iriſhman by his Notes, ſome of which are partly in the Iriſh Tongue (as in the lower Margin of fol. 49. & other places) As to his Opinions, it ſeemeth that he thought as other Chriſtians of his Time & Nation did; and therefore could not believe in Tranſubſtantiation. Thus for Example, he writes (fol. 54.) "Primo quæritur ſi hæc aſſumptio Panis et Calicis, Figura, an Hiſtoria, an Senſus? Figura eſt; fractio enim Panis figurat Corpus ejus fractum a Militibus in Cruce; et in omnibus Sanctis iteratur Paſſio ejus dum patiuntur, a Criſto uſque ad finem Mundi; ſed tamen non ut fiebant Figuræ Legis quæ ceſſaverunt: hæc vero Figura codidie iteratur," &c. (which laſt words relate to the Cuſtome of Receiving the Holy Euchariſt daily; a Cuſtome that prevailed in other Churches beſide that of Ireland). Mr. Toland told me, that this Manchanus was a Monk, or religious Perſon, living in or near the Town of Monaghan in Ireland, which in Latin, he ſaid, was called Monaca. Indeed if a conjecture of mine upon one of his Notes be right, he ſhould have been an Anchorite or Culdee, as many of the Old Iriſh Saints and learned Men were; for upon theſe Words of Matth. XXIV. 26. (pag. 49.) "Si ergo dixerint vobis Ecce in Deſerto eſt," he writeth thus, fol. 48. b. "Si autem dixerint, & reliqua: ecce in Deſerto, id eſt, ut fiunt Anchoritæ." Mr. Toland (I think) ſaid farther, that he had read ſome account of him in Boſton of Bury, a MS. of which he ſaw in a Library at Lovain; and of which we have but one antient MS. and one modern tranſcript of it, in England, both in private hands; ſo that I can, at preſent, ſay nothing to it. I have however made ſome Enquiry after him; the reſult whereof is, that I find none that certainly have ſeen any of his Works; nor do I find any of his Works, that is, ſuch as are certainly known to have been his, any where extant, but only ſo much as is preſerved in this individual Book.

Hieron. in Matth.

Non vere lunaticos, ſed qui putabantur Lunatici, ob dæmonum fallaciam; qui obſervantes Lunaria tempora, creaturam infamare cupiebant, ut in Creatorem blaſphemiæ redundarent.

The Notes which I thought might relate to him, are theſe, Waræus de Scriptor. Hibern. Dubl. 1689. Lib. 1. pag. 27. "Henricus Fitz-Simon MANCHINANUM authorem aſſerit Libri De Mirabilibus Scripturæ, qui extat in Tomo III. Operum S. Auguſtini, cui etiam perperam a quibuſdam tribuitur. MANCHINUM intelligit opinor, de quo Annales Ultonienſes ad ann. 651. (qui nobis eſt 652.) Dormitatio Manchin Abbatis Maonadroiot. Et Tigernatus ad eundem annum, Dormitatio Mancene Abbatis Menedrocaid. In libro eo de Mirabilibus Scripturæ, fit mentio temporis Obitûs MANICHÆI Sapientis Hibernienſis, MANCHINI (ut opinor) noſtri: non abhorret Nomen, et tempora exactè conveniunt. Unde, MANCHINO (vel MANCHINANO) Authori perperam tribui non poſſum non autumare".

In a MS. formerly belonging to Sir James Ware, and now in the Library of the Honorable James Brydges Eſq; Vol. XXXIX. in a Catalogue of Iriſh Saints, toward the end, is this Note. Manchinus ob. 2. Januarij A. D. 652.

In the ſame Book, in a Calendar, at IANVAR. II. is the following Iriſh Note, Manchine airce I. abaĩ fil. hillaicheis (i lais) ĩ artair Laigen 7 airer a bann, 7 ab eo nominatus. Juxta illum Eccleſia conſtructa eſt. 1. Diſert meic c lurn, nomen ejus Scoithune .i. Tig. Scoth hi Slewmarge.

In Philip O Sullevan's Hiſtoricæ Catholicæ Iberniæ compendium, fol. 45. b. in the Calendar of Iriſh Saints, is "IAN. 1. S. Münchinus." The ſame is alſo in Sir James Ware's Book, now in the poſſeſſion of the Honble. James Brydges Eſq; Vol. XLIV.

Theſe ſeem to relate pretty well to one perſon. The following Note ſeems to belong to another.

A MS. in Mr. Brydges's Library, Vol. XXIX. being Collections from the Ulſter Annals. fol. 26.

Monchinus Diſcipulus S. Dertani (ut in Vita Dertani habetur) Epiſcopus Limericenſis.

I find yet mention of one MANCENUS, who was contemporary with St. Patric. Jocelinus de Furneſio, Cap. 59. of his Life of St. Patric (as printed in Thom. Meſſingham's Florilegium) hath theſe words, —"MANCENUM virum Religioſum, et optime in Scripturis Sanctis exercitatum."—Which are alſo cited by the moſt learned Primate Uſher, in his Brit. Eccleſ. Antiq. Dublin 1639. pag. 864.

The ſame Author in his Index Chronologicus to the book laſt mentioned, A. D. 434.—"Patricius—duodecim hominum milia ad fidem Chriſti converſiſſe, et Septem filios Regis Amalgithi uno die baptizaviſſe, populoq; noviter converſo magiſtrum MANCENUM præfeciſſe, memoratur" (i. e. by the above-written Joſceline of Furnes.)

In the ſame Book, pag. 969. are theſe words, "S. Lugido ſive Molvæ, qui Gregorio I. Romanum Pontificatum adminiſtrante obijt, ſuperſtites fuiſſe in Vita ejus memorantur, Cronanus, in Inſula Cre tunc habitans, S. Scellanus—& vir ſanctus & ſapiens nomine Manchenus." And then returning again to our MANCHANUS, he thus proceedeth, "A Richardo Armachano Archiepiſcopo ſcripta eſſe dicitur Vita Sancti Manchani ſeptem Eccleſiarum patroni, Canonici Regularis D. Auguſtini; qui exemplo ſuæ ſanctitatis multos ex varijs Hiberniæ partibus ad Chriſti fidem convertit; ubi per ipſum primò ædificatum eſſe traditur Monaſterium Canonicorum Regularium de Mohill apud Monterolis; cui dotatæ, donatæ, dedicatæ ſunt multæ & variæ glebæ, terræ, feudi, vaſallæ, decimæ, primitiæ, reditus, fructus, proventus, oblationes, &c. quæ omnia & ſingula cum conſenſu Cleri & Populi rata & confirmata ſunt, & in omni tempore & ætate, ab anno ſexcenteſimo octavo (quo floruit S. Manchanus) Prioribus Monaſterij de Mohill ſponte, liberè, & piè conferuntur & dotantur." Archbiſhop Uſher goes on with ſome other citations from the Ulſter Annals, &c. which being taken notice of before, I ſhall here omit.

So far with relation to MANCHANUS, who is frequently cited in the Catena upon St. Matthew's Goſpel, as is above mentioned. It now remaineth that I ſay ſomewhat touching the Antiquity of this Exemplar, which is beſt to be known by the Notes written at the end of each of the Goſpels. But theſe being written, for the greateſt part in the Iriſh Tongue, I procured a Tranſlation of them from Mr. Toland, which he readily gave me from the book itſelf. I afterward ſhewed this Tranſlation to one Mr. Conry an Iriſh-man then in England, who had ſome knowledge of the Antient Iriſh, & having compared Mr. Toland's Verſion with the MS. did not altogether approve thereof, but at my Requeſt gave me another Verſion of the ſame words: both which Verſions follow,

In fine Matthæi. fol. 60.

Oꝺ̃ do Mælbꝛigte 4 ſcꝛibꝛit h̃c libꝛu̇.—
ꝺS móꝛ mg̃n̄m Coꝛmc m̃c Caꝛtħaig ꝺo maꝛbaꝺ o Taꝛꝺelbach ·h· bꝛiam.—

Mr. John Toland's Verſion.

Orate pro Brigidiano (Maol-Brigdte) qui ſcripſit hunc librum Liſmoriae, quando Cormacus Cardaigi occidebatur à Tirdelvaco filio Briani.

Seaan o Maolcone 4 i.e. Mr. John Conry.

Oꝺ̃ do Mael bꝛigte qui ſcripſit hunc librum.
Cormacum Mac Cartheum interemptum Terdelvacho o Brian magnum eſt facinus.

Mr. Toland upon his turning Mælbꝛigte into BRIGIDIANUS, gave me this following Note.

"There are no Words that (in the Iriſh Tongue) enter oftner into the Compoſition of Proper Names than Maol and Gilla, eſpecially ſince Chriſtianity: the laſt word ſignifying Slave, and the firſt Retainer. In the Times of Learning, the Iriſh knew how to render theſe into Latin, tho they afterwards forgot it. Thus Maol-Muire is Marianus, Gilla-Crioſd Chriſtianus; Maol Brigdte Brigidianus, Maol-vanaig Monachius, Gill-Eaſpuig Epiſcopius, Gilla-Coluim Columbanus, &c."

Mr. Conry approved of this Note; to which I ſubjoin another in the late learned Mr. Edward Lhwyd's Archæol. Britan. Tit. x. pag. 431. "MAOL a Servant. It was antiently (out of Reverence to Saints) præfix'd to their Names in Chriſtening, as MAOL-COLUIM St. Columbus's Servant, MAOL-SEACHLUIN, St. Secundin's &c. In the ſame manner as GILA (now written GIOLLA) in GILACHOLUM, GILABRI, GILA-PHADRUICE, GILEON, GILEOZAIN, &c."

Mr. Toland tranſlated the two firſt words of the ſecond Line LISMORIÆ, ſuppoſing it to ſignifie the Town or City of Liſmore; and that the Principal Letter L was left out in order to its being entred at large, and with a different Color by the Illuminator. To this Mr. Conry ſaid, that the Words are ſignificative as they are, and without any relation to Liſmore: and that there are two Sentences in the three Lines, as may be plainly perceived by the punctuation; the firſt Line being an intire Sentence of itſelf. To this I beg leave to add, that lately in the Honble. Mr. Brydges's Library, in divers of his Iriſh MSS. I have ſeen the ſame words written in the ſame manner, at the beginning of Paragraphs, when I have ſuppoſed the Subject could have no relation to Liſmore. In the Iriſh MS. of this Library N° 432. being an antient Tranſcript of the Book of Cloin, in Munſter, with a Collection of Laws, as Mr. Conry told me; the word ꝺS ſo written, beginneth very many Paragraphs, the next word (like that above) being always written in a ſmaller hand: and in fol. 12. 1 n. 5 or 6. I find ꝺS m̃ꝛ which comes ſomewhat near the ſame. In another of my Lord's Iriſh MSS. viz. No. 546. being a Medicinal book, in a Chapter concerning the Aſthma, fol. 30. lin. 8. I find the conteſted words written at the beginning of a Sentence in the ſame manner ꝺS móꝛ'

Mr. Toland told me that the Words above, Caꝛtħaig, which he tranſlated CARDAIGI, do not here ſignify Mac Carty a great Family in Ireland; but rather Filius Fabri, Filius Opificis, or Filius Aurifabri. But Mr. Conry was of opinion that it was the Sur-Name of a Family, and that the perſon there mentioned was properly written Cormac mac Carty.

At the end of St. Mark is this Note following, which cauſed no difference in Opinion.

Oꝺ̃ do mælbꝛigte. qui ſcꝛibꝛit h̃c libꝛ̃; fol. 86.

In fine Lucæ, fol. 12. b. is this Note,

Oꝺ̃ do mælbꝛigte 4 ſcꝛibꝛit. h. l. m xxviii. anno etatiꝛ ſuae, ꝺN ꝺaꝛa bliaꝺaī 4ꝛ̄ı gꝺetħaig móꝛ ſeı

Of which, Mr. Toland gave me the following Explication, afterwards approved by Mr. Conry.

Dominicam pro anima Scriptoris——

By what hath been above written, it appearing that Mr. Toland & Mr. Conry did not take the ſame Words of their own Language in the ſame Senſe, but differing in their Judgment both as to Time, Perſons, and Places; I will here add ſuch little paſſages as I have lately picked up here & there, as may ſeem to favour either of their Verſions; premiſing, that I might have had better Succeſs, if I could have ſeen ſome Books now in Oxford, Cambridge, & Dublin; or even have procured the late Edition of Sir James Ware's Works.

But before I bring theſe ſcattered Notes together, I think it not improper to advertiſe, that the Iriſh Office (as is likely enough to have been appertaining to St. Patric's Church at Armagh) which Mr. Toland tranſlated by PRÆPOSITUS, & Mr. Conry by VICARIUS (although here they mutually approved each others Terms) yet ſeem not to me to have been the Latin Title of the Office at that Place; but rather OECONOMUS, or ſome ſuch word. Thus, I find in ſome Collections from the Ulſter-Annals in Mr. Brydges's Library, Vol. XXIX. fol. 1. b. A. D. 837. Feirdalach (Tairdalvach?) OECONOMUS Ardmaccie obijt. In the next place, whereas Mr. Conry for filius uſed both u & o; that is no fault: for in Iriſh MSS. of different Ages I have found hudm, hud, ud, ua, & o, all uſed in the ſame Signification, although the laſt doth now moſt obtain. In like manner in Welſh MSS. I have ſeen Huab, Uab, ab, & ap, which laſt is now moſt in faſhion. Of theſe, the firſt of each ſett ſeems to come from one common Parent.

But to begin with the Proofs for Mr. Toland's Verſion, and of his Opinion that Cormac mac Carthaig (whom he will not allow to be ſo called) was killed about A. D. 909, I find,

1. A. D. 900. Cor mc clodt rigt Caſſel. 1. Cormac mc Cuilinan, written in the inſide Cover of one of the Volumes of Sir James Wares Adverſaria, now in the Library of the Honble. James Brydges Eſq.

Humfrey Lloyd's Chron. as augmented by David Powel, Lond. 1584. (NB. in Humfr. Lloyd's Original, now in the Cotton-Library, the Name is rightly written CORMAC.)
3. From the Book of Hergeſt, otherwiſe called the Book of Margan; tranſlated out of Walſh. 113. "A. D. 905. Died Cormoc King & Cheefe Buiſhop of Ireland, a verie religious man, full of Almes & good woorks. then Culennan was ſlayne." MS. Brydges Vol. XLVII.

Collectanea Thaddæi Doulingi, penes D. Jac. Brydges. Vol. xxxix.

5. A. D. 906. & 907. I found much mention of "Cormac m^{c} Culinen Ri Cassell," in the Annales Inisfallenses. fol. 86. MS. Brydges Vol. xxxvi. which I would not transcribe here, because they will be presently cited.

In all the above mentioned Citations, that Cormac is never called Mac Carthaig, as in the present MS. of my Lord's; but always the Son of Culeinan (a Name somewhat mistaken by the Welsh, & those who followed them) whereby it seemeth plain to me that Cormac mac Culeinan & Cormac mac Carthaig could not have been the same man. But Mr. Toland said they were, and that mac Carthaig was only a Sur-name applied to Cormac mac Culeinan. This I cannot well agree to, because Sir James Ware writes, that Surnames are not so antient among the Irish. " Regnante tandem supradicto Brieno (i. e. circa annum Dom. millesimum) Hibernorum Cognomina sive familiarum Nomina cœperunt esse fixa, posterisq; tradita, cum præposita vel aspiratione h, vel voce ua, quæ postea mutata est in vocalem O et significat unum e posteris viri alicujus Primarij, ut O-Brien, O-Connor, &c. Non paucæ tamen familiæ, per aliquot postea annorum Centurias (quod fatendum) fixa Cognomina non assumpserunt." War. Antiq. Hibern. pag. 45.

Num. 1802.

According to this Rule, Tirlough O Brian (as I may write him) cannot be properly ſaid to have killed Cormac mac Carty about the beginning of the Tenth Century; but the expreſſion may be agreeable enough to the Uſage about the middle of the 12th, viz. about A. D. 1140.

Moreover, in all the ſaid Citations, he is never ſaid to have been killed by a Tirlough O Brian: to this, Mr. Toland ſaith, that he can ſufficiently demonſtrate that he was killed by a Tirlough O Brian. I ſhall be glad to ſee the Proofs.

Nor can I find any mention of any of the Iriſh Kings mentioned in this MS. as Contemporaries to Cormac. Mr. Toland ſaith, he found them all, in the Ulſter Annals, Dr. Keating, & other Iriſh Chronicles, as living about A. D. 909. I ſhall be glad to ſee the ſame.

Mr. Toland ſaith that Maolbrigte who wrote the Book was Archbiſhop of Armagh in his more advanced age. Indeed, in a Liſt of thoſe Arch-biſhops, in Mr. Brydges's Library Vol. XLIV. I did find one Mælbrigidius holding that See from the year 884. to the year 913. when he was (as the Liſt ſhews) ſucceeded by Joſeph. But Mr. Toland ſaith that his Brigidianus ſat untill (as I remember) A. D. 927. then dying above 60 years of Age. In the ſame Book, I find cited from the Ulſter Annals the following paſſage.

1139. "Mælbrigti o Brolcan Epus Armac. primus optin penitentiam; obijt 4 Cal. Febr."

Thus we have each of us a Brigidianus ſuitable to our different times: but I doubt neither of theſe will do the buſineſs, becauſe Mr. Conry ſaith the Surname of the Brigidianus in my Lords MS. was O Mulveany (as may be ſeen above in the Verſion of this Note at the end of St. John's Goſpel)

Beſide the Brigidianus Arch-biſhop of Armagh; I muſt alſo own, that I have met with another Cormac the Son of Culeinan, in the Annales Inisfallenſes in Mr. Brydges's Library. "A. D. 919. Cormac mc Culinan Ep & Serv ap Liſmore & Abb. cille molaiſſe," &c. but he can do little, not only becauſe he is ſomewhat too late, but becauſe it doth not appear that he was a King, as the Iriſh uſed to call the Chiefs of their Clans who had great Dependencies.

In Roderic O Flaherty's Ogygia, & divers other books, I have found a Tordelvach O Brian. But although he was King of Munſter, I cannot allow him to have been the perſon who ſlew Cormac mac Carthaig, becauſe he (being a Prince of great Note) is known to have died about A. D. 1086.

In ſeveral Converſations I had with Mr. Toland, I perceived that the chief Argument which induced him to believe his Cormac the Son of Culeinan to be the Cormac mac Carthaig mentioned in my Lord's MS. is his having been both King & Biſhop of Munſter; characters which he would not allow ever to have met in any other Cormac than the Son of Culeinan only. Beſides, he would by no means grant that Biſhopricks were ever hereditary among the Iriſh; for then it might poſſibly happen that two Perſons of the ſame Name & Family might the one ſucceed the other in the ſame Preferment. As to this matter, I will not take upon me to determine; but will rather cite ſome few Authorities which have lately come into my way, and leave the ſame to be decided by others. Firſt it appeareth that ſome of the Iriſh were Clergy-men hereditarily, namely the Herenachæ, & the Corbæ, Corbani or Comorbani, by the account which Arch-biſhop Uſher gave of them to Sir Henry Spelman, who inſerted the ſame into his Gloſſary, at the word CORBA; from which take what follows.—

"His Terris atq; ipſis Colonis, præfectus eſt ex aſſignatione Epiſcopi Herenachus: qui et munus Eccleſiaſticorum igitur pars eſt Herenachus, ſed qui primam Tonſuram non deprehenditur tranſijſſe.—Coaleſcere jam tum cœpit Herenachus ſuo Officio, fatiſq; pro Imperio exercere in Colonos ſubjectos præſertim: dum Eccleſia (pia Domina) Natos Nepotéſq; facile ſuſciperet in parentum Miniſteria, ut Levitarum in Tabernaculi. Sic enim hæreditarium in Hibernia fit munus Herenaci, non minus quam in partibus tranſmarinis, Vice-Domini."

"CORBA eminentioris loci fuit, atq; idem qui Decanus Ruralis, Plebanus, Archi-preſbyter, ſeu Chorepiſcopus: a quo et nomen (barbara contractione) videtur ſortitus.——Munus itidem huic (Corbano) ut Herenacho gentile eſt, pueroſq; ideo ſucceſſuros Latine imbuunt, ne paternæ functionis incompetentes videantur. Nec miraberis Corbanos & Herenachos Miniſteria et patrimonium Eccleſiæ hæreditarie ingreſſos, aut ſuis fretos uxoribus: cum ipſum Archiepiſcopatum Armachanæ Eccleſiæ Primatúmq; Hiberniæ, una familia DECURSIS JAM IN HAC MALITIA (ut Bernardi utar verbis) QUASI GENERATIONIBUS QUINDECIM hæreditaria Succeſſione obtinuerint."

Of the Herenachi & Corbani, Sir James Ware in his Antiq. Hibern. above-mentioned hath theſe words,

Pag. 93.—"Mortuo aliquo Erenarcho, cæteri ejuſdem Stirpis, qui Terras eas (i. e. Termonlands) poſſederunt, talem e ſua familia ad hoc munus ſuſcipiendum elegerunt, qualem ob ætatem & mores, idoneum judicarunt. Is uxoratus plerumq; ſed qui primam habuit Tonſuram, Epiſcopo præſentatus, ab eo admiſſus eſt & confirmatus, ac ſub introitu, ſubſidium ſolvit: ſin ob juſtas aliquas rationes rejectus, alium in ejus locum elegerunt. Si diſcreparet de Electione familia, tunc ab Epiſcopo & Clero electus eſt Erenarchus, at ex eadem ſtirpe. Si porro Stirps ea deficeret, tunc ab Epiſcopo & Clero, ad munus illud ſubeundum, alia electa eſt familia, ſub conditionibus olim uſitatis."

Pag. 91. "Cæterum hoc loco, loquimur tantum de Comorbanis, qui Laici fuerunt et plerúmq; uxorati, licet ex ijs aliqui improprie appellabantur Abbates, et alij Priores. Illis eorúmque Familijs aſſignatæ ſunt Terræ quædam liberæ, vulgo Termonlands dictæ."

Here by the way, I am doubtful whether (as Sr. James ſaith) the Comorbani were Lay-men & improperly called Abbats or Priors; becauſe in the Annals of Ulſter with Mr. Brydges Vol. XLIX. at the year 1129. I find theſe words, "Kellagh Coarb Patricke, Cheiſe & Archbuſhop of the Weſt of Europe—died in the 24th yeare of his Abbotſhip, & in the 50th year of his Age—Murtagh Mc Donell choſen in Patricks Coarbſhip." (Qu. whether this is not the Office mentioned in the laſt line but two of my Lord's MS. & above in this Catalogue, in the Note concerning the Iriſh Office appertaining to St. Patrick's Church at Armagh.

But to ſhew here that (at leaſt) the Archbiſhopric of Armagh was hereditary, I ſhall put down the words of St. Bernard as I found them in the Life of Malachias, in the Edition printed at Paris 1632. col. 1937. before I perceived that Sir Henry Spelman had referred to them as above noted. "Verum mos peſſimus inoleverat (in Hybernia) quorundam diabolica potentum, Sedem ſanctam obtentum iri hæreditaria Succeſſione Nec enim patiebantur Epiſcopari niſi qui eſſent de Tribu & Familia ſua. Nec parum proceſſerat execranda Succeſſio decurſis jam hac malitia quaſi Generationibus Denique jam octo extiterant ante Celſum viri uxorati, et abſq; Ordinibus. Literati tamen. Inde tota illa per univerſam Hyberniam (de qua, multa ſuperiùs diximus) diſſolutio Eccleſiaſticæ Diſciplinæ, Cenſuræ enervatio, Religionis evacuatio. Inde illa ubique pro Conſuetudine Chriſtiana, ſæva ſubintroducta Barbaries, imò Paganiſmus quidam inductus ſub nomine Chriſtiano, &c."

Thus far with relation to Mr. Toland's Verſions of the Iriſh Notes, which I have ſett down faithfully from his own hand-writing, and brought whatever I have found that might any way ſeem to countenance the ſame. I now come to Mr. Conry's Verſions of the ſame Notes, which are given above, and demonſtrate the Antiquity of this MS. by the following Circumſtances.

1. Mæl-Brigte or Brigidianus wrote this Book at Armagh, in the 28th year of his Age;
2. the ſame Year wherein Cormac mac Carthaig was ſlain by Tirlough o Briain;
3. being the ſecond Year after the building of the Great Houſe;
4. and in the Year of our Lord 1140.
5. When Donchad o Kervall was King of Argiall;
6. Murchad the ſon of Neil, the ſon of Loghlin, King of Olichia;
7. Cuulad o Connor, King of Ulidia;
8. Murchad the ſon of Malachias King of Meth;
9. Dermot the Son of Murchad (or Mac-Morough) King of Leimſter;
10. Connor O Brian, King of Munſter;
11. Tirlough O Connor, King of Connaught;
12. Gilla the Son of Liach . . . was Vicar or a noted Officer or Dignatary belonging to the Metropolitical Church of Armagh.

Now if, upon examination of the ſame, moſt of theſe Circumſtances ſhall be found plainly to concur; ſuch Kingdoms to have been exiſting at that Time; & ſuch Perſons to have been contemporaries, and the far greateſt part of them, if not all, now to be proved to have been alive about A. D. 1139. or 1140. I muſt believe Mr. Conry's to be the more accurate tranſlation, and alſo (ſince the Hand alſo concurs) that the Book was written at that time, and not about A. D. 908. according to Mr. Toland's Opinion.

1. As to Mæl-Brigte, I have ſaid ſomewhat before. I ſuppoſe him to have been a young Religious man, who writing a tolerable Hand, was employed (perhaps by Gilla) to copy out this Book. It is no wonder therefore if I can not find any thing particularly relating to Him; ſince his Station ſeems to have been but mean & obſcure: at leaſt, about that Time.

2. When Cormac mac Carty was ſlain by Tirlough O Brian (Coṁc m̄c Caṙthaiġ or Caṙdaiġ, and Tairdelbach · h · Briam.) which Cormac at the end is ſaid to have been King & Biſhop of Munſter (two Offices eaſily underſtood to be compatible in Ireland after what have been noted from St. Bernard above) It is of this man that I underſtand the words of Sr. James Ware Antiq. Hibern. pag. 228. where he mentions the Foundation of the Monaſtery at Cork, CORCAGIA. "Cormacus Rex Momoniæ (alijs Deſmoniæ) conſtruxit Canonibus S. Auguſtini circa Annum 1134."— moġd cocō̄lan. Icob̄ o bṙidiaī̄ diṙbṙiġi m̄d̄: "Cormac Mac-Carty was killed by Tirlough O Brian; that is, his Son in Law, & Goſſip, & Foſter-Child; . . . , a King of Leithe mogat (i. e. the Half of Ireland Southwards) intirely. Connor O Brian then Chief King of Munſter." I am ſorry that I am not able to interpret this whole Note. But by the former part hereof, compared with the Note at the end of St. Matthew's Goſpel, it plainly appeareth, That in that Year, viz. 1138. Cormac mac Carty was killed by Tirlough O Brian. Theſe are the very Names; and the laſt of them I could never find mentioned with Cormac the Son of Culeinan. As to the difference of the Year 1140. in Mr. Conry's Verſion, from this, it weigheth not much with me. Becauſe firſt the Iriſh Computation differed (in general,) a Year from ours; as may be ſeen by manifold Inſtances in the Works of Arch-biſhop Uſher, & Sir James Ware, &c. Secondly, there is an incertainty in the Iriſh Hiſtories themſelves; the ſame matter of Fact being laid by different writers in different Years. And this in the third Place may proceed from an indiſcreet method uſed by divers of the Old Iriſh Annaliſts, of omitting the Number of the Year, to ſignify the ſame by a k (ſtanding I ſuppoſe for the Kalends of January) ſo that ſometimes the ſame letter is written in the middle of a Line; & repeated (when there was want of matter) to 20, 30, or 40 times together. here a k might eaſily be miſtaken in counting; and where a k was careleſly omitted the occurrences of Two Years, are therefore repeated in one. So that if I can make their matters bear to a Year or two, I think it ſufficient.

In the Annals of the Monaſtery of Boyl in the County of Roſcommon (an antient Cottonian MS. (TITVS. A. 25.) I find theſe words, "Cormac m̄ic Cartaic' Ri Deſmuniâ, occiſus eſt o Tordelbuc' u Briain." The year as I gueſs by counting the k, is 1138, or 1139. And here Cormac is ſtyled King of Deſmond, as was juſt now intimated from Sir James Ware. This Place I alſo find cited in Mr. Brydges MS. XLIV.

His Death is alſo remembred to have been at A. D. 1139. in a Copy of the Ulſter Annals, with Mr. Brydges.

In the ſame Annals of Boyl, about the Year 1152. I find that Vengeance met with the Murderer, his own bloud being ſhed by Tirlough o Connor (mentioned alſo at the end of the Goſpels) as appeareth by the following Note, "Tordelbac' ua Briain do in narbad u Tordel. u Conc'ub. & went upon it raſhly.
adul is in tuaſciurt."

3. The Second Year after the Building of the Great Houſe. I ſhould be extremely raſh if I ſhould pretend to be poſitive about this Houſe. But ſince this Note is found at the end of a Goſpel, written by a Religious perſon, perhaps this Great Houſe might have been a Church. Now much about this time I find in Sir J. Ware that the Church of Down was built or repaired; pag. 195. "Dun—Eccleſiam hanc reſixit S. Malachias Morgairus, Epiſcopus primus Connerenſis, dein Armachanus Archiepiſcopus, ac demum Archiepiſcopatu abdicato, Antiſtes Dunenſis, anno 1137." And by the by, you ſee that Malachy who made this Building, had been Archbiſhop of Armagh, where this individual MS. was written, and muſt therefore have been known to our Mælbrigdte.

4. And in the year of our Lord 1140. This Interpretation of Mr. Conry, muſt ſtand or fall by what has been already, or will ſoon hereafter be alledged. But hitherto (if I may be allowed lowed to say so) it seemeth not to have been in great danger.

5. When Donchad o Kervall was King of Argiall. (Donnchadha ua Cerbaill ardrígh dirgiall) Here, before I meddle with the Man, I must prove the existence of such a Kingdom, as to which Mr. Toland told me that Mr. Conry was utterly mistaken.

Mr. Conry said that AIRGILLIA did include the Counties of Monaghan, Cavan, and Louth; or, at least part of them.

Of this same Territory, I find much mention in Rory O Flaherty's Ogygia, but by the name of Orgiellia, which makes no great difference. I will, however putt down but this one Note concerning it from him. Ogyg. pag. 361. "Post Achalethderg prœlium, quod Collaorum, & Trium Collaorum prœlium vocatur; Victores (abactis ultra Glenrigeam & Neachum lacum Ultonijs) amplam ditionem quam ORGIELLIAM dixerunt (unde Anglis URIEL & ORIEL scribitur) in Comitatibus LOUTH, ARDMACH, et MONACHAN, avorum Memoria descriptam, compararunt. Unde Collaorum Trium fœcunda est, ac late propagata Soboles."

I could putt down more quotations from antient & modern Authors, but I purposely omitt them, as thinking these two which follow may suffice.

In the Cottonian MS. DOMITIAN. A. 18. wherein is a short account of Ireland, drawn up about the time of K. Edward VI. mention is made of Mac-Mahound, as Lord of Irish Uriel: and Uriel is also mentioned as a part & division of Ireland in other places of the same Treatise, as The * Countie of Uriel paieth tribute to O Nele, called Black Rent. 40l.

In Camden's Britannia, Edit. Gibson. col. 1007. "The County of Louth in old Books called Luda & Louda? in Irish Iriel or Uriel (Marginal Note, "in Latin URGALIA") if that is not rather a part of this County," &c.

So far for the Territory, which proveth not to depend upon Mr. Conry's fancy alone. Now for Donchad o Kerval or O Carrol, whom he finds to have been King of it.

War. Antiq. Hibern. page 204. "Mellifons, insigne Monasterium Ordinis Cisterciensis—fundatur a Donato O-Carrol regulo Ergalliæ sive Urielis, anno 1142."

Ibid. pag. 203. "Loutha — Donatus O-Carroll Rex Ergaliæ, & Edanus O Kelly Episcopus Clochorensis—fundarunt, anno 1148."

Num. 1802.

Ibid. pag. 29. "Mauritius alias Moriertachus Nelli filius Loghlini Nepos, sed vulgò dictus Mauritius Mac-Loghlin, cognomento ab avo ducto, regnavit annos plus minus 9. occisus a Donato O Carroll Rege Ergalliæ sive Urielis, Anno 1166."

In the annals of Boyl above-mentioned, about A. D. 1165. I find this passage, "Assidе cordroc[t] et a[t] ta cora rigad he oDondc[t]ud u Cerbaill & Orgial laib."——

'From Assidе to Drogheda the Royal Estate of Donchad O-Carrol King of Uriel lieth.'

And in the same book, about A.D. 1167. "Dondc[t]ad ua Cerbaill ri Orgiall, moritur."

6. Murchad the son of Neil (or perhaps O Neal) the Son of Loghlin King of Olichta; Murcertac[t] m̄c Nēl ua Lochlainn Ailiuch.

This Ailiuch, Mr. Conry said, was a Kingdom containing almost the whole Northern part of Ireland; being the Chiefest of the two Kingdoms into which Ulster was at that time divided; the other being Ulidia, of which more anon.

In proving the existence of such a Kingdom, I need go no farther than the Ulster-Annals, where (to be sure) mention thereof may be easily found. In that imperfect Copy with Mr. Brydges, (VOL. XLIX.) at the year 1124. are these words "Ardgar the Sonne of Mac Hugh o Mel Seaghlyn who should be King of Ailegh, was slaine, &c." which Territory, soon after the Conquest of Ireland seems to have been joyned to Ulidia, and so to have been again united into the one Province of Ulster. Thus Josceline de Furnesio in the Life of St. Patric, Cap. 31.——"applicuit in finibus ULAGH, quæ modo ULIDIA dicitur"——unless there be some mistake here, in the printed Books.

In Mr. O Flaherty's Ogygia, pag. 372. this Kingdom seemeth to be plainly intended, though it be not mentioned by name, when he writeth——"et non ita diu postea, a Nielli Magni Regis Hiberniæ filijs, universa fere Ultonia manu potenti esset subacta: Rudriciâ gente, ac Dalfiatachia.—intra unius penè Comitatûs Dunensis terminos, quam prisci Ulidiam dixerunt conclusis. Hinc igitur hujus Ditionis Principes non Ultoniæ, sed Ulidiæ Reges, discriminis ergo in posterum dicemus." The meaning of the former of these Words, is that the O Neals seized upon the far greatest part of Ulster, where they reigned in Aliuch or Ulagh; their Enemies keeping possession of Ulidia the remaining part of that Province, under the Government of the O Connors.

* That URIEL enjoyed some particular Privileges and Immunities, after it was taken as a County, may partly appear from the following Grant of K. Edward III. which I find in the Liber Niger de Wigmore in the Harleyan Library, marked 67. C. 4. fol. penult, in these words; Edwardus Dei gratia Rex Anglie, Dominus Hibernie, et Dux Aquitanie, Archiepiscopis, Episcopis, Abbatibus, Prioribus, Comitibus, Baronibus, Justiciarijs, Vicecomitibus, Prepositis, Ministris, et omnibus Ballivis, et Fidelibus suis Salutem. In

Num. 1802.

In the latter part of the Sentence, Mr. O Flaherty is not ſo clear as might have been expected.

As to this man Murcertach or Mauritius O Neal, I have ſhewed the time of his Death already from Sir James Ware; who, when he addeth in the ſame place, "atqui is (i. e. Murcertachus) Regnum non inijt ante annum 1157." muſt be underſtood with reſerve & caution, becauſe in the ſame book pag. 211. ſpeaking about the Foundation of the Monaſtery of Newry, he ſaith immediately "Mauritius Mac-Loghlin Rex Hiberniæ fundavit — anno 1153."——

In the Annals of Boyl I find mention of him about A.D. 1165. "Eo c'oid mi͂c mi͂c Duindſlebi ri Ulad do dallad la Murc'ertac' mi͂c mi͂c Lac'laind." And a little after, namely about A. D. 1167. conformable to Sr. James Ware, "Murc'ertac' mac Neill mac mic Lac'laind Ri Erend, occiſus eſt." This Prince was in his time ſtyled King of Ireland, as appeareth by the laſt Citation; but is not ſo called in my Lords MS. which ſquareth with what O Flaherty writes, Ogyg. pag. 440. "A.D. 1156. Murchertus Mag Loceluin Nielli filius, Tordelvacho O Conor ſucceſſit Regno Hyberniæ, &c. which may unfold the Myſtery in the laſt Paragraph, where Sr. James Ware aſſerts that he was not King (i. e. chief King, or Monarch of the Iriſh) before A.D. 1157."

7. Cuuald O Connor King of Ulidia; Cuulad͡ mi͂c Conchobuiꝛ ꝓiꝛ Ulad͡. We have already had ſome mention of this Kingdom, to which I think I need not add many Citations from Giraldus Cambrenſis, & others, who make frequent mention of the ſame & of its Princes Only one I think I may take notice of from another Author which will ſhew, that after the Conqueſt thereof by the Engliſh, (or the Submiſſion of the Iriſh) the Name ſtill remained. For Joſceline of Furnes in his Prologue to the above-cited book ſaith,—"Illuſtriſſimi nihilominus Joannis de Curſi ULIDIÆ Principis ſuper hâc re petitio adjungitur."—

As to the Extent of this little Kingdom, Mr. Conry differed ſomewhat in Opinion from Mr. Rory O Flaherty; when he aſſured me that it comprehended no more than a Part of the County of Down, with ſome other Towns.

Nor will it be a wonder that ſo ſmall a Portion of Ireland ſhould be called a Kingdom; ſince (as it was hinted before) the Chiefs of numerous Clans, were generally ſo ſtyled. This may be very eaſily proved from the writings both of Iriſh Natives, and of Foreigners. I will therefore bring no more than two Inſtances. The one from Benedictus Petroburgenſis MS. Cotton. JVLIVS. A. 11. fol. 39. —"Venerunt itaq; ad eum (i. e. R. Henricum II.) Rex Corcenſis, et Rex de Limeric, et Rex de Oxereia, et Rex de Mida, et Raghenaldus de Waterfordia, et Omnes alij de Hybernia præter Regem Cognactæ." The other is in a MS. in the Archiepiſcopal Library at Lambeth (no. xx. fol. 172. b.) where, among divers Notes out of the Lord of Hethes Chronicle, is this that followeth. "Mac Moroughe King of Leinſter, Dermot mac Cartie King of Corke, Donald O Breen King of Limerike, O Carroll King of Uriell, Mac Shaglin King of Ophalie, O Rwrke King of Methe, O Neale King of Ulſter, and Rory O Connor Dune King of Connaght and Monarche of Irland, ſurrendred all their Titles to the Kingdomes of Irland u[n]to K. Henry II. and became his Vaſſalls." —(This [i]s to have been taken from Giraldus Cambren[ſ]is, & is alſo cited in Camden's Britannia edit. Gibſ. pag. 973. where a Note at the bottom declares (but why I know not) that O Rorke was not King of Meath.)

Num. 1802.

Of this Cuulad, I have not hitherto found any thing, as I remember: which want of ſucceſs I do not ſo much attribute to the obſcurity of the Man, as to my want of proper books, and the Imperfectneſs of ſeveral that I ſaw, eſpecially in the Library of the Honourable Mr. Bridges, where four or five (principal books for this occaſion) were imperfect in the very places where I wanted their help. However, in the Annals of Boyl I find mention of Duinſlebi Ri Ulad͡ about A. D. 1165. and in the ſame Book, about A.D. 1171. "Magnus mi͂c Duinſlevi Ri Ulad moritur."

8. Murchad the Son of Malachias King of Meath; Muꝛcad͡h ua Mœlꝛechlaiḋ ꝓiꝛ Miḋe.

Of this man I find mention as followeth,

In the Annals of Boyl, about A. D. 1143.

Murc'ad ua Mailſec͂ dergabail la Tordelbac' ua Concuber & Rigi Midi dutabairt du Concuber da mac.
(was taken by; the Kingdom of; was given to; his Son)

War. Antiq. Hibern. pag. 192. Bectif. "Sunt qui fundatum tradunt anno 1146. 14 Januarij; alij anno 1148. et alii anno 1151. ſed non magna eſt differentia. Fundavit et dotavit Murchardus O Melaghlin Midiæ Regulus."

In the Annals of Boyl, about A. D. 1152. Murc'ad ua Mailſec͂ Ri Mediæ Moritur.

In the Convention between K. Henry II & Rory o Connor King of Connaught, A.D. 1175. recorded by Benet of Peterburgh (MSS. Cotton. JVL. A. II. & VIT. E. 17.) as alſo in Roger Hoveden from Benet; mention is made of this man, in theſe words in the Copie firſt cited,—"et Mida, cum omnibus pertinentijs ſuis, ſicut unquam Murchat ua Maileth lachlin eam melius & plenius tenuit." The Name being a hard Name, no wonder if it was written corruptly by an Engliſh Monk. But in Mr. Rymer's Fœdera Vol. 1. pag. 41. (where the Convention is given from this MS.) it is printed yet more corruptly.

I think I need not mention (having already omitted divers notes of this kind) that his Son did not long ſurvive him. For in the Annals of Boyl, about A. D. 1154. is this Entry, "Eñ Mæl Sec'naill m͂c Murc'aid u Mail Sec'naill Ri Midi, moritur."

9. Dermot the Son of Murchad (or Mac-Morough) King of Leimſter; Ḋiaꝛmaiꝛt m͂c Muꝛchaḋa ꝓiꝛ lagen. Of this Prince (from whom, as I remember, my Lord is deſcended) there is mention enough in the Engliſh & Welſh writings, as well as in the Iriſh. From them all I ſhall tranſcribe only theſe that follow.

In the Annals of Boyl, about A. D. 1141. "Mathi Lagen doi͂pod ar Diarmait m͂c Murcada."

War. Antiq. Hibern. pag. 176. "Baltinglas. Dermitius Murchardi filius, Rex Lageniæ, anno 1148. (alijs 1151) Monachis Ordinis Ciſtercienſis conſtruxit, & prædijs dotavit."

Ibid. pag. 167. "Dermitius Murchardi filius Rex Lageniæ, fundavit juxta Dublin, Cœnobium Monialium Ordinis Aroacenſis circa A. D. 1146. Cui ſuppoſuit. A. D. 1151. cellas duas."—(vid. ibid. pagg. 183. & 185.)

In the ſame page, he ſheweth that this ſame Prince did alſo found another Monaſtery of the ſame Order, about A. D. 1166.

In the Annals of Boyl, about the year 1151. or 1152. is this entry, "Deborgail ben Tigernaim u Ruaire du breit du Diarmait mac Murcada Leis."
(Wife; was taken away by; with him)

10. Connor O Brian, King of Munſter; Conchobor ua ᵇpiam piȝ Muman.

Of him I have hitherto found only this Note, beſide that abovementioned (in pag. 200.) from the Continuation of Tigernach's Annals, which ſhew him to have been Chief King of Munſter A. D. 1138.

Annal. Buil. circ. A. D. 1142. "Concuber ua Brian Ardri Muman, mortuus eſt."

11. Tirlough O Connor, King of Connaught; Tairdelbach ua Conchobair piȝ Connacht.

Of this Prince there is more Evidence, viz.

In the Annals of Ulſter, (with Mr Brydges, Vol. XLIX.) at the years 1127. 1128. &c. mention is made of Tirlagh O Connor, Gil-Chriſt O Hegni King of Fermanagh & Arch-King of Argialli; Tiernan O Roirk, &c.

Waræi Antiq. Hibern. pag. 29. "Tirdelvacus O-Conner Rex Conatiæ Monarchiam (i. e. totius Hyberniæ) adeptus, eam tenuit uſque ad annum 1157. quo mortem obijt, ætatis ſuæ 68. ſepultus Clonmucnoiſæ, in Eccleſia Cathedrali, prope ſummum Altare S. Ciarani." Some account of his Funeral may be ſeen in O Flaherty, which was not material for me to tranſcribe.

12 Gilla the Son of Liach . . . . was Vicar or a Noted Officer, or Dignitary belonging to Armagh; ȝilla mᶜc ſiac mᶜc mᶜc Ruddȝi hi comdȝbaȝ Patȝaic—.

The words in my Lords MS. which expreſs this Dignity or Office, are Comaȝbaȝ Patȝaic, which (as above is ſhewn) Mr. Toland tranſlated by Præpoſitus Eccleſiæ Sti. Patricij (Præpoſitus was an Officer in Benedictin Monaſteries) and Mr. Conry by Vicarius Patricij. Now if St. Patric's Vicar at Armagh, was the chief Perſon in the Place, as St. Peter's Vicar at Rome, then our Gilla was Archbiſhop of Armagh. And it ſeems to me that the ſame Perſon might be both Archbiſhop of Armagh, & Comorb or Corb of St. Patric, as well as Dr. Fell was Biſhop of Oxford, and Dean of Chriſt-Church at the ſame time. This might be no diſparagement to an Arch-biſhop, conſidering what a learned Iriſh-man (cited by Sr. Hen. Spelman from Arch-Bp. Uſher) ſaith, "Corbanatus ſive Plebanatus, Dignitas eſt; et modo ad Regem pertinet, ſed antea ad Papam. In Matrice Eccleſia debet neceſſario eſſe;——omnéſq; Decimas pertinentes ad hanc debet habere. Et Beneficia adjuncta huic, ipſius ſunt; eorumq; Conferentiam habet et præſentationem. Dictum hoc nomen quia populo et plebi Eccleſiaſticæ Matricis Eccleſiæ præfuit.——Primum Stallum in ſua Eccleſia habet: habet etiam Stallum vacuum in Eccleſia Cathedrali et Vocem in omni Capitulo tam publico quam privato. Inſcribitur Romano Regiſtro, ideoq; Dignitas eſt." And by what I have before cited (Catal. ſect. 19.) Kellegh was Coarb-Patric, & is alſo ſtyled at the ſame Time Arch-biſhop of the Weſt of Europe.

But to return to our Gilla, whom Mr. Conry calls the ſon of Liach, & Mr. Toland (from his anceſtor) Mac Ruadri; I find thus much of him.

In the Annals of Boyl, about A.D. 1174. "Gilla mic Liacc qarba Patric, quievit".

In Monaſt Angl. Tom. II. pag. 1031. Gilla mac Liag 2 Arch-Bp. of Armagh, is witneſs to a Grant of Mauritius mac Loclain, King of Ireland.

Num. 1802.

In the Ulſter Annals, MS. Brydges Vol. xxix. It is written, that Gelaſius mac Ruadri (who was Arch-biſhop of Armagh) obijt 6 Kal. Aprilis 1174.

Now if the Iriſh (according to their fancy in turning of Names, uſed to tranſlate Gilla into Gelaſius, it may ſeem that theſe may be the ſame Man: for as was ſhewed before from Sir James Ware, ſometimes perſons were named from their Anceſtors by ſome; & at the ſame time from their Fathers by others.

Moreover in Mr. Brydges's MS. Vol. xliv. I find that Kelleck or Gellaſius, was Archbiſhop of Armagh A. D. 1136. and was ſucceeded by Gilbertus O Caran A. D. 1175 If our Gilla was the ſame with this Gelaſius, I can eaſily find matter enough concerning him.

Thus have I gone through the Evidence for Mr. Conry, after that for Mr. Toland, with like Candour & Sincerity, and according as things occurred unto me. I might have put them better together, & ſett forth my poor Meaning, all along, in more proper Language. But when it ſhall be conſidered that what is here done, is only a Firſt Draught; and even that for the moſt part, putt down in the midſt of hurry & diſturbance; and without my ever Reading over what I have at any time before written: I hope to be excuſed for all Irregularities either as to Phraſe or Method. The Sum of the whole diſſertation, is this.

1. That whereas Father Simon thought this Book 800 Years Old, and endeavoured to deſcribe it as an Antiquary: He ſeemeth to have employed his Time & Pen to ſmall purpoſe, for lack of Experience in ſuch Matters.

2. Whereas Mr. Toland endeavours to prove it of the ſame Age, by the Notes: I believe he muſt prove alſo that a Cormac mac Carty, and all the other Perſons & Kingdoms did exiſt at that Time, by plain & undeniable authority of Hiſtory; or elſe, the Aſſertion will not paſs with me. Which when he ſhall have done, I ſhall ſmile at the oddneſs of the Thing, viz, that ſo many Perſons, of ſuch different Governments, of ſo differing Characters, Families, & Names, with ſuch an Occurrence as Mac Carties Slaughter (not forgetting the great Houſe) ſhould all, by a Sort of Platonic Revolution, be brought upon their Old Stage in about 235 years after. I ſay again this will be a pleaſing Scene to me; but I add, that my Mirth, in this reſpect, muſt be reſpited until this be done.

3. Mr. Conry underſtanding the Iriſh Notes in a Senſe different from Mr. Toland, diſcovered Three Kingdoms & ſome Perſons not mentioned by him, as alſo a poſitive Date of the Year 1140. That, upon Examination, I find his Three Kingdoms to have exiſted about that Time; and a remarkably-Great Houſe to have been builded or repaired within the Space limited. I find a Cormac mac Carty to have been killed by a Tirlough O Brian, & within the Year, as the Iriſh Year is underſtood. Of no leſs than Seven other Iriſh Kings or Princes who are mentioned by Name, I find (in my poor Searches) that the Six chiefeſt of them flouriſhed at or about that very time. The Scribe indeed I am not ſo well appriſed of, nor can it be expected: but the Perſon who (according to Mr. Tolands own Opinion) employed him, I have alſo diſcovered. So that, the Hand concurring as it doth, I muſt believe that the book was written A. D. 1139.

I had indeed much rather to have found it 800 years old, which would undoubtedly have raiſed its value; but as it is, it is a Standard for the Iriſh Hand of that Age; as alſo one of the moſt authentic Copies of the Latin Goſpels, which they have ſent forth from that Iſland.

A parchment Book in large 4to, wherein are contained,

1. Poſtills upon the Pſalter, & Cantica Sacra in Old Engliſh.

The Pſalter is of that Tranſlation of St. Hierom, which is commonly called GALLICANUM, and prevailed at length here in England more than either of the others.

The Method uſed is thus all along; firſt a Latin Verſe; then a Verbal Tranſlation of the ſame in Old Engliſh; then the Poſtill or Explanation of the ſame, which is figurative enough. The Firſt Leaf is wanting.

After the Pſalter, follow the Cantica Sacra; as I ſaid before, being,

2. Canticum Iſaiæ. "Confitebor tibi Domine." (Iſ. XII. 1.) 152.
3. Canticum Ezechiæ. "Ego dixi in dimidio dierum." (Iſ. XXXVIII. 10.) 152. b.
4. Canticum Annæ. 153. b.
5. Canticum Moyſis. "Cantemus Domino glorioſe." (Exod. XV. 1.) 154. b.
6. Canticum Abacuc. 156.
7. Canticum Moyſis. "Audite cœli quæ loquor." (Deut. XXXII. 1.) 158.
8. The Hymn "Te Deum laudamus." 161.
9. Canticum trium puerorum. 162.
10. Canticum Zachariæ. 165.
11. Canticum Mariæ. 166.
12. Canticum Symeonis. 167.
13. The Creed "Quicunque vult." 167. b.

So far concerning the Pſalter, Cantica Sacra, and the Poſtills upon them. The author of theſe ſame Poſtills ſeemeth to have been John Wycliffe in his younger Years. In the Work he generally followeth the Doctrine of the Roman Church then received; but yet with ſome diſlike of particular Matters or Perſons. Thus, for example he ſpeaketh againſt Faſts, & Wakes, fol. 1. col. 2. Againſt the Monks & Friers, fol. 166. Againſt the Couvetouſneſs of Prieſts & Prelats, fol. 86. col. 2. & fol. 87. col. 2 and alſo concludeth the whole work with a touch upon the ſuperior Clergy, fol. 170. b. This may ſhew that he was then ſomewhat diſguſted at the Clergy in general, and at their Proceedings. What Opinion he had of himſelf at the ſame time, may be gathered from this Hint, fol. 86. b. col. 1. "Et mandavit nubibus deſuper, et januas celi aperuit.——þat is: He bad to Holy Prechours þat has of Him þat þei Preche. And þoo zatis of Heven, þat is, Holy Writ he opynde to þoo þat Preches or Writes; not to othre þat are redier to chalange oþre Mennys Dedys þen to do homſelf oght þat goode is."

In the Kings Library at Cotton-houſe, is a Work of this kind, ſeeming pretty agreeable, the Preface whereof bears the Name of Richard Hampole.

Then follow in Latin, by another Hand,

14. Tractatulus de Informatione ſimplicium Sacerdotum. fol. 170. b. (i. e. Conſtitutio Joh. Pecami Arch-Cant.)

Num. 1806, 1807.

15. Teſtamentum Johannis Hixon de Elyngton in Com. Huntyndon. dat. A. D. 1462. 172. b.

16. Teſtamentum Margeriæ Colynge. dat. 1 Maij A.D. 1493. ibid.

Being diſturbed, I forgot to add, That this Book evidently appears to have lain long in the Water. Thus the famous Durham Goſpels in the Cottonian Library Nero D. IV. were recovered from the Sea. So alſo the Comment of Johannes de Lathbury in Hieremiam in the Library at Sion College were taken from the bottom of the Sea. And the Works of Mr. Frith found in the Belly of a great Fiſh, &c.

A thin Vellum-Book neatly bound in large 4to, ſent at the end of the Year 1712, with a Letter (now faſtened at the beginning) to my Lord, with a Deſire of being preſerved in this Library; by Mr John Bowack; then & ſtill Writing-maſter to Weſtminſter-School. A Perſon of a good Character, & reputed an able Maſter. It containeth,

1. Two Drawings, done with Indian Ink in ſo handſome a manner, as not to miſbeſeem any, whoſe Employment doth not depend upon the conſtant practice of Deſigning.

2. Divers Specimens of our Engliſh Writing & Printing-Hands; as the Alamode, Italian; the Square-Text, Engliſh, Roman, & Italic Letters: which although they may not come up to the Character he once gave me of them, viz. That they are written as well as Hand & Pen can do them: are yet written well enough; and plainly ſhew, that his Genius led him to Letters, as well as Figures.

All that I obſerve upon this part of his Performance is, that it might have come forth better, if he had before ſtudied, what it is, in general, that makes Writing look beautiful: and if in his Imitations, he had kept more ſtrictly to the eſſential parts of his Letters; & without running riot.

Num. 1810.

Ipſius enim tempore, preter fragmenta ejuſdem nonnulla Hiſtorica atq; Geographica in Apographo Voſſiano latitantia (a Thevenotio tandem edita) nihil omnino in univerſis Angliæ Bibliothecis extabat: ſolam ſi excipias Præfationem (ex opere ſupra-dicto decerptam) in Pſalterium, quod quidem habetur in Codice illo Bibliothecæ Bodleianæ, qui inter Baroccianos locum obtinet decimumquintum. In Concilio Epheſino quod fuit Virginei partûs anno 428. ubi, loco Celeſtini Papæ Primi reſidebat Cirillus Patriarcha Alexandrinus Ordinus Patrum Glorioſiſſimæ Dei Genitricis Mariæ de Monte Carmeli, jubente eadem Dei Genitrice, ut in Annalibus reperitur, Veterum Patrum, ſuperato Neſtorio Hæretico per eundem Cirillum, qui dicebat Virginem Mariam ſolum Hominem peperiſſe: idem Cirillus protulit in Medium Genealogiam antiquiſſimam de Progenie Virginis Mariæ. Pro cujus Victorie recommendacione ibi diffinitum fuit, quod Fratres fui Ordinis Carmeli, merito Fratres Beatæ Dei Gentricis Marie de Monte Carmeli nuncupari deberent: erat autem Genealogia hanc continens Sententiam. "Ante Xpi Incarnacionem anno circiter 70mo, erat in Judæa Civitate Sephor, non longe a Nazareth, Puella quædam Deo multum devota Nomine Emerenciana, orta de Tribu David. Hec in timore Dei vivere ſatagens, ſuper omnes virtutes caſtitatem Corporis et Animæ ſtudioſe ſervabat. Conſuevit itaque crebo, de parentum Licentia Sanctorum Helie & Heliſei diſcipulos qui in Monte Carmeli celibem vitam ducebant, viſitare."———

De his inſuper audiendus eſt Joannes Aymon, in ipſa Curia haud ita pridem Prothonotarius Apoſtolicus (qui præſentem cum duobus inſequentibus Codicem, ex ejuſdem Curiæ Archivis, demortuo Innocentio Papa XII. clam abſtulerit) in Gallico ſuo Libro Hagæ-Comitis edito A. D. 1707. cui Titulus TABLEAU DE LA COUR DE ROME. pag. 186.

"Nous avons fait voir au Chapitre VII. de quelle maniere on taxe par ce Brefs les Autels où l'on dit que les Meſſes ont plus de Virtu ed d'Efficace pour leſs Vivans & pour les Morts, a Proportion que le Privilege d'un plus grand Nombre d'Indulgences à ſon fonds compoſé d'un plus riche Tréſor. Il ne ſera pas hors d'œuvre de faire maintenant remarquer ici, qu'il y a pluſieurs de ces Brefs taxés, qui contiennent leſs Diſpenſes de Mariage pour tous les Degrés de Parenté, depuis le premier juſques au quatrième incluſivement; ou l'on comprend une certaine Affinité Spirituelle entre les Parrains & les Marraines; le Mariage entre ceux qui ſont Parens au Premier & Second Degré eſt défendu par la Loi Divine; cependant, on en Diſpenſe pour de l'Argent. Il y a des autres Brefs taxeés pour la Legitimation des Enfans Naturels; pour ceux qui veulent recevoir les Ordres Sacrés avant l'Age requis par le Droit Canon; ou qui ont quelque Membre mutilè, ou quelque Difformitè, comme ſeroit d'être Borgue, ou Manchot, Boiteux, ou Boſſu. On taxe auſſi, par des Brefs, les Eccleſiaſtiques Bigames, les Moines Bâtards, ceux qui diſent la Meſſe ſans être Prêtres, et ceux qui battent le Clercs. Il y a d'autres taxes pour les Homicides Volontaires & Caſuels, pour les Enchanteurs & Sorciers; pour les Heretiques, et les Apoſtats; pour les Sacrileges, & les Parjures; pour les Simoniaques, et les Excommunies; pour les Adulteres and les Paillards; pour les Voleurs & les Brigands. Touts ces Taxes varient ſelon la Difference de Cas & des Perſonnes, qui augmente ou diminuë le Prix des Brefs.

"S'il eſt étonnant de voir tous les Crimes les plus atroces permis, ou du moins toléré pour de l'Argent, on ne doit pas être moins ſurpris de ce qu'il y a auſſi des Brefs taxés pour des Bonnes Oeuvres & des Exercices de Pieté, qu'il n'eſt pas permis de faire ſans Diſpenſe; comme, par Exemple, de dire la Meſſe ſur des Autels Portatifs; de reciter les Prieres qui ſont à la Fin d'un Office le premieres, & celles qui ſont au Commencement les derniers; comme qui diroit leſs Pſeaumes de Vêpres avant ceux de Matines. Il faut auſſi paier la Confirmation des Statuts d'une Egliſe Cathedrale; la Permiſſion de conſtruire une Chapelle; d'y faire le Service Divin, adminiſtrer les Sacremens, enterrer les Morts, & y apporter les Reliques de quelque Saint. On ne peut auſſi porter en Proceſſion le Sacrament de l'Autel qu'on appelle le Corps de Jeſus Chriſt plus d'une fois l'annee, ſans une une Permiſſion ſpeciale, qui coute châque jour davantage, a proportion que la Pompe Sacrée devient plus Magnifique. C'eſt auſſi par des Brefs taxés que le Pape donne la Permiſſion aux Juifs d'ériger des Synagogues Publiques, & aux plus Riches, d'en avoir dans leurs Maiſons particulieres moiennant quelque bon Tribut. Sans cela, aucun d'eux ne peut auſſi exercer la Medicine, ni trafiquer. On peut dire enfin, q'uil n'y a choſe ou monde qu'on n'accorde pour de l'argent. On fait retrancher les Meſſes, quand le Revenu eſt trop petit; on fait dreſſer des Boutiques dans Allées des Egliſes, pour les loüer; on fait tranſporter & vendre des Merchandiſes de Contrebande par tout, contre les Deffenſes des Seigneurs Temporels, en fruſtrant les Rois & les Empereurs de leurs Droits, autant qu'on le peut: et tout cela ſe fait en Vertu des Brefs que le Pape accorde pour s'enricher au prejudice de toutes les Puiſſances de la Terre."

Sequitur Tractatulus, manu Italica longe recentiore, deſcriptus: cui Titulus,

31. Taxa Mercedum Cancellariæ Epiſcopalis Ferrariæ, pro Cauſis tam Civilibus quam Criminalibus; tam Ordinarijs quam Extraordinarijs. 18.

N. B. Ducatus Ferrarienſis Dominus, etiam in Temporalibus, eſt Pontifex Romanus. Cum in præſenti, ſimul ac in duobus Codicibus ſuperioribus, plurima de Pœnitentiaria Cancellariaq; Curiæ Romanæ habeantur ſcripta; de eiſdem etiam audi Joannem Aymonem, in Gallico ſuo Libro cui Titulus, 'Tableau de la Cour de Rome,' his verbis differentem, pag. 172.—" Nous ne parlerons pas des abus quy s'y commettent, ni des profits caſuels du Tour du Bâton, ou de la Baguette du Grand Penitencier, car tout cela eſt ſuffiſament connu, par la Taxe ſi Scandaleuſe de la Chancellerie, qui a éte imprimée en diverſes langues, & envoyée par toute la Chrêtiente, dans laquelle on voit que l'Abſolution des plus grands Crimes contre la Loy de Dieu, ne coute pas grand Choſe; mais que la moindre Contrevention contre les Statuts des Papes, & les Diſpences de quelque Reglement de la Diſcipline Eccleſiaſtique, ne ſont accordées qu'à ceux qui ont le moien de paier de groſſes ſommes; tellement, que pour de l'Argent, on obtient devant ce Tribunal, la Permiſſion de faire tout ce qu'on veut. Le Mal, par ce moien eſt changé en bien, et le bien en mal. Ces étranges Metamorphoſes valent autant à la Chancellerie (dont nous allons parler)que feroit la Tranſmutation Metallique de la meilleure Pierre Philoſophale qu'on puiſſe avoir dans le Monde, puis qu'un petit Sceau de Plomb, rend pluſieurs Millions d'Or."

Horum et etiam alte-memoratorum facinorum Uſus ac Exercitatio, ſolo Plenitudinis Papalis Poteſtatis Fundamento conſtrui videatur: de qua, ea quæ ſequuntur Teſtimonia, nullo fere adhibito Labore, ſtatim collegi.

Reſcript. Johannis Papæ. " Imperatores Criſtiani ſubdere debent Executiones ſuas Eccleſiaſticis Preſulibus, non preferre." Decret. Gratian. Diſtinct. 96.

Idem.—" Pontificibus obſequi ſolere Principes Criſtianos, Decretis Eccleſie non ſuam preponere poteſtatem; Epiſcopis caput ſubdere Principes ſolitum eſt, non de eorum Capitibus judicare." ibid.

Reſcript. Gregorij Papæ ad Gelaſium.—" Nam qualeſcunque Pontifices ſint, etſi Errore Humanitus accedente, non tamen contra Religionem ullatenus excedentes, nullatenus videntur a Seculari Poteſtate poſſe procelli." ibid.

—"Et ut Criſtiani Imperatores pro Eternâ Vitâ Pontificibus indigerent; et Pontifices pro curſu Temporalium tantummodo rerum Imperialibus Legibus uterentur; quatenus Spiritualis Actio a Carnalibus diſtaret Incurſibus, et Deo militans minime ſe negotijs Secularibus implicaret: ac viciſſim, non Ille rebus Divinis preſidere videretur, qui eſſet Secularibus negotijs implicatus." ibid.

Reſcript. Greg. Papæ ad Herem. Metenſ. Ep̃um. " Quis dubitet Sacerdotes Criſti Regum & Principum, Omniúmq; Fidelium PATRES & MAGISTROS cenſeri? Nonne miſerabilis Inſanie eſſe cognoſcitur, ſi Filius Patrem, Diſcipulus Magiſtrum ſibi conetur ſubjugare, et iniquis obligationibus Illum ſue poteſtati ſubjicere, a quo credit non ſolum in Terra ſed etiam in Celis ſe ligari poſſe & ſolvi?" ibid.

Gelaſius Papa Anaſtaſio Imp.—"Beatus etiam Ambroſius (licet Sanctus, non tamen Univerſalis Eccleſie Epiſcopus)—circa Principium ſui Paſtoralis ſcribens, Honor, Fratres, & ſublimitas Epiſcopalis nullis poterit Comparationibus adequari. Si Regum fulgori compares & Principum Diademati, longe erit inferiùs quam ſi Plumbi metallum ad Auri fulgorem compares: quippe cum videas Regum Colla & Principum ſubmitti genibus Sacerdotum, et oſculata eorum dexterâ, Orationibus eorum ſe communicari vel muniri." ibid.

Num. 1852.

" Sed videtur quod Papa Major ſit Imperatore,—nam Jura Celeſtis Imperij & Terreni Petro commiſſa a Deo ſunt.—Ipſe enim utrúmq; Gladium habuit, ut dicit Evangeliſta Ecce duo Gladij ſunt hic: quam Poteſtatem ſuis Succeſſoribus tranſmiſit,—verum Executionem Gladij Temporalis Imperatoribus & Regibus commiſſit Eccleſia, et tamen Juriſdictionem Cauſarum Civilium aliquando per Sacerdotes exercuit." Decretal. Greg. IX. Cap. 13. in Gloſſ.

" Sed Ala*nus* & Tan*credus* dixerunt quod Imperator (licet Imperium a ſolo Deo dicatur proceſſiſſe) Executionem Gladij Temporalis recipit ab Eccleſia. Eccleſia enim eſt Unum Corpus, ergo unum ſolum Caput dicitur habere. Item, Deus utróq; Gladio uſus eſt—Item Moyſis utrumq; Gladium habuit; cujus Succeſſor eſt Papa: præterea, Papa ipſum confirmat, & conſecrat, & coronat, et eum deponit." ibid. Lib. IV. Cap. 7. in Gloſſ.

—" Tamen ſi vellet (Papa) bene poſſet diſpenſare contra Concilium; qui Auctor illius Concilij imparem non habuit Poteſtatem,—et Papa major eſt quam Concilium." ibid. Lib. III. Cap. 3. in Gloſſ.

" Nam contra Apoſtolum diſpenſat Papa—et contra Canones Apoſtoli—Item contra Vetus Teſtamentum, in Decimis non dandis.—Item, in Voto—Item, in Juramento." ibid. Lib. III. Cap. 4. in Gloſſ.

Innocent III.—" qui ſecundum plenitudinem poteſtatis, de jure, poſſumus ſupra Jus diſpenſare." ibid. Lib. III. Tit. 8. De Prebendis.

" Cum Dominus Papa ſit Judex Ordinarius ſingulorum." ibid. Lib. II. Tit. 2. in Gloſſ.

" Quia Peccatum Paganitatis incurrit, quiſquis Sedi Apoſtolice obedire contemnit." ibid. Lib. III. Cap. 9. in Gloſſ.

Nicholaus Papa Mediolanenſibus, —" Non ergo quelibet Terrena Sententia, ſed illud VERBUM quo conſtructum eſt Coelum & Terra, per quod denique Omnia condita ſunt Elementa, Romanam fundavit Eccleſiam." Gratian. Part. I. Diſtinct. 22.

Decretal. Greg. IX. Lib. I. Tit. De Tranſlat. Epi. Cap. 3. ad Verba " Non enim Homo ſed Deus ſeparat quos Romanus Pontifex (qui non PURI HOMINIS, ſed VERI DEI vicem gerit in Terris) Eccleſiarum Neceſſitate vel Utilitate penſata, non HUMANA ſed DIVINI potius auctoritate diſſolvit." in Gloſſ. legitur, Veri Dei vicem. ". Unde dicitur habere Celeſte Arbitrium,—et ideo Naturam Rerum immutat, Subſtantialia unius Rei applicando alij,—et de Nullo, poteſt Aliquid facere,—et Sententia que Nulla eſt, facit Aliquam—quia, in his que vult, Ei eſt pro ratione Voluntas—Ipſe enim poteſt ſupra Jus diſpenſare,—de Injuſtitia poteſt facere Juſtitiam, corrigendo Jura et mutando,—et plenitudinem obtinet Poteſtatis."

Nicholaus Papa I. ad Michaelem Imp. A. D. 865. " Satis evidenter oſtenditur a Seculari Poteſtate nec ligari prorſus, nec ſolvi poſſe Pontificem; quem conſtat a Pio Principe Conſtantino (quod longe ſuperius memoravimus) Deum appellatum; nec poſſe Deum ab Hominibus judicari, manifeſtum eſt." Grat. Decret. Part. I. Diſt. 96.

A Book in ſmall fol. relating to the Practice of our Common-Law, & containing,

1. A Collection of Writs & other Law-Precedents (moſtly of the time of K Henry VIII.) made & diſpoſed Alphabetically by one Rouland Shakelady, whoſe Name appeareth at the end.

The Precedents are ſo many, & ſo ranged, that it may not, perhaps, very improperly be called Regiſtrum, Brevium de Tempore R. Henrici VIII. although there be ſome of the preceding Reign written by the firſt Hand & ſome Additions made in the Reigns ſubſequent.

'Tis plain that Books of this Nature inſtruct their Readers not only in the Practice of the Law; but in the Private Hiſtory & Occurrences relating to Perſons & Places.

Moreover, in this Book (which was bought of me) are ſome curious Matters, not belonging to the main Collection; as for Inſtance,

2. K. Henry VIIIth's Warant, whereby Bartholomewe Heſketh, for divers Infirmities which he hathe in hys hede, cannot convenyently, withoute greate Daunger be diſ-couered of the ſame; was licencyd to vſe & were hys Bonet vpone hys hede, aſwelle in his Preſence as elliſwhere, at hys Libertie. Yevin the 15th of Novembre in the 18th yere of his Reigne. 7. b.

Such a Warrant as this was obtained before, of the ſame King, by Stephen Tucker; as may be ſeen by the Original Viſitation-book of Cornwal inſcribed (in this Library) 66 B. 17. at fol. 68. upon which the Deſcendants of the ſaid Stephen have ſeemed to value themſelves, as if their Anceſtor had received an Honor Equivalent to that of a Spaniſh Grandee of the Firſt Rank (vid. Catal. Brev. Vol. III. p. 342.)

3. Warrant from the ſame King, for certain Gentilmen during their Lives to kepe Croſbowes in their Houſes, and to occupie & ſhote in the ſame, at their Pleaſure. Yeven . . Novembre, the 18th Yere of his Reigne. 7. b.

The Tranſlation including but Five Books; it may ſeem that no more, in Greek, were then printed.

This Mrs. Mary Clarcke being a perſon of rare Learning & other Endowments; I ſhall take Leave to make ſome little mention of her Family; and the rather becauſe She is omitted (as alſo the learned Works of her Mother) in the Firſt Volume of my late induſtrious Friend Anthony Wood's Athenæ Oxonienſes; although he might eaſily have introduced them both under the Title of this Maries Grandfather.

That I may, therefore, in ſome ſmall degree contribute toward preſerving the Memory of two learned & deſerving Engliſh Gentlewomen; It may be remembered that this MARY was firſt married to Mr. Stephen Clarcke; and afterward, to Mr. James Baſſet of Blome. She was the eldeſt Daughter of William Roper of Eltham, Secundary of the Kings Bench in the time of K. Henry VIII. by MARGARET the eldeſt Daughter of the Famous Sir THOMAS MORE. Which William, was Son to John Roper of Eltham, Attorney-Generall & Principall Clerk of the Pleas. He was alſo Unkle to that Sir John Roper who was created Baron of Tenham the 4th of July A. D. 1616.

Concerning Margaret the Mother to our Mary, not a little may be gathered from the Life of Sir Thomas More, a MS. in this Library inſcribed 68. C. 6. (whether the ſame was compiled by Mr. Thomas More her Nephew, or by any other) and from other books: all which may be much better & more handſomely done by MRS. ELIZABETH ELSTOB, a Virgin who hath trodden in the unfrequented Paths of theſe and other Perſonages ages of her own Sex; and (as they did, to their great Glory & laſting Reputation) hath added Learning, the foundation of ſolid Wiſdom & Judgment, to Natural Modeſty & Sanctity of Manners.

But to return; in the ſaid MS. 68. C. 6. fol. 165. I find this following Paſſage, "This bleſſed Couple (William Roper & Margaret More) had a Daughter whoſe Name was Marie. Full learned She was in the Liberall Sciencis. Firſt She was married to Mr. Clarke; afterwards She was married to Mr. Baſſet, one of the Privie-Chamber, in Queene Maries tyme; and She hirſelfe was one of the Mayds of Honour. This Gentlewoman very hanſomelie tranſlated the Eccleſiaſticall Hiſtorie of Euſebius out of Greeke into Latyn; and after, into Engliſh; yet extant, to the Shame of the Heriticall Tranſlation of Meridith Hanmer. Which, for that Chriſtopherſone Biſhop of Lincolne his Tranſlation was then famos & extent, Hers came not to Printe; the Engliſh may hereafter. She tranſlated the Hiſtorie of Socratis, Theodoretus, Sozomenus, and Euagrius: theſe of her Modeſtie they cauſed to be ſuppreſſed. She alſo tranſlated a Treatiſe of hir Grandfather Sir Thomas, made upon the Paſſione; & ſo elegantlie hath penned it, that a man wold thincke it were Originallie writ in the Engliſh Tongue by Sir Thomas himſelf."

A parchment Book in ſmall fol. (or large 4to) bought of me: wherein are contained, in old Engliſh,

1. þe Table vpon þe Temporal; & vpon þe Propre Sanctorum; & vpon þe Comyn Sanctorum; of Goſpells: þat ben raad in þe Chirche þoruz þe zeer: and houz þei ſchulle be founde in þis Booke. 1.

2. Numerus Capitum uniuſcujuſque Novi Teſtamenti Libri. 3. b.

3. A Note, perhaps inſerted by the Abbat of Taviſtock, in theſe words, "The Agreement of the IIII Evangylys after Saynt Jerame. Seech the Concordans of Saynt Jerame in the Latyne Bybylls, of that Work." 4.

Hitherto all is written on Paper faſtened at the beginning of the Parchment Book.

4. Another Table, ſhewing Houz a Man may fynde in this Book þe Dominicall Goſpelles aftir Saleſbury Uſe. 5. b.

5. A Treatiſe thus entituled at the end. "Oon of Foure; þat is, o Booc of alle þe Foure Goſpeleris, gaddered ſhortli into o Storie bi Clement of Lantony." 7.

Before the Treatiſe, is a Prologue; and alſo the Contents of the Chapters in each of the Twelve Books.

Although I remember to have formerly ſeen divers Copies of Clement of Llanthonies Harmony, yet not having any convenience of conſulting any of them at this Inſtant of time, I cannot pronounce whether this be a Tranſlation, or an Abridgement of Him. John Leland writing of this Clement, & of his Concordia Evangeliſtarum, affirmeth that it beginneth thus, "Quæris qua fretus autoritate." Pitſæus ſaith not the ſame, but that thoſe words did begin his Commentary upon the Evangeliſts in Four Books. The Concordia Quatuor Evangeliſtarum in Twelve Books (which anſwereth to the preſent Work) he calleth Opus Imperfectum, and aſcribes this Beginning unto it, "Hujus Operis ſibi Chariſſime;" adding moreover this Remark, 'Supremam Operi manum impoſuit, longo poſt tempore, Guilhelmus Nottinghamus.' In this MS. the Prologue beginneth with theſe Words, "Clement a Preeſt of þe Chirche of Lantony gaderede alle þe Sentences of þe Four Goſpeleris in to o Storie." The Begining of the Worke its ſelf, is that of St. Johns Goſpel, and neither of theſe are congruous to the others.

However, the late learned Mr. Henry Wharton in the Appendix to the firſt part of Dr. Cave's Hiſtoria Litteraria, pag. 54. giving a Liſt of the Works of John Wyclyffe which he himſelf had ſeen, hath theſe words, "HARMONIA EVANGELICA, a ClementePreſbytero Lanthonienſi——Latino Sermone contexta, a Wiclefo Anglice converſa, MS. penes Richardum Chiſwell Bibliopolam Londinenſem, 4to." (Now I know that the preſent MS. was formerly in the poſſeſſion of the ſaid Chiſwell; and that what Mr. Wharton immediately after ſtyleth Commentarius in Selecta S. Scripturæ loca, Anglice. MS. 4to, apud eundem, is that Book of Poſtills upon the Pſalms & Cantica Sacra, now in this Library Inſcribed No. 1806. (but this by way of Digreſſion only) Mr. Wharton doth not declare his Reaſon for aſcribing the Work to J. Wyclyffe, although he might have a very good one, and I not know it. And it may have been done by that great Man (who laboured very much in making the Holy Scriptures intelligible to the Common people) for ought that I can ſay to the contrary. It plainly appeareth by two ſeveral places (viz. upon the inſide of the firſt ſpare Leaf; and by fol. 7.) that in the Year 1566, it belonged to Francis Ruſſel Earl of Bedford; and by his putting his Name & Title twice in the ſame

Num. 1862, 1863.

Book, it may ſeem that he had more than an ordinary Value for it. The like he did by two Books of Saxon Homilies which the ſame year 1566. Mr. Ferrar one of his Servants found in the Library of the Monaſtery of Taviſtock; which books ſtill remain the one in the Univerſity-Library of Cambridge, the other in Cottons Library at Weſtminſter; & are both deſcribed in my Printed Catalogue of Anglo-Saxon MSS. Moreover, that this ſame Francis Earl of Bedford had divers of Wyclyffes Works, is plain from the Extract of his Will, in Dugd. Bar. Tom. 11. pag. 379. col. 2. wherein it is recited that he bequeathed to the Lord Burleigh, then Lord High Treaſurer of England——all his antient Manuſcript-Books of Wicliffs Works; and how the Cecilian Library was afterwards diſtracted; how, many of the MSS. were bought by Bruce Earl of Ailſbury; how Aileſburies Library was publicly ſold, and (as to the MSS.) to whom and at what rates; is ſtill known by ſome people now living. So that upon the whole, I can eaſily believe this preſent MS. & No. 1806. to have been two of the Wicklivian Books, formerly belonging to that Noble Earl. But to return to the Contents of this.

After the Harmony of the Goſpels above-mentioned, follow,

6. The Contents of a large Theological Treatiſe, as divided into 166 Chapters. 78.

7. The Treatiſe it ſelf, being Theological Common-Places, all taken from the Holy Scriptures (or Vulgar Latin Bible) or a Summe of Scripture, and anſwering to the Contents of the Chapters aforeſaid. A work worthy of John Wyclyffe, in my poor Judgement, or any other Engliſh Divine of that time.

Laſtly, it may be obſerved the Language & Style, uſed in this Book, is ſuitable to Mr. John Wycliffe ſo often above-mentioned.

Herein that Noble Lord was inſtructed, among other points, that foraſmuch as the performeing of that Ceremonye, of likelyhood would bee done in the Kings Chappell, he ſhould have a ſpeciall care that it ſhould not be done in the Forenoon att the tyme of Maſſe, to the Scandall of the Proteſtant Religion; but rather in the afternoone, at what tyme theire ſervice is more free from Note of Superſtition.

2. The Kings Inſtructions for Sir Charles Cornwalleis Knt. ſent as his Ambaſſadour to reſide with his good Brother the Kinge of Spaine. 4. b.

6. A Lettre to the same, written from the Groyne, 27 April 1605. 12. b.
Upon Occasion of the Incident which had happened by the Decease of an English-man, whom the Spaniards would not permit to be buried in their Ground: whom, notwithstanding, the Earl of Notingham had caused to be buried there privately.

7. A Lettre to the Earl of Northampton from Valledolid, 29 May 1605. 14.
Importing that the Constable of Castile had not hitherto shewn him much Courtesie or Respect. That the Spaniards spake honorably of His Lordship, the Lord Cranbourne, & the Earl of Suffolk: that he desired his Lordship to be a meane to continue him in the Lord Cranbourne's good Opinion: and hinting as if his Allowance was too short in a dear Countrey, especially while he continued in Debt.

8. To the Lords of the Councell, written from Valledolid, 31 May 1605. 16.
Describing the Public Entry which the Earl of Notingham, his Majesties Ambassador Extraordinary made into that Citty; and the Reception they both had from the King & Queen of Spain & Constable of Castile, &c. The Conference with the Conde de Olivarez, and the Reasons he gave why it would not be convenient that his King should swear to the performance of the Treaty in his Chapell; and why they could not be admitted to dine with Him, which was an Honor he had always refused not only to Ambassadors, but to Cardinals, & Popes Nuncios being Cardinals; nay, even to the Duke of Savoy a Sovereign Prince & his near Kinsman. An Account of the Dinner of Honor they had at the Duke of Lerma's (where the King & Queen saw all) and there were Two Marquisses & Two Earls (a thing very extraordinary in Spaine) who waited at the Table: Of a Religious Procession whereat the King and Court assisted, and where there was a remarkable mixture of things prophane with sacred matters. For in the same were seen Counterfeit Dragons, Giants, & disguised Moris-dancers who danced & sang within the Ranks of some of the Fryars. The Ceremony of the Kings taking the Oath abovementioned & Signing the Treaty. How the King invited them to the Sight of the Jurgo de Torros, & the Jurgo de Cannas with other matters.

And that the Spaniards began to expect the good effects of their Treaty with England, in regard to the Hollanders.

13. To the Lords of the Councell, from Villadolid, 9 Junij. 40.
Concerning the State of the Spanish Court; & that the Council were well affected to the King of England, & respectful to himself; so that he hoped he should be able to procure redress to the Complaints of our Merchants. That the dilatorines of the Spanish Counsels hindred them from laying hold on proper Opportunities; and that their chiefest Virtue is their Secresie.

14. To His Majestie, from Villadolid, 9 Julij, 1605. 42.
Giving a Character of the Spaniards, and of their good affection toward his Majesty. That there was a rumor as if the French endeavoured to procure a Marriage between the Dolphin & the Infanta; and to play some game in Scotland.

Pursuing what he before wrote to the King; that he is advertised that the French Ambassador had written to his Court by way of Complaint against Him, for which he had given no Occasion unless it might be once in the Punctilio of a Ceremony. That a Marriage having been agreed upon between the Prince of Mantua & the second Daughter of the Duke of Savoy, which might possibly produce somewhat prejudicial to the Spanish Interest in Italy; the King had written to the Duke :-: (in a sort Mandatory) to relinquish the Treatie; which he took in verie evil part, since he might not dispose of his own Children, or have leave to performe his Word. That one Captain Atkinson had been in Conference with the Conde de Villa-longa one of the Spanish Secretaries of State; and was willing to impart some projects unto them for disturbing the Hollanders Fishing on our Coasts, if our King did not employ him; and that, in the mean time they had given him a Chaine of 160 pounds value.

20. To the ſame. 54. b.

Giving an Account of the tottering condition of the Spaniſh Monarchy. That many Penſions were given to Engliſh, Scots, & Iriſh, who yet would willingly get into their own Countreys, if they could. That a Spaniſh Lady had undertaken a journey to England, in order to convert the Queen. That if the King of Spain could be at Peace with the Hollanders, he would turn his whole force againſt the Moors of Africa. That himſelf had an Humour fallen into his Feet; and lived at exceſſive Charges.

21. To the Earle of Northampton, 27 Julij, 1605. 58. b.

Referring to other Letters; in the Merchants Cauſes, complaineth at large of the Intricacy and Delayes uſed in the Spaniſh Court; and returneth his Thanks for Favors received.

22. To the Earle of Saliſbury, from Villadolid, 28 July 1605. 16.

Relating ſeveral Projects of the Spaniards, in Order to a cloſer Amity with England; as calling a General Council, for ſettling all diſputable points in Religion; marrying the Prince of Wales to their Infanta, who might have part of the Low Countries to Her Portion; giving to the King a Yearly Penſion of ſome Millions of Ducats, and ſecurity for it, &c. He alſo expatiates upon the Diſcommodities which may accrue unto England by a long Peace; as the Deſtruction of the Navy Royall, Loſs of Maſters, Pilots, Mariners, &c.

23. To the Lords of the Council, from Villadolid, 28 July 1605. 65. b.

Relating his Anſwer upon the Expoſtulation made unto him by the Kings Order, that he had Engliſh Prayers read in his Houſe, and the Calvinian Religion openly preached there, to the Scandal of good Catholics, & the endangering the Kings ſubjects: as had been vehemently ſett forth by a Dominican in his Sermon: with other Mercantile affairs.

24. To Sir Thomas Parey His Majeſties Ambaſſador Reſident in Fraunce: from Villadolid, 5 Auguſt 1605. 71.

Concerning the projected match of the Dauphin with the Infanta.

25. To the Lords of the Councell: from Villadolid, 7 Auguſt 1605. 72.

That the King of Spain intended to move the King of Denmark to forbid all Commerce with the Hollanders; & to recompence him the Loſs to be ſuſtained in his Cuſtoms thereby. That the French were endeavoring to have a Cardinals Hat & divers Epiſcopal Miters beſtowed upon Engliſhmen; which was oppoſed by the Engliſh Jeſuits, who deſired rather to pleaſe & not to offend his Majeſtie. That there was a Report as if the younger Son of the Earl of Tyrone (then in Spain) bare a malignant Humour to our Nation. He complaineth much of the extreme delays & protraction of Time uſed by the Spaniards, and of the Dearth of Corn at Villadolid through the idleneſs and careleſneſs of the Government: and that the Jeſuits keep a ſtrict but ſecret Correſpondence with the Catholics in England.

26. To the Lords of the Councell from Villadolid, 18 Auguſt 1605. 76. b.

That the Earl Bothwell & others were endeavoring to diſturb Scotland; but that their Offers were rejected by the Spaniards. That the ſaid Earl is like to be clapped up in the Inquiſition, having lately brought his Concubine to the Church & there took the Sacrament with her, which Act was deemed to proceed from Irreligion, or at leaſt from Irreverence; that by dealing in Aſtrological matters, he had incurred the Suſpicion of a Sorcerer.

Num. 1875.

27. To the Earl of Saliſbury, from Villadolid, 13 Auguſt. 8. b.

Concerning the Ill will of ſome Scots; that the Conde de Villa-Mediana had created ſome diſtaſte againſt himſelf, as not appearing to be ſo able a Politician as he was thought to be. That ſome in his Houſehold ſeemed ſomewhat inclined to Popery, being induced thereunto by the Pomp of their Ceremonies. Among others, he is in much fear of his own Chaplain, Mr. Wadſworth a Bachelor in Divinity of the Univerſity of Cambridge, & a learned man; whom therefore he meaneth to ſend into England, where he may be well looked after. That his family is very ſickly; and among the reſt, four have the Diſeaſe called Taberdilio.

28. To the ſame, from Villadolid, 20 Auguſt 1605. 82.

Advertiſing him of the Arguments he uſed with the Spaniards, in Order to induce them to redreſs the many Grievances complained of by our Merchants. That this might be furthered, if the Lords of the Council would write a Letter to him, reprehending him as if he had been negligent in that affair, &c.

29. To the Earle of Suffolke (Thomas Howard) Lord Chamberlaine to His Majeſtie. 85.

A Letter of Compliment & Thanks.

30. To the Earle of Saliſbury, from Villadolid 24 Auguſt 1605. 85. b.

Complaining of Sir Thomas Southwells Ingratitude to him. That the Spaniards ſtill continue jealous of his Lordſhip, as if he was not well affected to them. That the French labor much to procure a ſtricter Amity with the Spaniard. That Carre, brother to the Lord of Newbotle, is ſending an evil Inſtrument into Scotland, whom he will endeavour to intercept.

31. The Contents of a Lettre written to the Earle of Notingham Lord High Admiral of England, from Villadolid 2 September 1605. 88. b.

Concerning ſome reflecting Speeches which the Earl had uſed concerning him; whereupon Sir Charles wrote, That his Lordſhip having, by favour of the Prince he ſerved, atteyned Tytles of Honor, would have in Memorie that he was borne onely Mr. Charles Howard, and that He was borne Charles Cornwallyes. That his Lordſhip was extract of the moſt Noble Houſe of Norfolke; and that it might be, He could prove himſelf was deſcended from the beſt Houſes of England. That whereas his Lordſhip had proffered unto him his Honorable Love & Favour, He accepted of the ſame. And whereas His Lordſhip had ſaid that if His Majeſtie would not lend unto him the 5000l. he deſired, that himſelf would: Sir Charles is willing to borrow 500l. and give him Security for it.

32. To the Earle of Saliſbury. 90. b.

Concerning the Bearer (whom I ſuppoſe to be his ſon) to whom he gave 200 Pounds per ann. upon his Mariage, and within two Years after did pay all his Debts; who having ſpent & ſold all, Sir Charles upon his Lordſhips Recommendation, doth now give him 200 Pounds per ann. more, and a good Character.

33. To the ſame, from Villadolid, 4 September 1605. 93.

Complaining of the unwholeſome Air, which hath brought the Countrey-Diſtemper upon him. Thanks his Lordſhip for procuring an Increaſe of his Allowance. Shewing that the Spaniards give good Words, but abuſe our Merchants by their Delaies & other Injuries, to the Diſhonor of our King. That the Conde de Villa Longa ſpake largely of the Deſire had there of a Marriage betweene the Prince of Wales & the Infanta; and wiſhed him neither to truſt the French, nor Venetian Ambaſſadors; which Counſel Sir Charles imputeth to the Spaniſh Jealouſie.

34. To the Lords of the Counſell, from Villadolid, 6 September 1605. 98. b.

Sending

Num. 1875.

Sending the Answer of the K. of Spains Council to His Two Memorials in behalf of the English Merchants, whose Business he begins to hope he may at length draw into some Conclusion, although not suitable to the Justice of their Cause. All this he imputeth to the villany of the Spanish Officers, which is so exorbitant, that our Merchants had better bear with the loss of their Goods at the first, if not too great, than to lose more time & money, with the hazard of their Healths & Lives in seeking for Redress. He here giveth two Instances of the Spanish Injustice, one is, briefly, A Scots Ship and Cargo was seized & confiscated divers years since, as belonging to the English; Testimonies were produced from the Kings Council in Scotland, as also from His Majesty himself under his Seal, that no part thereof did belong to any Englishmen, which Royal Testimony, by the Laws of Spain, ought to be received without exception. The Spaniards, to evade the same, aliedged that the King not being under the Obedience of the Pope, nor in the Union of the Catholick Church, no Credit could be given to his Testimony. However, the Advocate for the Scotsman urged, that this Exception was invalid, since there was no Excommunication or other Public Denunciation against the King. He could do no good. That the Spaniards being advertized from England that some dislike had arisen between the King & the Parliament, and that His Treasury was exhausted; began to sett less Value upon the Peace than before; but upon his Answers were brought into better Order.

35. Translation of the Memorial which Sir Charles Cornwallis sent unto the King of Spain by Mr. Ousley his Secretarie for the Spanish Tongue, at Burgos, in behalf of the English Merchaunts Tradeinge into Spain; with the answer of that Kings Councill apostilled, 14 September 1605. 104. b.

36. The Contents of a Letter to the Earle of Salisbury, from Villadolid, 8 September 1605. 110.

That upon Advertizement out of England that his Lordship is a great Enemie to Spaine, some of the Spanish Counsel wished there should be a present Denuntiation of his malignant Humour to the King; and if therewith not amended, that then a shorter Course be taken with him. That the Duke of Lerma & Conde de Villa-Longa misliked those Motions, and would by no means there should be any violent Course used. That Mr. Carre's sending his Man now into Scotland, is with no good Intent. That Secretary Prada hath promised him quicker Dispatch for the future. He, however, adviseth that by some general Musters, in themselves by reason of their long omission, not unnecessary; by preparation of Ships, or some other way, the Spaniards may be brought to muse, though not to mistrust. That he found good use of Creswell, Superior of the English Jesuits there, who although he be desirous to propagate his Religion, retaineth nevertheless a faithful & loving Disposition to our King and Countrey: That his Family holdeth firm to their Religion, except his Chaplain, of whom however he hopeth the best, since he hath sent no Message to the House of late. That Henry O Neal sonne to the Earle of Tyrone is designed for a Colonell to a Regiment of Irish in the Low-Countreys, which he misliketh, although the same O Neal hath given proofs of his good affection to our Nation.

37. To the Earle of Southampton (Henry Wriothesley) from Villadolid. 114.

Recommending his Son unto him, in the first place; & then, shewing how they both might get Money by transporting Corn from England to Spain, where it was much wanted.

38. To Sir George Bucke Knt. from Villadolid. 115. b.

Hinting as if the King of Spains not giving him a Medal, was occasioned by the Earl of Notingham, against whom Sir Charles was somewhat piqued; although he takes great Comfort that he hath ever avoided, as to all men, revenging Resolutions. That since the Earls Departure from Spaine, God & Tyme hath made Paules Steeple known to be but a Steeple; and poore White-Chapel a Church; which though low & little, is yet in its Measure, not unfitt for the Use it is putt unto. He heareth not of any Book written of the Entertaynement of my Lord Admirall (i. e. the Earl of Notingham) He came (says Sir Charles) He was here; He is gone; & so is his Memory, save onely in the Shoppes of this Cittie, where the Spanish Gallants, will continue it yet for a Year or two.

Num. 1875.

39. To the Lords of the Councell; from Villadolid.

That the King of Spain hath had the Flux, but is well; that the Queen hath laboured of the dangerous Disease of the Taberdillio (which I take to be the same with Purples, or rather Plague-spots) and remains yet in Gods balance; also, that there have been solemn Procession & Prayers for her; Sir Charles & his Family praying at the same time for her in his House. That the Indian Fleet came not well back, and, as it was said, brought but half a Million of Treasure. That 36 Ships are going from Lisbon to Holland. That it was reported, as if the King of Spain was about to raise the Value of his Coin, whereby he would gain 15 Millions. Desireth further Directions how to proceed in the Merchants Affairs; and advertizeth his proceedings with relation to the Contestable Articles of the Treaty, which he is afraid he shall not be able to go through without Bribes; for money was grown so scarce at Court, as it was said, that at the Kings last Remove, they had much adoe to defray the Ordinarie Charge of his Journey.

40. To the Earl of Salisbury, from Villadolid, 15 September 1605. 121. b.

That advertisement had come hither from England, that a revolted Popish Priest had a Warrant for saying Prayers according to the Popish way (if I understand the Expressions aright) from the Archbishop of Canterbury & his Lordship. That there had been a working to remove the English Jesuits from thence to Salamanca; & that Parsons the Jesuit had a mind to come from Rome thither, & send Creswell to Rome in his stead; which Exchange Sir Charles liked not: That at Villadolid there is a Conntrey-man of his, one Walpole a Jesuit, a hot-headed Fellowe, & as full of Practize as he is of Learning: that he had laid some Baites for him, to drawe his Tongue to witnesse the Malice of his Hearte; wherein if he could prevaile, he doubted not to obtain his Removal from thence. That his Chaplain had revolted; and as it was secretly said, was to go to Rome, and that the King had given him a Pension of 40 Duckets the Month. He desireth that his poor Son may be no Step-child to the Kings Grace & Bounty, since a Matter of no great Value would cleare the Estate to Him.

41. To the same, from Villadolid. 124. b.

Gives his Lordship the certain Number of Ships & Gallies, which went from Lisbon, under Command of Don Lewes de Flixado. That the Spaniards were again grown stiffe, as to the Dispatch of our Merchants Suits, upon a false Report as if Justice had been denied to them here. But upon advertisement that our King had lately caused 3 or 4 principal Pyrats to be executed, their Minds are made somewhat more benevolent, & they promise speedy Dispatch.

42. To the Lords of the Councell, from Valiodalid. 126.

Advertiseth the Imprisonment of some Englishmen at St. Jehan de Luz, upon a false Accusation, as if they had design to take the Town of Bayonne. And that many lying Rumours having been spread as if the Kings of Great-Britain & Spain had a Design to attack France, he had a Conference with the French Ambassador thereupon, who had promised Satisfaction should be made to the King.

43. A Letre to the Duke of Lerma; mentioned in another another to the Lords of the Councell, bearing date the 15th of September; a Copie thereof being ſent unto them. 128.

Complaining of the grievous delays of the Spaniſh Courts, in redreſſing the Wrongs committed by the Spaniards, Sicilians, & Portugeſe upon the Engliſh; and tacitly threatening a Rupture between the two Crowns if Satisfaction were not ſoon made for what was paſt, and a Stop put to ſuch Proceedings for the future.

Here followeth the Coppies of ſuch Letres as were written to Sir Charles Cornwallyes Knight, his Majeſties Ambaſſadour-Leiger with the King of Spaine during the tyme of his Ambaſſage; both from England, and alſoe from His Majeſties Ambaſſadours, vizt. of France, Venice, & Flaunders.

44. From the Lords of the Councell, 31 May 1605. 133.

Requiring him to ſollicit the Cauſes of the Merchants who had ſuffered by the Spaniards; particularly that of John Eldred, &c. who had laded the Ship Tryal with Merchandize to the value of 40000 Duckets. This rich Ship was taken by the Vice-Roy of Sicilie's Ships or Gallies, upon pretence that it was a Man of War, which had taken the Goods by Pyracy. They tortured therefore the Merchant, Maſter, & Purſer, to make them confeſs this pretended Piracy, ſo that they all died in Priſon: and the meaner fellows, in order to eſcape the like inhuman Treatment, had confeſſed what they knew to be falſe.

45. From Henry Howard Earl of Northampton & Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports. 136.

Recommending the Cauſe of the Sicilian Merchants abovementioned; and exhorting him to tranſact the Affairs entruſted to him, with Diligence & Dexterity.

46. From the Earl of Saliſbury, Principal Secretary of State, 20 June 1605. 138.

Concerning the Hollanders attacking the Spaniards within the Limits of the Ports of Dover, where they were defended by our Cannon. With Inſtructious how to anſwer to all Demands of the Spaniards ariſing from that Accident; which ſeemed to have been (as to their coming into our Harbour) projected by themſelves; who now alſo deſired Our King to ſett their Souldiers ſafely on ſhoar in Flanders, out of danger from the Hollanders, &c.

47. From Sir Thomas Parry, his Majeſties Ambaſſadour in France,

48. From the Lord Thomas Howard of Effingham. 146.

49. From Thomas Howard Earle of Suffolk, Lord Chamberleine. 147.

This is a very kind Letter, and ſheweth the Heart of a truly noble Perſon.

50. From Charles Howard Earle of Nottingham, Lord High-Admiral of England.

Recommending the Cauſe of one George Strawyn a Scots-man, whoſe Ship and Lading to the burthen of 140 Tons in the late War was ſeized by the Spaniards, & divers of the Men cruelly burned by the Inquiſition. The loſs of the Goods amounted to 40000 Ducats.

51. From Sir Thomas Parrey, his Majeſties Ambaſſador in France. 148. b.

Recommending the Suit of Mr. Kadiſhe unto him.

52. From the Earle of Saliſbury. 149.

Concerning Sir Charle's domeſtic Affairs, and deſiring him to add to the Proviſion he had already made for his ſon William. That the Spaniards here had ſo far inſiſted upon Our Kings tranſporting their Souldiers from Dover to Flanders, as that he had ſent to deſire the Dutch to give their Conſent unto it.

53. From Sir Thomas Edmunds, His Majeſties Ambaſſador reſident with the Arch-Duke. 153. b.

That the Dutch would not conſent to our Kings tranſportation of the Spaniſh Souldiers remaining at Dover, to Flanders. That the Lord Arundel of Wardour was expected to be Colonel of the Engliſh Regiment in the Service of the Arch-Duke, which was already encreaſed to 1500 men. That the Lord Humes Scotch Regiment was not yet come. And that the Marquis of Spinole went on proſperouſly againſt the Hollanders.

54. From the Earle of Northampton. 156. b.

A long Letter; reflecting on the Pride, Ambition, & Deceitfulneſs of the Earl of Notingham Lord High Admiral, his kinſman, & the Conteſt between him & Sir Charles, whom he had not been able to hurt. That at a proper time He would ſtand Sir Charles's friend, in the matter of augmenting his Allowance. He adviſeth Sir Charles to cultivate the Amity ſo newly eſtabliſhed between the two Crowns; and tacitly blameth Sir Francis Walſingham, who by inflaming Matters, partly occaſioned that Warre, which was then the Quinteſſence of his Delight, and is now the Torment of his Tranſgreſſion. On this occaſion, the ſame Noble Earl proceedeth in a manner not unſuitable to theſe Times. Amongſt other Toyes (ſaith He) we looke for ſome Straines in the Parliament for the renewing of a Warre; and the more violent in reſpect of the late Reports of Scarcity, of Penurie, & Weaknes in thoſe parts. For though it be true that by Warre we were as poore as they; that the Realme would give no more; the Revenue could afford noe more; and that the Queene ſold her Land by Lumpes: yet all are now perſwaded that, without a Peace, the King of Spaine would have reſigned upp unto the Kings Hands his whole Dominion. Such is our aptneſs to be puffed upp with Toyes, and thinke all loſt that is not undertaken out of Humour without ground, according to the Proportions that are likewiſe holden in graviſſimis by ſundrey Perſons in this State, whoſe Judgments are diſtracted, and their Heads diſtempered. He advertizeth alſo Sir Charles, that his unkind brother Southwell had made many attempts to work him prejudice; both with the King & others: but that the Earl of Saliſbury, himſelf, &c. had baffled & diſappointed the ſame; but that however, he would adviſe him to ſettle his Eſtate, & make ſome good Allowance to his Son, whereupon he might ſubſiſt, untill the Kings favor ſhould be extended to him.

55. From Sir Henry Wotton, his Majeſties Ambaſſadour reſident with the States of Venice. (October A. D. 1605.) 168.

Deſiring to keep a continued & regular Correſpondence with him, as well in order to promote the Intereſt of the King their Maſter, as to improve their former Acquaintance. For which end he would (in his next) ſend Sir Charles a Cyfer with ſome Abbreviations.

56. Sir Charles's Anſwer to the foregoing Letter, in very civil & frendly Terms. Advertiſing him moreover of the departure of the Spaniſh Fleet. That it was thought that the Conſtable ſhould preſently be ſent into Germany, to negociate an Election of the King of the Romans; and that the Duke of Seſſa ſhould goe for an Ambaſſador Reſident in Rome. He ſendeth Sir Henry therewith a Diſcourſe of that Dukes concerning the late ſtirring of Humours in Italy by the Counte of Fuentes; and writeth kindly of Mr. Wotton, Nephew to Sir Henry, who was then with him in Spain.

57. A Diſcourſe upon the Citation, by Order from the Governor of Millan, the firſt of July 1605. 171. b.

This ſeemeth to be the Diſcourſe mentioned in the laſt Letter; and ſtriketh againſt the Judgment of thoſe who were for the King of Spains reviving his Pretenſions to many Places or Fiefs in Italy, and among the Griſons, &c.

58. A Letter from the Earle of Saliſbury to Sir Charles, 12 Sept. 1605. 176.

Advertiſing, that the King was returned ſafe from his Progreſs, and about a Month after the Terme, would hold a Parliament, in which Seſſion, his Lordſhip hoped, thoſe things would be concluded, which might bee an Occaſion to deferre anie of thoſe Aſſemblies, for ſome good Space; the two principal Propoſitions to be debated therein, being matter of the Unyon & Subſidie. That although Spinola had gotten Reputation in the Netherlands; yet there was likely to be leſs alteration there, than either of the contending parties had promiſed to themſelves. That the Scots had ſpurned againſt his Majeſties deſign of adorning that Kingdom with Biſhops; & had in ſome Parts of that Realme preſumed to hold their General Aſſemblies contrarie to his Commandment. That thereupon, divers Lords had been cyted before the Council, cenſured, & ſent to Priſon. He anſwereth to divers of the Advertiſements ſent formerly unto him by Sir Charles; and (amongſt others) to that about his Chaplains turning Papiſt; that a Prieſt belonging to the Count de Villa-Mediana here, is now become converted, & defyeth all Romane Corruption. That his Majeſtie had approved his anſwer to Don Blaſco, and had willed him to tell him, that when it ſhall not be as free for him (Sir Charles) uſing it has he had done, to receive the Comfortable Foode & Exercize of Prayer & Preachinge in his Familie, as it is for the Spaniſh Ambaſſadour on this ſide, He is reſolved, without Diſpute or Delay, to revoke him home. That the Dutch had reſolutely denied their Conſent to the quiet Paſſage of the Spaniſh Souldiers in Dover, to Flanders, and therefore he directeth him how to anſwer thoſe in Spain who ſhould believe that Our King ought to have exerted himſelf further, with reſpect to the Hollanders, on that occaſion. And that the Lord Arundel of Wardour, who had diſobeyed his Majeſties Command by going into Flanders in a manner contrary to his Pleaſure, of which his Lordſhip had been appriſed; was commanded, after the Campaign ſhould be over, & the repartition of his Regiment ſettled, to render his perſon before the Council, and ſoe to abide his Majeſties farther Cenſure.

59. The Kings Letre or Diſcourſe concerning the unlawful Aſſembly or Councell lately held by the Miniſters of Scotland; ſent into Spaine to my Lord Ambaſſadour Cornwallyes, by the Earle of Saliſbury, with the Former Letre A. D. 1605. 186. b.

60. A Propoſition made by Mr. Winwood from his Majeſtie unto the States of the Lowe-Countreys touching the Tranſportation of the Spaniards that arrived for Succour at Dover, into Flanders: and the aunſwere made from the States unto His Majeſtie. 191. b.

Theſe Pieces are both in French; and the laſt beareth date, 2 Auguſt 1605.

61. A Letter from Sir Thomas Edmondes His Majeſties Ambaſſadour-Reſident with the Arch-Duke in Flanders, to Sir Charles Cornwallyes 20 September 1605. 198. b.

Of the Ill Succeſs attending the Enterprize of a French Officer named Monſieur de Terraile, who would needs attempt the taking of Berghen op Zoom by Surprize. That the Count de Villa-Mediani was arrived, very well ſatisfied with his Reception at the Court of England; and that the Spaniards at Dover were reſolved to ſteal into Flanders by Night, in hope of paſſing thither undiſcovered by the Dutch. Finally, that the Princes were newly returned from the Pilgrimage they had devoutly made to the Lady of Sichem (who had great Reputation there) in hopes of obteyning of Iſſue by her means.

62. Sir Charles Cornwallyes, to the Earl of Saliſbury Principall Secretary to his Majeſty, from Valiodalid, 18 October 1605. 200. b.

Advertiſing, that Sir Anthony Shirely & Sir Edward Riche (who had ſhaped their Religion to the Spaniſh State, & to each of whom the K. of Spain giveth 200 Crowns a Month) being attended with Ten Servants had hired a Ship at Cales, to paſs over into Barbary. That 17 young men were lately received into the College of the Engliſh Jeſuits at Sevil. That the Spaniſh Councils were very intent upon ſome great matter, and were extraordinarily aſſembled. That they were grown mighty up piſh with reſpect to England, (from whence they had too many advertiſements) and were reſolved to amuſe him with Hopes of Diſpatch, & yet to do little or nothing in his Buſineſs. He wiſheth therefore, that the Parliament would make ſome Motions, backed by ſound Reaſons, for breaking the Peace, and ſupporting the King in a new War with them; which would ſurely bring them back to a better Temper.

63. Another, to the ſame: from Valiodalid. 202. b.

Advertiſing, that the Spaniſh Ambaſſador in England being judged unapt for his Employ, it was propoſed to ſend him an Aſſiſtant, whom ſome thought would be a Scot. He enlargeth much upon the Pride, Lazineſs, & dilatory Humour of the Spaniards, which had hitherto held them from doing any thing in the Cauſes of the Engliſh Merchants, who were almoſt ruined by the delay. That therefore he thinketh a ſhort Courſe with them would have the beſt effect, and probably awake them from their Lethargy. That when things have been conſulted upon & determined in the Councils, all the Papers are ſent to the Duke of Lerma; and if there be a Bird to be ſhot in the Woods, an Hare in the Field, or Rabbit in the Borow they lie dead, though they concerne the Life or Soule of the Poore, or the Greateſt Good whatſoever of the Common. That he hopeth, by the next, to give his Majeſty a good foundation of the Projects mentioned above at § 22. which have been ſince conſidered by the Duke of Lerma, &c. and approved. That the Lord Wotton's Son was dead, & honorably buried (Sir Charles laying down the Money, ſince the Young Gentleman had been diſappointed of his fathers Remittances) but died a Papiſt being ſeduced by Walpoole the Jeſuit.

64. To the Earl of Northampton, from Valiadolid. 209.

Complaining of the different Uſage he meeteth with in Spain, from that given to the Spaniſh Ambaſſador in England; although he ſeeth that the Spaniards (notwithſtanding the Earl of Notingham's browbeating him there) continued to ſhew him a much better countenance than they did to others; and had promiſed to compound with the greateſt part of the Petitioning Engliſh Merchants. That his Majeſties Gracious Uſage of the Spaniſh Ambaſſador in England, only encreaſeth their Pride & Vanity, they attributing whatſoever is done to the merit of their Greatnes, & fear of their Power, their Humor being to over-value themſelves & to abaſe others. Thus others can performe noe more than what is due to ſoe ſupereminent a Monarchy; and what they did to the Lord Admiral, was (as they ſay) to ſhew their Greatneſs. That, for his part, he is very plain with them, and is the better eſteemed for it; the general Rule for managing a Spaniard being to ſeeme to make ſome good Eſteeme of a Mans ſelfe, & but little of them farther than Offices of Complement & Courteſie do require. That the Spaniards generally ſay that they will break their Stile for noe man. This Stile, in ſhort, is to doe onely what is pleaſinge to themſelves, and that alſoe in theire owne tymes & ſeaſons. Hee that preſſeth them on too faſt, makes them reſty; he that ſollicits them not at all, makes himſelfe forgotten. The beſt Courſe therefore, is to deale with them in their owne faſhion; and if their Ambaſſador was not treated with ſo much Reſpect in England, and it were ſaid that it was done ſo, in Imitation of the treatment he had in Spain, it would much avail the ſuffering Merchants, and alſo Himſelf in the moſt important Negotiations. That to haſten their dull Spirits, He had entered into a more ſtreight Friendſhip & Familiaritie with the French and Venetian Ambaſſadors, of both whom the Spaniards are exceeding jealous; and adviſeth that his Majeſtie for a while ſhould ſhew a better Countenance than ordinary to the French Ambaſſador in England, which would make the Device worke the more ſtrongly with them. That as to the Spaniſh Project of giving our King a Penſion, although they are much in Love with it, yet ſeeking to have their Wills & Punctualities obſerved, they would have it m ved by him, which he holdeth not fit, unleſs his Majeſtie ſhould ſo direct him. Finally he is of Opinion, that ſomewhat ſaid & done this Parliament to incite the King againſt Spain, and made known there, would much further him in his Service.

Num. 1875.

6.. To the Earle of Saliſbury; from Valiodalid. 213.

Shewing that he is continually labouring to bring the Spaniards t) a reverend & high Regard of the Kings Perſon, Power, & Fortune; which can no ſooner be effected, than all is overthrown by the Intelligencers from England. That he is certeinely informed that there are of them very neere to the King; and ſome ſuch as daily eate of his Bread, or elſe ſhould oftentymes goe hungr e to Bed: and that one of them is . . . . . That theſe Men give information of the preſent weak State of our Kingdom; and of ſome things concerning the King which he knoweth to be falſe, and which, if true, very ill becoming them to diſcover. He complaineth of the greatneſs of his Charges, by reaſon of the ex remitie of the Dearth; and deſireth directions how he may gratifie thoſe who inform him of the Spaniſh Counſels.

66. To the Lords of the Council. 215.

Shewing his Indignation at the Spaniards extreme delay in doing Juſtice to the Engliſh Merchants; and deſiring that the King would lett them know that he wanted not Power to ſatisfie himſelf, if he ſhould not be contented for the paſſed Injuries, & ſecured from the like in time to come. But it appeareth, that upon cooler Thoughts, Sir Charles did not think fit to ſend it.

67. To Mr. Thomas Wilford, Preſident of the Spaniſh Company of Merchaunts in London; from Valiodalid. 217.

In anſwer to a Letter from the Company; wherein he cleareth himſelf from an Imputation laid upon him; and blameth their Negligenee in their own Affaires.

68. To the Earl of Saliſbury, from Valiodalid. 219. b.

D ſiring to have the Wardſhip of young Mr. Marſom (according to the dying Requeſt of His Father) conferred upon him; at his Lordſhips own Price. And advertiſing, that the Spaniards are very fond of that part of their Project (mentioned above at § 22.) relating to the Mariage of the Prince of Wales with their Infanta; although they were not yet agreed who ſhould make the firſt Motion of it in their Council.

69. To the Lords of the Councell; from Valiodalid. 221. b.

That the Conſtable (of Caſtile?) had been to viſit him, in whoſe Company, among others, came one Sr. Andrew Wiſe, in Spain called the Priour of England, who had given many Teſtimonies of his good & dutifull Affection to his King and Countrey. That the Conſtable, upon diſcourſe about the Cauſes of the Engliſh Merchants, had promiſed a quick & ſatisfactory diſpatch of all, except that of Hall & Eldred. As to this, he ſaid, there had been an orderly and judicial proceeding in Sicily and that upon ſeveral proofs made that the Crew had excerſiſed Piracie, a Sentence of Confiſcation had paſſed againſt it, which could not be revoked by the Teſtimonies of any Witneſſes examined in England. That to theſe Speeches of the Conſtable, he had anſwered, that their Proofs amounted but to this, that a Rumor had been ſpread as if the Ship TRIAL had exerciſed Piracy in the Years 1593 & 1598, and that the Maſters Mate, &c. had confeſſed that they had done divers unlawful Acts. That this could not be that Pirate-Ship they meant, becauſe it was not built until the Year 1601 that the pretended Confeſſions were extorted by Dureſſe & Menaces, & retracted by the ſame Perſons in England; that the matter whereunto they were obliged to ſubſcribe, was invented & written by one of their own Scrivenors, and in divers Circumſtances is conſiſtent neither with Truth nor Probability. That the Courſe taken with our Ships, is what is uſed in no other Count ey :. Chriſtendome, for the Goods confiſcate are divided into Three Parts; the Firſt to the King (or to the Vice-roy the Second to the Judge who tries the Cauſe; the Third to the Denuntiator & Informer who never wants Witneſſes. That the Duke de Feria is the Conſtable's kinſman, and therefore, in this Cauſe, is defended by him. That the Spaniſh Merchants are neglectful of their Buſineſs; and thoſe at Liſbon diſorderly, by the means of a Puritan who had crept in among them. Deſires that the King would thank the Conde de Pugno-Roſtro for the good Offices done to his Subjects. That the Lady above-mentioned (at § 20. whom Walpole the Jeſuit had ſent into England, in order to ſeduce ſome of her own Sex, was harboured by ſome Papiſts, who would willingly that ſhe was in her own Countrey; ſhe having had ſmall Succeſs. That the Diſcontents between the EngliſhJeſuites & Seculars continue, which he thinks may prove fatal to the former. That the young Admiral of Caſtile had lately married the Daughter of the Duke of Sea, Son to the Duke of Lerma, to whom the Duke had given in Dowry 100000 Crownes, and the King by way of Addition a Crown-Rent in Sicily of 30000 Crowns per ann. That they hear no News of the Fleet which failed from Liſbon. That the King had added a Penſion of 6000 Crownes to his former Largeſſe beſtowed upon the Conſtable; and that his Majeſties continual Motions from place to place hindred all Buſineſs.

70. To the Merchants & Factors at Liſbone; in aunſwere of one of th irs. 228. b.

Blaming them ſeverely for their inconſtant, negleCtful, & irregular Courſes.

71. To Thomas Howard Earle of Suffolk, Lord Chamberlaine vnto his Majeſtie, from Valiodalid. 231.

72. To the Earle of Saliſbury, Principal Secretarie to his Majeſtie. 232. b.

Signifying, that he is in good hopes of procuring ſatisfaction to the Engliſh Merchants, excepting only the matter of Hall and Eldred, about which he finds nothing but Diſſimulation, by reaſon of the allyance betweene the Duke of Feria & the Conſtable; and the promiſe of part of the Prey to ſome of the Great Ones there. Advertiſeth his Lordſhip of the Practiſes which the Spaniards had almoſt begun to put in Execution againſt him (upon the Incitement of their Intelligencers) among whome ſome are of Quality & Diſcourſe) but ſaith that now their humours are ve y much changed, they being in great hopes of gaining him. And that their Project mentioned in § 22. he believed they would in time propoſe to our King.

73. From the Lords of the Councell in the behalfe in one Joſhua Havell Merchaunt of Plymouth, dated 28 May 1605. 235. b.

This Havell had his Ship & Goods unjuſtly taken by the Spaniards; and after much time & money ſpent; could get no manner of Redreſs or Satisfaction.

74. From Sir William Waad Clearke of the Councell, dated 31 May 1605. with a Poſtſcript from Sir William Cornwallies th'elder. 236. b.

In the behalfe of Havell abovementioned.

75. From Walter Mathew Mayor of Plymouth, dated 26 September 1605. 237. b.

In the behalfe of Joſhua Havelle.

76. From Charles Howard Earle of Notingham, & Lord High Admiral of England. 238.

In the behalfe of Mr. Fearne, who had certain Goods ſtayed by the Spaniards.

77. From Sir Thomas Edmonds Lord Ambaſſador-Reſident with the Arch-duke, dated the 21 October 1605. 238. b.

That the Jeſuites & their Confederates were continually practiſing, in all kinds, againſt England; of which the Count de Villa-Medi a was ſufficiently ſenſible before his departure from Flanders; that he was exceedingly troubled to prevent their paſſionate purpoſes; and did directly croſs them in ſome of their chiefe Deſigns. That the Lord Arundell of Wardour had drawn the King's Diſpleaſure on him, in the manner as above related. Relateth the principal Actions that had happened this Campaign between Prince Maurice & Spinola. That there had been great Joy in thoſe parts, upon the Report that his (Sir Charles's) Chaplain & Secretarie had turned Papiſts; and that the Engliſh Prieſts there, had been buſie with ſome of his owne inferior Servants alſo, but he hoped he ſhould withſtand their purpoſes.

78. Concerning the Spaniſh Projects before mentioned at § 22. and the Method taken by the Spaniards in imparting the ſame to Sir Charles: with what followed thereupon. 243 b.

79. Tranſlation of a Letter from the Duke of Lerma to Sir Charles, thanking him for the Diſcourſe concerninge the Reformation of Idle & Vagrant Perſons; & of the Dearth of Victuals, which Sir Charles had drawn up, & ſent unto him by the Conde de Pugno Roſtro. 246.

80. A Diſcourſe drawn up by Sir Charles, & tranſlated into Spaniſh by the Nobleman laſt mentioned. 246. b.

The Purport of it is to ſhew what Commodities would accrew to Spain by a perfect Amitie with England; brought about by their acting according to their Projects, ſo often abovementioned. This Diſcourſe was read both to the Duke of Lerma, & to the King himſelf, who both liked it ſo well, as that it was ſent to ſome ſelect Perſons of the Council to be conſidered of.

81. To the Lords of the Counceil, in England. 251. b.

That he had brought the Merchants Affairs to a Concluſion, pretty much to their Satisfactions; and is of opinion that the Croſſes & Delayes therein, have rather growne out of the confuſed Order of their many Councells, exceeding Multitudes of Officers, and the Ordinarie ſlow Pace that they have accuſtomed themſelves to in matters of Juſtice, than to any Indiſpoſition either in the King, or thoſe of moſt power with him.

82. To the Earle of Saliſbury. 252. b.

This Letter is conceived in Termes ſomewhat obſcure. But the great buſineſs ſeemeth to be the Spaniſh Projects ſo often before mentioned, which they had deſired him to communicate to the King; and which he accordingly ſent by Mr. Hawkeſworth his Secretary the Bearer of this Letter alſo; whom he had ſo inſtructed, as that he was able to make an orderly Relation of the whole Affair to his Majeſty.

83. A Diſcourſe & Relation made vnto Walter Hawkſworth Secretary vnto my Lord-Ambaſſadour, of the Conference had betweene the Duke of Lerma, the Conde de Villa Longa, & his Lordſhip, concerning the two Projects of Alliance, for reducing the Low-Countries into Obedience. To be delivered to his Majeſtie at his coming into England, whither the ſaid Lord-Ambaſſador ſent him with his Letter about that Negotiation. 253. b.

84. To the Earle of Suffolke Lord Chamberlayne to his Majeſtie. 261.

That he had attained to the deſired Succeſs in his Negotiations, & had ſufficient Credit in the Spaniſh Court; yet he wiſhed to be recalled from that Place, where the Objects of Sickneſs and Death were hourly repreſented unto him, even in his own Houſe.

85. To the Lord Elleſmere Lord Chancellor of England; from Valiodalid. 261. b.

86. To the Earle of Saliſbury, by a Merchaunt of Plymouth. 262.

That he had brought the Great Buſineſs to a head, the Honour whereof would always redound to His Majeſty, ſince the Spaniards were the Offerers. That the Particularities being not fit for Paper, he had determined to ſend his Secretary Hawkſworth purpoſely to England to acquaint the King with the whole matter; but that he is now unfortunately fallen ſick. That the Spaniards were become in all things exceeding tractable, and had diſpatched the Engliſh Merchants to their Contentment.

Num. 1875.

He deſires that the Spaniſh Ambaſſador in England may have ſome notice of this, and of his Majeſties acceptance of the ſame. That Carre the Scot had ſowne a Report, that in Scotland they would by no Means yeeld either to the Kings deſired Union, or his Replanting of Biſhoppes in that Kingdome, with other Lies, againſt which he had wrought a Countermine. That he had lately ſoe endeared his Lordſhips worthynes to that State as he that ſitts at the Helme of it exceedingly deſireth his Lordſhip might underſtand his particular affection to joyne in a perfect Friendſhippe & Correſpondency with Him.

87. From the Earle of Saliſbury; dated the 14 October 1605. 264.

Importing that the King had approved his Conduct with reference to the New Duties which the Spaniards had laid upon the Portugueſe Wines & Oiles, in derogation of the late Treaty; and inſtructing him how to proceed farther therein; as alſo in other matters. That as to the Spaniſh Projects for a ſtraiter Alliance with his Majeſtie, & a General Peace in Chriſtendome by his meanes, he thinks the Deſign is to engage his Majeſtie into a Warre for the Reduction of the United Provinces: yet, if anie thing be delivered unto him authentically, he might doe the King Honor & Service by bringing it into his Election, either to take hold of it, or to let it alone. He thanketh him for the Diſcourſe about the Benefit of Peace, which he finds more malicious than witty; and it reflecting on Him, he would know the Author. As to Fitz-James, he is not willing that he ſhould have a particular Leave to return into Ireland. That his Majeſty in Conſideration of the extraordinary Charges he is at, is willing to allow him an Increaſe of 40s. a Day by an extraordinary Warant, becauſe it ſhould not be drawne into a Preſident hereafter by others.

88. From the Earle of Saliſbury, dated the 9th of November 1605. 268. b.

This Letter giveth an account of the Diſcovery of the Gunpowder-Treaſon Plot, more particular & exact than what is related by moſt of our Hiſtorians. For Example, Mr. Speed & others write, that K. James was the Perſon, who, upon hearing the Letter to the Lord Mount-Eagle read, gueſſed that the deſign was to deſtroy Himſelf & his Parliament by Gun-powder, & therefore ordered the Cellars to be ſearched, &c. But this Earl of Saliſbury writeth thus,——"I Imparted the L̃re to the Earle of Suffolke Lord Chamberlaine, to the end I might receave his Opinion. Whereupon, peruſinge the Wordes of the L̃re, and obſerving the Writeing, THAT THE BLOW SHOULD COME WITHOUT KNOWLEGE WHO HAD HURT THEM; we both conceived that it could not be more proper than the tyme of Parliament; nor by any other way like to be attempted then with Powder, whilſt the King was ſitting in th' Aſſembly. Of which the Lord-Chamberlain (ſhewed?) the more probability, becauſe there was a great Vault vnder the ſaid Chamber which was never vſed for any thing but for ſome Wood & Cole belonginge to the Keeper of the Old Palace. In which Conſideration, after we had imparted the ſame to the Lord Admirall, the Earle of Worceſter, & the Earle of Northampton, and ſome others, We all thought fitt to forbeare to impart it to the King, untill ſome three or fower dayes before the Seſſion. At which tyme we ſhewed His Majeſtie the L̃re, rather as a thing we would not conceale (becauſe it was of ſuch a Nature) then any way perſwadeing him to geve any further Credite to it, vntill the Place had bene viſited. Wherevpon His Majeſtie (whoe hath a naturall habite to contemne all falſe Feares, and a Judgment ſoe ſtrong as never to doubt any thing which is not well warranted by Reaſon) concurred onely thus farre with us; that ſeeing ſuch a matter was poſſible, That ſhould be donne which might prevent all danger, or ells nothing at all," &c.

That with true feeling & passion, not onely the King of Spain & His whole Courte, but even the Generality of the People apprehended the Advertisements concerning the Gunpowder-Treason Plot. And that their not fayninge in that matter hath much enclyned his owne Heart vnto them, and drawne him into a Beliefe that they will become fast & faithful Friends to His Majestie and our Countrey. They desire that the King would be more watchful of himself for the future, and will not be perswaded but that the French had either an Hand or an Heart in that most deviliſh Purpose. That upon this News, the Duke of Lerma, & the most part of all the Councellours & Grandees of this State had visited him, ad invidiam usque of the other Foreign Ministers. That even those who (in regard of their Places) were prohibited to visit; or being Sick, could not; had sent their Sonnes. He thinks that as to the New Impositions, he shall be able to moderate matters so, as to bring them to a reasonable pass. That the Hollanders may now, by our Kings Interposition, get the most advantageous Terms of Peace. That a Frier who had lately preached before the King, is banished the Court and City, having vented words to this effect, "That Princes being the Heads & Substances of Commonwealths, were in these days become the Shadowes of some one Private man, who (according to his owne humor) governed all thinges." That "the Earle of Villa-Mediana being returned, much reporte is made of our Kings greate Bountyes towardes him. That the Marquis of St. German (as he heareth) is appointed to go into England, & congratulate the happie Discoverie of the late Treason."

That the Amitie between France & Spain is not likely to be durable. That the Spaniards would not enlarge their Propositions above-mentioned at § 92. vntil it might please the King of Greate Brittaine to geve some Signification how farre He would open himself, forreceipt of it. That the King of Spaine hath neede of the King of Great Brittaines Arme, as our King (necessitated by meanes of his greate bounty to his ancient Subjects & Servants) hath good occasion to use the help of the King of Spaines Purse. That our Help to the Spaniards in recovering the Netherlands, will be like the lifting them out of a Quick-sand, wherein they still sink deeper. That the Addition of a Million of Ducats per ann. to the Kings Revenue, besides what might be saved from the Allowance to the Garrisons, will be a good Help to His Estate, That the Possession of those Townes would be an Honor & Advantage to his Majestie, who would therefore be able to employ more of his Servants and Subjects. That the Souldiers of those Garrisons might be paid, for the most part, in Clothes & Victuals from our Countrey, and the Money be drawne into England. That the Duke of Sessa, one of the soundest Wise men of Spain is dead; occasioned (as is said) by Great Debts, & little Trust in the Faith & Honesty of his Lady.

101. From Sir Thomas Parry, Ambassador for his Majestie in France. 27 Nov. 1605. 297. b.

That they had been clearing the remnant of the Kings Estate, which had been much wasted by his Profusion, and "His Majestie himself hath been content to bind His owne Handes (which noe mortall Man could doe) and by Entayle to make his Estate soe sure, as it neither neede to feare the facility of his sweete Disposition, nor the Rapacitie & Greedynes of devouringe Cormorants."

103. To the Earle of Northampton. 300. b.

104. To Sir Henry Wotton Lord-Ambassador for His Majestie with the States of Venice. 302.

That in the Spaniards are all appearances of Desire to continue & encrease the Amity begunne with England.

105. To the Earle of Salisburie. 20 January 1605-6. S. V. 302. b.

That the Spaniards are now brought to own in public, that having Peace with the King of Great Britain, they need not feare the rest of all the whole World. That the other Foreign Ministers are become very envious of the favor shewn to Himself & to the other English there; and that the Popes Nuntio was more especially picqued at it. That notwithstanding all this, the Spaniards are generally so greedy in their Natures, & inclined to Extortion, that he is continually pestered with the fresh complaints of our Merchants. That hereupon, he was resolved to shew how much herein the King suffereth in his Honor, and the whole Nation in their Fame, & also to endeavor to procure sharp Punishment to be inflicted upon some one or two of the Malefactors. That the late Order for not imbarqueing of our Shippes upon suspicion, and removing the Determineing of Causes from the Ordinary Judges of the Place (who were to have a part of the Benefit) will deliver the Merchants & Himself of a great deal of Trouble. He hopes very shortly to procure the Merchants Privileges to be confirmed. That the matter of Hall and Eldred is to be removed from Sicily, thither. And the Duke of Lerma hath given his word, that upon Sentence given, the Money for the Goods confiscate shall be paid, without further trouble.

110. Sir Charles Cornwallies to the King, in anſwer to the former. 308. b.

111. To the Earle of Saliſbury. 311.

Thanking him for favors received. Advertiſing, that Creſwell the Jeſuite being ſent for by his Superior to Rome; Walpole within a few days after, deſired acceſs unto him. That at firſt, he inſinuated a Signification of much grief for the late traiterous Purpoſe in England, and a ſhewe of much Deteſtation of ſoe inhuman & horrible Intentions, eſpeciallie in Men profeſſing the Catholique Religion: to which Sir Charles replied, that he had great reaſon to be ſo grieved, for that now it is growne to be a received Rule, that noe erroneous Religion in the World (no not Paganiſme itſelf) giveth ſuch Libertie & Courage to Malefactors & Murtherers, as the Roman. He relateth other Controverſial Diſcourſe he had with this Jeſuite, upon the Subject of Religion, which was ended by the coming in of the Conde de Pugno-Roſtro. That two days after, the ſame Jeſuite came again, and began as before, ſaying, that the Traitors had done their Cauſe an infinite harme: for it was the Error of the Puritans that (hold) that in caſe of their Princes becomeing of contrarie Religion, it was lawfull to take away their Lives. Of the Proteſtants, that were they of Power ſufficient, they might depoſe them. Of the Catholiques the Opinion was, that the Pope might denounce & excommunicate them, and thereby diſcharge their Subjects of their Allegiance. He wiſhed it might pleaſe the King to take Caution & Security of his Catholique Subjects (i. e. Oath, & Denuntiation of the Cenſures of the Church againſt the diſobedient) and ſo to ſuffer them to live in Peace. Upon Sir Charles's Reply that it would be more ſafe for the King to ſuppreſſe & reſtraine their Diſobedience by his owne Providence, and by his Lawes: the Jeſuit ſaid, there would then be danger that their continual Cryings would drawe the Pope to proceede againſt the King with his Cenſures. Sir Charles ſhewed him that in the time of Queen Elizabeth they were no more harmfull then a painted Fire; alſo that he wondered they could think of proceeding in that courſe with the King, who was none of their Fold. Hee aunſwered that he was within their Fold, for that he was baptized a Chriſtian. Sir Charles aſked him why therefore the Popes had not excommunicated the Emperour of Ruſſia, or thoſe of the Greek Church, &c? His aunſwere was, that They were without their power or poſſibility to revoke. To conclude, he proteſted, that He & thoſe of his Society would by all meanes & wayes poſſible become Impediments to any proceedings againſt the King; and would onely Labour by Prayer & Preachinge (as by their Inſtitution they were bound) to reduce thoſe that were gone aſtraye; and ſo departed.

112. A Letter from the Duke of Lerma, tranſlated. dated 22 January. 315. b.

That the King by Sir Charles's Interceſſion hath graunted the Order of St. Jago vnto Don Juan Alonſo de Villa Viceatia.

Num. 1875.

113. To the Earle of Saliſburie. 27 January 1605. 316.

That the Duke of Lerma much deſireth His Lordſhips Friendſhip & Correſpondence. That He endeavoreth to hold him by the ſame meanes that he won him, which was Playnes; and giving him to underſtand that he was not ignorant in what Eſtate the Spaniards ſtand; and how impoſſible it is to come to any end of their Intricacies without our Kings helpe. That this hath begot in them the beſt kinde of Love to him; and he thinketh they deale not ſoe plainely & above-bord with any Ambaſſador as with himſelfe. That the Duke always concludes with a Sigh, wiſhing that it might pleaſe God to drawe us to one Unity in Religion; for which cauſe he ſaid, that the King his Maſter (if he knew it to agree with the King of Great-Britaines pleaſure) would imploy all his forces to obtain a General Council in the moſt free manner that ever yet was held. That the Earle Bothwell had lately thrown a Spaniard out of a Window, and eſcaped to the Houſe of the Emperors Ambaſſador: whereupon his Concubine was ſeized, and as it was thought, would hardly eſcape the Whip.

114. From Sir Thomas Edmonds, His Majeſties Ambaſſador to the Arch-dukes. 318. b.

That Owen, and Baldwynne a Jeſuit, both reſident at that Court, having been principal dealers in the Gunpowder Treaſon, His Majeſty had commanded him to require their apprehenſion, & delivery into his Handes. That as to Baldwynne it had been anſwered, that He was a religious Man, and (by the Orders of the Church, which they muſt obey) is to be cenſured by his Superiors. And for Owen, they muſt attend the King of Spaine's Directions, he being a more immediate ſervant to that Crown than to the Arch-Dukes. That our King in his Letter to theſe Princes, had profeſſed that He would either verifie the Things alledged againſt thoſe Perſons, or forfeit his Credit towardes the world. That although his Majeſtie had aſſured that they ſhould be called in Queſtion for no other Crime, than this laſt abhominable Treaſon of Powder, that they ſhould in no wiſe be put to Torture, but proceeded againſt fairly in the preſence of their Ambaſſadour: they had been ſo diſreſpectful as to deſire a Copie of the Information. That the Princes had ſent to the King of Spain for advice, and therefore Sir Thomas deſires Sir Charles to uſe the proper methode of ſerving our King there. That in the Court of Bruſſels, they would not believe that ſuch a Treaſon had been plotted, becauſe the Catholiques were intereſſed therein; but ſometimes would ſay it was an artifice of the Puritans; at other times, a Deſign of the Hollanders to reduce our State to the ſame Condition as theirs is, that is, a Commonwealth; but now they ſay it is a Work of the Divels, expreſsly to baniſh & extirpate the Catholique Religion out of England. That Sir William Stanley being not ſo deeply charged with this laſt Treaſon as Owen and Baldwyn, although it was deſigned to have uſed him therein; His Majeſty hath only moved to have him ſecured, till farther matter be ſent to charge him with. That young Tyrone had been with him, and aſſured him that the Council of Spain before they would give him his Colonel's Commiſſion, procured our Kings Conſent unto it.

115. Certaine Reaſons given by my Lord Ambaſſador Cornwallies, to divers Counſellors of State and others in the Court of Spaine, to perſuade the Deliverie of certain Traitors taken in Flanders: of whom mention is made in the precedent Letre. 322.

116. To the Earle of Saliſburie. 325.

Relating his proceedings at the Spaniſh Court about Owen and Baldwyn, in whoſe behalf the Jeſuites & the Popes Nuntio took great paines. That the King & the Duke of Lerma had a ſincere deſire to give our King ſatisfaction, but were puzled as to the manner wherein it ſhould be done. That he had had a long Conference with with the Duke upon this affair, who told him that it had been reſolved in the Council, that they themſelves would puniſh Owen, and alſo procure Baldwyn to be puniſhed by his Superiors in exeimplary manner. That the Duke of Lerma did then ſwear to him in a ſolemn manner, that both his King & himſelf did deſire the Preſervation & Good of our King as much as that of any Prince in this World. That although the French King had uſed the help of the Court of Rome, & of other Princes in drawing them into an Alliance, They had abſolutely denied to deliver an eldeſt Daughter into France; and had purpoſed Her for England, whenſoever his Majeſties pleaſure ſhould be, upon Terms convenient, to treat of that matter. That the Venetian Ambaſſador had told him that their State ſtand in ſome feare of a thunder-clap of the Pope, becauſe they would not abrogate a certain Law antiently made, which was ſomewhat like to our Statute of Mortmain in England.

117. The Contents of another Letter to my Lord of Saliſburie, 12 Febr. 1605-6. 334.

That the Engliſh Merchants both at Liſbon & at Sevil, having no Conſuls or other Officers to guide them, have given very great Offence by their intemperate Language about Religion, and other diſorderly Behavior, for which they had been called into the Inquiſition, had it not been for the Reſpect had for our King, & Regard for Him his Ambaſſador. That the Satisfaction procured for the Engliſh Merchants had not been paid, through want of Money. That the King at that preſent time had no Money, but what was reſerved for caſes of Neceſſity. And that many Collects (or Praiers) both new & old, are ſaid for the ſafe & ſpeedie Arrival of the Flota.

118. From the Earle of Saliſbury, 3 January. 335.

That the Arraignment & Execution of the Gunpowder Traitors, was deferred till next Terme. That it was found that Owen & Baldwyn were not only furtherers & encouragers of the Gun-powder Treaſon, but with Sir William Stanley were chargeable of ſome other Treaſons committed ſince his Majeſties coming to the Crown of England: and relateth all the proceedings that had followed thereupon both in Bruſſels, & in London. That the Miniſters of the Arch-dukes & of the King of Spain had made uſe of little Shifts in order to ward off our Complaints. And that the French King had ſent the Baron D'Entoure to congratulate with his Majeſtie for his happy deliverance; for which Miniſter our King had conceived a particular eſteem, ever ſince he had been ſent Ambaſſador to him in Scotland.

119. From Mr. Hawkeſworth my Lords Secretarie, 20 January 1605-6. 343.

That the great Buſineſs is like to have good ſpeed, as a thing conceived to be ſafe & profitable for all Parties, although it could not be attended unto for the preſent, becauſe the late Treaſons did almoſt wholly employ the Miniſtry. That the Earle of Northampton had acknowledged that Sir Charles in managing the Affair ſo that the Spaniards had made their applications to our King, had done his Countrey great Service, and to Himſelf & other Friends (who had undertaken for his Worthines & Habilities) much Right and Honour, with other Noble Speeches in his Praiſe. And that the King had lately declared in Public that He thought Sir Charles Cornwallies one of the beſt Servants that any Prince in Chriſtendome was Maſter of.

120. To the Earle of Saliſburie. (22 Febr. 1805-6.) 344. b.

In anſwer to the laſt from his Lordſhip. He addeth alſo, that if there were in Spain Cenſors of Manners, as there are Inquiſitors for Religion, the greater part of our Traders there would fall into their Hands, being people diſordered, uncharitable, & unfriendly amongſt themſelves, & ſcandalous to the Spaniards.

121. To Mr. Hawkſworth. 346.

In anſwer to his Letter abovementioned: and intimating, that if he ſhould continue to ſerve him faithfully, as he had hitherto done, he would allow him a Gleaners Share of ſuch Fortunes as ſhould befall him.

122. To the Lords of the Councill, from Valladolid 346. b.

That the Flota was reported to be ſcattered by a Tempeſt between Cartagena & the Havanna, & that a great Fleet of Hollanders was at Sea with purpoſe to encounter them. Alſo, that if it ſhould not arrive ſafely, the general want in that Kingdome would be greater than ever. That there is a general reſtraint of all Money payable by the King, by which the Engliſh & Scots Merchants who had ſpent their meanes in ſolliciting for their Damages, were now all forced to live upon him. That findinge in the Young Princes of Savoy, & in the Marquis of Eſte who doth attend them at the Spaniſh Court, a more than ordinary affection towards our King, he was content to give unto Roncas Secretary to the Duke of Savoy & Ambaſſador there, the firſt Viſit; which was kindly taken by the Ambaſſador himſelf & the Princes, as alſo by the King & State, and is advertized to the Duke in the ampleſt manner; who being very affectionate to our King, & poſſeſſing the backſide of France, he thinketh that his Amity ought to be cultivated. That the late Order he had procured for our Merchants hath the deſired effect, and is obeyed much againſt the Wills of the hungry Judges & Officers, who are ſaid to have purchaſed their Offices at great prices, upon Hope of prey among the Merchants. That all Proviſions are at an exceeding high rate in Madrid.

123. To Sir Thomas Edmondes His Majeſties Ambaſſador with the Arch-duke. 359. b.

That although the Spaniſh Court had come to a reſolution not to deliver up Owen & Baldwyn; they would take care that they ſhould be ſo puniſhed as that our King ſhould be ſatisfied. That the Spaniards generally deteſt all that they believe had either an head or a hand in the Gunpowder Treaſon; and in particular, doe laye a greate Calumniation upon the Jeſuits, who (as an Inquiſitor (Miniſter?) had lately obſerved to him) leaving the Order of their firſt Inſtitution, doe now ſtudy to become Statiſts, and to put Fire into all Kingdomes where they converſe.

124. From Sir Thomas Edmondes. dated 3 February 1605-6. 350. b.

That much Expectation there is in the Court of Bruſſels, of the Reſolution of the King of Spain touching Owen & Baldwyn. That a Proclamation had been iſſued in England for apprehending three Jeſuits detected to have beene dealers in the late Treaſon. That all matters touching the proſecution of the War againſt the Hollanders are at a ſtand, till the Return of Spinola from Spain, where he had been ſent to ſollicit Money for new Levies. And that the Engliſh Fugitives & Traitors were mightily careſſed at the Arch-dukes Court.

125. To the Earle of Saliſburie. 252. b.

Concerning the high Eſteem which the King of Spain & the Duke of Lerma proteſt they have for our King, and the mean Opinion they have of the French Sincerity towards England.

126. To Sir Thomas Edmondes, His Majeſties Ambaſſador with the Arch-duke. 354.

127. To the Earle of Saliſburie. 355.

That there are many Reports of a Combination againſt his Lordſhip, and that five Engliſh Romaniſts ſhould reſolve his Death, whom they hold the Diſcoverer of all their unnaturall & deſtructive Intentions againſt their Prince & Countrey. That the learned Franciſcans utterly miſlike theſe Courſes held with Princes by the Popes & Jeſuites; and plainly ſay that the Popes have noe more to do with the Crownes of Temporall Princes, than thoſe Princes with the Hierarchyes that belong to them. Relateth a Conference with a Spaniſh Jeſuite, who was in England with the Conſtable, touching the modern practice of the Popes to fulminate their Cenſures on Princes who acknowledged not their Authority, thereby expoſing them to the Treacheries & Violences of their own Subjects, wherein he brought the Jeſuit over to his Opinion. That the arrival of the Flota was expected with the greateſt Impatience, and the Kings Gallies were gone from Liſbon in order to convoy the ſame, and that in the mean time the Marquis Spinola continued there.

128. To the Earle of Saliſburie, from Villadolid. 358. b.

That Don Belaſco of Aragon deſires to be recommended as affectionate to the Service of our King, and therefore Sir Charles would have him taken notice of, although he hath hitherto had little Occaſion to uſe his Power, or hath ſeen any great effect of it. That the Spaniards ſhew a great longing after the Alliance with our King, inſomuch as the very Name of our Prince worketh a Change in the Countenance of that People who continually throng to the Conſtables houſe that they may ſee his Picture; and that they affect him ſo much, as were it not for the difference in Religion, his Majeſty would not be able to deny him in Marriage to their Princeſſe. That there is again a great want of Bread, whereby many ſuffer extremely; and that there is a freſh report of the Expectance of the Indian Fleet furniſhed with at leaſt 26 Millions. That the Source of our Merchants Complaints, is the covetous & cruel Diſpoſition of the Spaniſh Judges & Officers, ſome of whom he will endeavour to have puniſhed in an exemplary manner. That he hath to do with a People of an Iron Heart, & Leaden Heels; with whom the patience of Job himſelf will be found to want weight. Complaineth of his private Loſſes ſuſtained at home during his abſence, and therefore deſireth to be recalled as ſoon as his Negotiations ſhall be brought to a Concluſion.

129. From Sir Henrie Wotton his Majeſties Ambaſſador with the State of Venice. 363.

That there is a Quarel grown between the Pope & that State, attributed to four Cauſes. 1. Denyal of Decimes & general Reſtitution of the Clergie. 2. Refuſal to paie moneys that have been in neceſſitous tymes borrowed of Convents & Corporate Churches. 3. A Decree paſſed in Senate againſt converting of any Landes to Holy Uſe, by Legacie or otherwiſe. 4. Laying of Secular hands upon ſome perſons in Clericall profeſſion & Habit. That there are but two wayes of Remedy in this buſineſs, i. e. either to performe what the Pope deſireth; or to give him ſufficient Reaſon why they will not do it; but that the Venetians have from the very beginninge reſolved upon the latter, notwithſtanding one maligne Circumſtance, which is, this, the Pope affecteth the Name of a great Canoniſt, and haveing proceeded ſoe farre already, will perhappes be loath to be overcome by Diſputation. In the mean time, Sir Henry doubts, that this Affair will prove nothing but the farther enriching of the Popes Nephewe, or Brother, or ſome one or two of the vehement Cardinalls.

Theſe Factors, with their Ships, & Crew, & Merchandiſe, were taken by Don Luiz Firardo in America, who ſoon ſold the Ships & Lading, ſhaved the Crew's Heads & Sent them Slaves to the Gallies, keeping the Factors Priſoners in his Ship, where they lived in great Miſery & Poverty.

134. To the Earle of Saliſburie, from Villadolid, 28 Martij, Stilo antiquo 1605. 371. b.

That Walpole the Jeſuite had lately caſt an abominable Slander upon his Lordſhip, and adviſed his Deſtruction; ſaying, that if he lived, he might ſee the end of others, who (his Lordſhip being taken awaie) might doe ſome good to the Church. He adviſeth, or rather intreateth his Lordſhip to be very careful & wary of himſelf, and not to truſt the Phiſitian mentioned by Walpole too far. He relateth an odd Story of one John Draper, who carried a Letter from Doctor Bagſhott an Engliſh Prieſt, to a Capuchine in Orleans named Archangell, wherein it was ſpecified that the Projects for England were now revealed & prevented. That the Indian Fleet although daily expected, remained at the Havana, for more forces to be taken on board for their ſafer conducting home; and that Spinola hath an Order for the weekly payment of 300000 Crownes, until the end of Auguſt. That one of the Kings Councellors as honorable and honeſt man as any ſitts amongſt them, aſſured him ſeveral times that the King of Spain nouriſheth and payeth within the Low Countreyes 600000 perſons; which yet he would not believe.

137. To the Earle of Saliſburie; ſent by the way of . . . . the Ordinarie of Italie, departing from Vallidolid the 5th of April, at night. 379.

That one Saunderſon a Scott, a Gentleman by birth, and of ſome good Value in his own Countrey, had been there long ſoliciting for Reſtitution of the Value of a Shipp of his imbarqued by the Kings Officers & loſt in his Service; as alſo for Wages during the tyme he ſerved with her; and is, at laſt, promiſed Money when it comes out of the Indies. That the Spaniards are in hand with this Sanderſon to undertake the Building of ſix ſmall Pinnaces, ſuch as they uſe to ſend between Spain & the Indies, upon Meſſages of Advice, offering ſo largely for the fabricature of them, that there will be at leaſt 2000l. ſaved by the Bargaine. That he had adviſed him by no meanes to undertake the matter without the privity of his owne Soveraigne. That he purpoſed to build them in Ireland, three this yeare & three the next, and therefore Sir Charles deſireth his Lordſhips directions in the matter.

That Buſineſs is ſtill at a ſtand, by the reaſon of the King & Queen's frequent motions. That there is no certain News of the Flota. That Spinola is gone laden with much Honour & Profit. That the Marques of Avilena, now Ambaſſador in Rome, goeth for Vice-Roy into Sicilia. The Duke of Feria is imployed to the Emperor, and the Marques of Itona to Rome, by whom he is promiſed a true & unfeigned Correſpondence in all things that ſhall there occurre, which concerne our King; which is well agreeing with his Inſtructions. That they have commanded a Staie of all payments to Sir William Stanley, until they ſhall ſee how it goes with him in England. That upon Receipt of their Lordſhips Letter in behalf of Hall & Eldred, he had ſent Ouſely his Secretary tary to the Court, where he hath yet had no Audience. That this Cauſe will prove very difficult in regard of the Greatneſs of the Duke of Feria, and of his owne wilfull Diſpoſition: and that their Cauſe is made the more deſperate, by the freſh taking another of their Shipps (as alſo another of one Bromley) in America, whoſe Mariners are putt into the Gallyes, the Factors impriſoned, the Goods confiſcate and a great part aliened, &c.

140. From Sir Henry Wotton his Majeſties Ambaſſador in Venice; dated 11 Martij 1606. 382. b.

That the Cavallier Dodo was gone to Rome well inſtructed with Replies, and in the mean time the Pope had ſent a ſecond Monitory Brief, importing that if their Ambaſſador were longer delayed, he would proceed to a full Excommunication; which Brief the Nuntio had been ſo imprudent as to communicate to the Senate juſt as the Cavalier aforeſaid was ſuppoſed to be got to Rome. Hereby, he had much exaſperated the State, and loſt the Opinion of a wiſe Servant. That they were in Expectation of a Chiaux from the Grand Signor, whoſe Buſineſs was ſuppoſed to be either to threaten, or to borrow.

141. To Sir Henry Wotton his Majeſties Ambaſſador in Venice. Sent by the afornamed Ordinary. 384.

That the long Staie of the Weſt India Fleet breedes a general Sorrowe & Diſmay among the Spaniards. That the Marquis Spinola, notwithſtanding the generall Want, is now furniſhed with a certayne Order for a weekly receipt of 300000 Crownes to the end of Auguſt, for the Somer-ſervice in the Low-Countreys; where it was intended to keep two Armies in the Field, the one to attend Grave Maurice; the other to proceede with their former Courſe in Frizeland. That the Marquis himſelf is made one of the Kings Counſell of Eſtate, & Grandee of Spaine. All other matters at a ſtand, by reaſon of the King & Queens Abſence, & want of Money.

142. To the Earl of Saliſburie, by Collen Hay. 385.

That ſome Sixteen of the principal of the Engliſh Merchants & Factors at Liſbon mett at a dynner in the houſe of one Rolles an Engliſhman, who had turned Papiſt and married in the Countrey; where, among other depraving Speeches, one ended with a Wiſh, "that they had the King of England and His Ambaſſadour faſt chayned in one of the Gallyes, in the Haven." To which Rolles added. "That he might have the whipping of them, till the one had made a better peace, and the other procured more redreſſe in the Injuries, which in thoſe parts were offered unto them." Sir Charles ſheweth that he can forgive all that relateth unto him from thoſe men who had never ſo much as given him Thanks for the ſervices he had done them: but as to the King he can by no meanes either tollerate or conceale their vndutifull and vnſufferable preſumption, and therefore deſireth preſent direction in the matter. That the Company of Merchants of England, in this Spring-tyme of the amitie betweene the two Princes, ought to have ſent thither the moſt diſcreete & beſt tempered of their Servants, but the contrary did appear by their behaviour, both at Liſbon, and at Sevil.

143. To Sir George Carew his Majeſties Ambaſſadour in France; ſent by Collen Hay from Valladolid. 386. b.

144. To the Earle of Saliſburie from Valladolid, by Collen Hay. 387.

That the Spaniards begin to change their Opinion of him; holding him to be too troubleſome & importunate; and begin to receive with great diſtaſte the Suites he maketh in behalf of our injured Merchants. That the King & Duke of Lerma are much diſcontented; and as he believeth, have heard ſome late evill Newes of their Indian Fleete. That their own Confuſions are ſo greate, as whoſoever negotiateth with them muſt with a Sufferance beyond the boundes of all ordinary Patience endure the length of tyme & intollerable delayes that their irreſolute & diſtracted mindes breede in all their buſyneſſes. That the Complaints ſent in by the Liſbon Merchants are ſo generall, that neither He nor the Spaniards (who alſo complain much of the Engliſh) can tell what to make of them. That Gurgeine is the man that wiſhed the King & Him in the Galleyes, &c.

145. The Contents of a Letter to the Earle of Saliſburie, ſent by Collen Hay who departed from Valladolid, 30 Aprill 1606. Stilo novo. 391.

That Walpole the Jeſuite had acquainted him that Our King was much diſtracted with Coller, by reaſon of a Refuſal in Parliament of performeinge the Union, upon knowledge whereof, armes were taken in London, for which falſe Intelligence he had ſharply rebuked him. That the Spaniſh Secretarie of State had told him, that their Ambaſſador had written from England that our King was aſſaulted on Hunting & ſlightly hurt; whereon it was publiſhed that He was ſlayne, but immediatelie contradicted by a Meſſage from the Queene. That the Pope & Princes of Italie do labour a League Offenſive & Defenſive betweene Spaine & France. That there hath been tendred to the Spaniards a Practiſe, from Ireland; but the Agents departed ill ſatisfied, ſayeing, "This people entertayne noe Phiſician longer than the fitt is upon them." And that for his owne perticular, he findeth neither their Actions nor Wordes to agree with their former.

146. To the Lordes of his Majeſties moſt honorable privie Counſell. Sent by meanes of Liſentia de Pardo an Agent for the Ambaſſador in England, from Villadolid. 392. b.

That the Spaniards are preparing a Fleete of at leaſt 100 Sayle, which is to carry 40000 Soldiers, a Fleet inferior to that of 88. It is given out that they pretend only the freeinge their Coaſte of the Hollanders; but that it ſeemeth too greate a proportion for that Service.

147. From Sir Thomas Edmonds his Majeſties Ambaſſador with the Archdukes. dated the 23 Aprill 1606. 393.

Concerning the Gun-powder-Traitors Owen & Baldwyn, with regard to whom, the King of Spain & the Arch-Duke were diſpoſed to give our King ſatisfaction, were it not for the pretended holy Jeſuites. Among which Crew, he findeth none ſo viperouſly affected as thoſe of our owne nation, who doe raiſe up all the practiſes againſt his Majeſties State which they can by any means deviſe. That the Popes Nuntio in Spain hath written a very ſtrange and reprehending Letter to the Nuntio at Bruſſels, becauſe he did not more imploye himſelf in the behalf of thoſe Traitors. But the latter being of a more temperate Spiritt, hath geven the other a better reaſon for his forbearance & moderation, than he could pretend for the inconſiderate Paſſion which he hath ſhewed. That Sir William Stanley, & Bayley (Owen's Companion) are ſett at libertie. That if Order be not taken for removinge theſe lewde Inſtruments from thence, there will be no end of their practiſeing, to the imbroileing of the affaires between England & the Arch-duke. That all matters are at a ſtand till the return of the Marquis Spinola. That there hath been a Muteny in the Engliſh Regiment there, againſt the Lord Arondell the Colonell, by the inſtigation of Sir Thomas Studder the Sergeant-Major; wherein his Lordſhip would find it difficult to procure Satisfaction, becauſe he is ſuſpected by the faction of the Jeſuites. That Capten James Blount of the ſame Regiment, (who was an inward Companion with Cateſby & Sir Edward Baynham; and did partake in the knowledge of the late practiſe) hath refuſed to obey his Majeſties Command for his Repaire into Englande, and withdrawne himſelf out of thoſe Countreys.

148. To the Lords of the Councell; from Madrid. 397. b.

That the Emperors Ambaſſador who had continued in Spain 33 years, overcharging his minde with Vexation about the exceſſive Charges of his Removal from Valladolid to Madrid; the ſame night that he arrived, fell into ſome diſtraction, and the next day into a Fever, whereof within five dayes he dyed, a man of greate wealth. That the ſudden & vnexpected remove of the Court in ſo vnſeaſonable a tyme, & ſoe generall extreame want of money hath bredd here a great Confuſion & Diſcontent, which will not be reordered & removed till the Arrivall of the Indian Fleete, whereof there is now noe Newes at all. That the King came to Madrid from Floranicus, an houſe of Pleaſure ſome faeven leagues off. That the Duke of Lerma had been ſick of a Calenture, which upon bleeding was changed into a Tertian. That by reaſon of his Sickneſs, he cannot obtain acceſſe to the King; and all other buſineſs there was dead for a tyme.

149. From the Duke of Lennox; dated the ſixth of March 1606. 401.

Thanking him for the ſervice he had done to a poor man, upon his recommendation.

150. From the Earle of Saliſbury, 26 March 1606. by Mr. Hawkeſworth. 401. b.

Concerninge the Remayne of the Debt due by certaine Prieſts of Cales, for their Ranſome in England, which now they would fain ſhuffle off. Sir Charles is therefore required to ſolicit the matter ſtrongly, for, ſaith the Earl, the Debt is juſt, and by the Articles of the Treatie direct Proviſion is made for the ſatisfyinge of ſuch Debts. Which, if they go about to delude or protract in this faſhion as they doe, wee can have but little hope of the reall Obſervation of the greater points, more than it ſhall ſeeme profitable & advantageous vnto them.

151. From the Earl of Nottingham, Lord High Admirall of England, 22 March 1606. 403.
Upon the ſame affair.

About ſome buſineſs he had procured to be diſpatched for the Conde de Lemos.

154. From the Earles of Suffolke, Northampton, & Saliſburie: 2. April 1606. by Mr. Hawkeſworth. 405.

In behalf of Sir Henry Cary, who was taken priſoner in Flanders, removed from Caſtle to Caſtle, that his Friends might have no Information concerning him, and at laſt his Ranſome ſett at a moſt exorbitant Price. Our King therefore, after having taken ſome Notice of the matter to the Spaniſh & Arch dukes Ambaſſadors, commandeth him to move it to the King of Spain, and Duke of Lerma.

155. From the Earle of Saliſburie; by Mr. Hawkeſworth. 407.

Concerning Sir Charles's private Affaires, which his Lordſhip had taken care of, with commendations of Mr. Hawkeſworth his Secretary, who had acquitted himſelf with Reputation in all points.

156. From the Earle of Suffolke Lord Chamberlayne to his Majeſtie, by Mr. Hawkeſworth. 408.

That he was one of thoſe few who were made acquainted with the great buſineſs brought by Mr. Hawkeſworth, and with the return He carried back. His Lordſhip is not of the Opinion that the Spaniſh Court is ſincere in this matter, but rather that it is an Artifice to gain Time. That there are daily Threatenings by underhand Reports, that a Match betweene Spaine & France is induſtriouſly purſued on both partes; and that many Circumſtances give Strength to the beleefe of more then likelyhood of a Concluding Effect of this matter.

157. From the Counteſſe of Suffolke.

In fauor of Sir Henry Cary Priſoner in Flanders.

158. From the Erles of Dorſett, Nottingham Devonſhire, Northampton, & Saliſburie, by Mr. Hawkeſworth; in anſwere of certaine Propoſicions deliuered there by him from my Lord Ambaſſadour. 17 March 1605-6. 410. b.

That our King after infinite Thanks to the King of Spain & his Miniſters for the Conſideration they had for him, will not refuſe but delay Entring into a League Offenſive & Defenſive; as he did before at making the Treaty of Amity; the ſame Reaſons ſtill ſubſiſting. His Majeſty excuſeth himſelf from acting as Mediator betweene the King of Spain & the Hollanders; and yet in ſuch a manner as not to diſoblige.

159. Propoſitions from His Majeſtie, brought by Mr. Hawkeſworthe, under the Handes of the Earles of Dorſett, Nottingham, Devonſhire, Northampton, & Saliſburie. 416.

About a Peace betweene Spaine & the United Provinces; upon the foot of yielding the Soveraignty thereof to the Prince of Great Britain & the Infanta of Spaine, ſoe as a Marriage maie be had betwixt them, with Succeſſion to the Children begotten of their bodyes.

160. To the Earle of Saliſburie from Madrid; by Mr. Williams, beginning his Journey 3 Junij. 419. b.

Relating the Conference he had with the Earl of Villa-longa the Spaniſh Secretary of State, after Mr. Hawkeſworthe's Returne, about the great Buſineſs. That he can obtain noe acceſſe either to the King or the Duke of Lerma; which he imputeth to a deſire in the Duke of wynning tyme for Deliberation in what ſorte to deale with him. That one Clifford doth publickly there deprave the Religion & Government of his Countrey. That Don Lewis Firardo hath lately beene abroad with his Navye, and (as 'tis ſaid) had fortune only to meete with an Engliſh Pirate loaden with Spanyards, purpoſed to be ſould in Barbarie. That he is advertiſed from Siuile that Firardo in his Voyage mett with certaine Shippes from London, laden with Corne, & bound for Siuile. That he tooke the Maſters, & firſt ſett their Neckes in the Stockes; after, removed them to the Admirall, & there with his owne handes did as much to their Legges, reviling & calling them Heretiques, Lutheranes, Doggs, & Enemyes of Chriſt, threatening to hang them, &c. That he hath been an earneſt Suiter for the liberty of the other Engliſh Factors & Mariners, but is aunſwered with the Shrinke of the Shoulder, & deſired to have yet patience. That he hath not been able to procure the Reſtraint of Captain James Blount. That notwithſtandinge he hath lately procured the King's Letters to be ſent to all his Ports, with expreſſe Commandement of an eſpecial regard to the good vſadge of His Majeſties Subjects; yet, in all places they receive as many grievances as ever, which he imputeth to the evill Diſpoſitions of the Spaniards, or to ſome Connivance of the Court. He ſuggeſteth therefore that ſome preſent Courſe be taken for the reliefe of the poore Merchants, that can procure noe Redreſſe by way of Mercy or Juſtice.

161. To the Earle of Saliſburie, from Madrid, by the ſame. 431.

That he hath been with the Conde de Villa-longa, about Sir Henry Carye, whoſe Anſwer was good: & he hopeth when he can get acceſſe to the Duke of Lerma, to procure a good end to that affair. That he will aſſiſt Marten van Somaren in getting the remaiuder of the Debt due from the Spaniſh Friers. That he purpoſeth not to deliver the Kings Letter in behalf of George Strangham a Scotſman, till he ſhall further underſtand his Majeſties pleaſure; wiſhing that His Majeſties Hand were more ſpare in thoſe private Cauſes, eſpecially to the King of a Nation ſo punctual as that, which hath already ſett ſome Note of His often writing. That the Spaniards have neither ſoe much good Nature as to love for the preſent, nor ſoe much Diſcretion & Providence as to feare for the future. But ſithence Feare & Feeling work moſt upon them, he would that his Majeſtie ſhould make a little Eſſay of the French Kings Medicine (when the French can find no Reliefe by waie of Juſtice) to even their Loſſes upon the Seas. Twoe or three ſuch Examples will prove a meane of preſent Reformation in all Diſorders.

162. To the Earle of Northampton. 434.

Touching ſome of his private Affairs. That he had the favor of the King of Spain to land the Value of his Money (he intended to bring with him) in Commodities, dities, at Liſbon, Cuſtom-free. That, beſides, the Duke of Lerma had procured that King to give the Order of St. Jago to a Gentleman at Sir Charles's Requeſt, for which he received a Gratification of 400l. and wondereth why he maie not receive without Suſpicion what our King, out of his Liberalitie would beſtowe upon him. Relateth the meanes uſed by the Conde de Villa-Longa the Spaniſh Secretary, to gain him to themſelves; and his Conduct on that Occaſion, ſince which, He hath found his Reputation much increaſed. That he hath alſo had Offers from a German to break the Peace between England & Spain, which he alſo rejected.

163. To the Earle of Northampton, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports. 438. b.

Blaming the Spaniards for their Unſteadineſs as to their Propoſals; and laing this down for a Maxim in State, that he neither loves his King or Countrey, that wiſhes any Faith to be given to the Spaniards, or Confidence to their Courteſies, longer than they ſerve for ſupplies to their owne neceſſities.

164. To the Earle of Suffolke Lord Chamberlaine to his Majeſty. 439. b.

165. To the Counteſs of Suffolke. 440.

That he hath taken much paines for the reducing Mr. Henry Carye's Ranſome to ſome reaſonable Proportion; his being found in that Company (after ſoe many Favours & good Entertaynement received in the Archdukes Courte) being very unkindly taken. That he hath at laſt prevailed with the Duke of Lerma & the Earl of Villa-longa, that Belaſco (who is now poſſeſſed of him ſhall (when he receiveth the Kings Liberalitie for his paſt Services) give him his Libertie, upon a verie reaſonable agreement. Sir Charles ſendeth her Ladyſhip ſome curioſities made by Spaniſh Nuns of Quality, and one among the reſt to the Lady Cecill.

166. To the Earle of Nottingham, &c. 441. b.

That the Conde de Lemos is very thankful for our Kings favor done unto him. That the Spaniards are diſguſted at our Court, ſaying that their Ambaſſador can receive no contentment or favor there, but from the King himſelf.

167. To the Earle of Suffolke, Lord Chamberlaine, &c. 443. b.

That he ſuffereth in his Negotiation of the great Buſineſs, through the traiterous Reports ſpread by ſome unnaturall Intelligencers of our own Countrey. That much Complaint hath come thither, of the little reſpect uſed by the Engliſh Miniſters towards the Spaniſh Ambaſſador; for which reaſon the Spaniards have altered their Carriage towards him. That as to the aforeſaid Great Negotiation, much is the preſent diſtaſt of the Spaniards, and the neglect we are growne into with them. Yet he hinteth as if there was little likelyhood of their Conjunction with France.

168. To the Earle of Northampton. 444. b.

He expreſſeth himſelf as if the Difficulties in bringing the great Buſineſs about, were almoſt inſuperable. That the Spaniards are not juſt for Juſtice ſake, nor loving in Regard of Charitie or Merit, but a perticuler Intereſt. That the Intelligencers in England, & Fugitives there do infinite prejudice to the Intereſts of our King & Countrey. He wiſheth that Repriſals were made on the Spaniards who have no Commiſeration of our Engliſh Merchants.

169. To Sir Thomas Edmondes, His Majeſties Ambaſſador with the Archduke. Sent by an Engliſh Frier. 447.

That he hath moved for the Apprehenſion of Captain James Blount, (who was recommended thither by the Bruſſels-Jeſuites, & hath been confirmed by Walpole & others) but without any farther effect than Promiſes. That Blount hath had better Succeſs in his Endeavours to blaſt his late Colonel the Lord Arundel, & alſo his Lordſhip. That this may be taken the more patiently, in regard they have done the ſame by our King, and his whole State. That the Handle given to the Spaniards for this Alteration, is the reſtraint of Engliſh Supplies to them, and the yielding them abundantly to their Enemies, the diſreſpectful Uſage of their Ambaſſador, & denyal of Juſtice to their Subjects. That the Princes of Savoy are upon their Departure, and ſtay only for the Money they ſhould have from the King for the Charge of their Journey. That the King did lately forbeare to goe publiquely to his Chappell, becauſe of the Ambaſſador of Venice, which State is thought to be now compleately excommunicated. That the Marquis Spinola hath engaged his Eſtate for ſupport of this Campaign, and therefore hath bought his Titles of Councellour of State & Grandee of Spaine very dear.

Num. 1875.

170. Certaine Reaſons drawne by my Lord Ambaſſadour, to prove that the Allyance with England concerninge the Lowe Countreys in Dowrie, is both honorable & profitable for Spaine. 450.

The Coppie of this was incloſed to my Lord of Saliſburie, in a Letter dated 29 Maij.

171. To the Earle of Saliſburie, from Madrid; by Alexander Stuart, who beganne his Journey the 9th of June 1606. 454.

That the Duke of Lerma looketh very pale & weakly after his Recovery, having not been ſpared by the Spaniſh Phyſicians, who have not ſo much Skill as ours. Relateth the Conference he had with that Duke, upon the Subjects of Reſtitution to be made to our Merchants; of their Ambaſſadors being diſgracefully uſed by our Kings Miniſters; of the Kings Anſwer to their Propoſitions of the great buſineſs; the puniſhment or delivery of the Traytor Owyne; & the enlargement of Sir Henry Carye. Relateth alſo the Diſcourſe between Mr. Hawkeſworth his Secretary and the Conde de Villa Longa, about reſtitution to be made to our Merchants. That the Spaniards upon the Departure of the Hollanders from their Coaſts, are again grown as haughty as ever. That he is of opinion, they will not yield to the propoſed alliance between the two Crownes, by reaſon of the Oppoſition made thereunto by the Confeſſors they conſult.

172. To the Earle of Saliſburie; by the foreſaid Meſſenger. 464. b.

That there are latelie arrived divers Iriſh Fryers, Prieſts, & Captaines, from the Lowe-Countries, & keep their Rendevous at the Lodginge of Captaine Blount; where (as in other places) they talke liberallie of England, & Engliſh matters, and againſt our King himſelf. That for divers reaſons he findeth not himſelf in a capacity of getting the Offenders puniſhed: one of which is, becauſe of the extreame Lawes and bitter Perſecution (as the Spaniards terme it) againſt thoſe of their Religion both in England & Ireland; eſpecially in Ireland, where they reporte that Prieſts & Friers are executed by Martiall Lawe. Moreover, that ſuch Informations are geven, even out of the Kings Chamber, in depravation of his Perſon, Government, & State, as have had but too fatal an effect. That Sir Henry Caryes buſineſs muſt be tried by a Council of War, & ſubjected to the ordinary delayes. Relateth the lamentable Caſes of our Merchants & other the Kings ſubjects, who can have no relief from the Spaniards; & whoſe Redreſſe he leaveth to the King. That the Alliance with our State is not now thought of by them. That Spinola was inforced to engage his owne Eſtate to the Genowayes, for the borrowinge of this yeeres Money for the Warres. That they have now no more hopes of the Indian Fleete. That they have raiſed as much Money in Sicilia & Naples as is poſſible, but it proves as a bean in the Mouth of a Lion. He looketh on the Extremity of their hatred to the French to be ſo great as that an Alliance with that Nation muſt be reſerved for a deſperate Medicine, to be ſwallowed like a Fill, without either chawinge or thinking on. That there is a great Competition between the two Jeſuits Creſwell & Parſons, of the former of whom he conceiveth the beſt Opinion and thinketh him the beſt Inſtrument he could uſe for working the Alliance with us, & diſappoint it with France; but ſince his Lordſhip hath forbidden him to correſpond with him, he will obey.

173. To the Earle of Saliſburie, from Madrid. 473. b.

Relating his Diſcourſe with the Spaniſh Secretary Prada, concerning the Spaniards beginning again to ſuffer themſelves to be abuſed by our Fugitives; for which, they had before bitterly ſmarted; concerning the Apprehenſion of Blount, & Puniſhment of Owynne; and that Secretaries Aſſertion that our King ſtayed all thoſe who were willing to ſerve the Archduke, and ſuffered multitudes, out of London it ſelf, to put themſelues into the Army of the Hollanders. That the French endeavor to put a Pique betweene England & Spaine, for the better effecting the late affected Allyance. That the Duke of Lerma refuſeth to be ſpoken with; and though the Conde de Villa-Longa denyes noe Audience, he ſo niggles & ſhuffles, as with him there can be found noe ſound ground.

174. A Letter to the Duke of Lerma. 476. b.

In behalf of Sir Henry Carye; about the great Buſineſs as profitable to Spain, & honorable to the Duke; and putting him in mind of the Merchants.

175. To my Lord of Saliſburie, 20 Junij 1606. 477. b.

Touching the weak & unſetled State of Spain. That the Jeſuits, Prieſts, Friers, & Fugitives agree that his Lordſhip is the Cauſa Cauſarum of all their Sufferings, and the onely eſpeciall Favourer & Patron of the States. That therefore they have plotted together for the Murder of his Lordſhip, by a Muſket-ſhott out of the Savoy, or ſome other houſe neere, as his Lordſhippe ſhall be goeinge by Water to the Courte, or other place in Weſtminſter, and he partly ſuſpecteth that Blount is the Man who muſt do it. That the Spaniards complain much of England, and that his Majeſtie hath broken the Conventions of Peace. That they ſeeke for the Will of the Kings Mother, written with her owne hand, whereby the Queene, in caſe that the King her Son ſhould not become a Catholique, deuiſed her Kingdome of Scotland, and all Her rights in England, France & Ireland to the King of Spaine. That advice is come of the Loſſe of four of the Galleons laden with Treaſure from the Indies; and that it was much ſuſpected that the other three are gone the ſame waye. That in Peru, there are five Townes latelye ſwallowed with an Earthquake, and with them, two ſilver mynes; and the like number of Store-houſes wherein was kept the Kings Quick-ſilver that refined the Silver. That the Hollanders had ſunk four of the five Ships that Don Lewis Firardo had left in the Weſt-Indies. That he had had a late Audience of the King of Spaine who uſed him very graciouſly, & promiſed that he would redreſs the Merchants Grievances, and that Owynne ſhould be dealt with as he deſerved. That the Duke of Lerma holds himſelf verie private; but that his Privado Don Rodrigo Calderon hath ſent him word that the buſynes concerning Sir Henry Carey ſhall with greate care and ſpeede be diſpatched. That the Conde de Villa-Longa had ſolemnly ſworne that Blount ſhould be hanged, if any guiltynes ſhould be found in him, and yet had afterwards ſhewn him a faire Countenance. That the ſame Conde hath diſtaſted all the Ambaſſadours about the Courte, the Popes Nuntio himſelf not excepted; but the French Ambaſſador moſt of all, who hath now, of late, noe acceſſe either to him, or the Duke. That it was thought that Peace would not long continue betweene Spaine & France. That there hath of late been great meanes uſed by the Duke of Lerma & the Conde de Villa-Longa, to aſſemble 200,000 double Piſtoletts vpon a ſudden. And that the Court took Offence at his having a Sermon preached in his houſe on Sundays.

176. To Sir Walter Cope. 484.

About the ill State of the Spaniards, who are in much Confuſion by reaſon of the Hollanders, & the loſs of the greateſt part of their Indian Fleet; and that they are extremely jealous of the Earl of Saliſbury, who ought to be very carefull of himſelf.

177. To the Earle of Saliſburie. 485. b.

Setting forth the Perplexities the Spaniards labour under; propoſing a new Project of his owne for effecting the great Buſineſs, in caſe the preſent one ſhould fail; & reciting a freſh rumor, of the Hollanders beating Firardo, ſpoiling his Fleet, & taking his Perſon.

178. To the Earl of Northampton, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports. 5 July 1606. 489.

That the Spaniards, upon the lying Reports of the Fugitives, are much altered in their Inclinations & Carriage towards us, and ſhew all want of will to redreſs any of the Wrongs done to our Merchants at a Conjuncture when (were they not blinded & made ſtupid by their Pride and overweeninge) it would plainely appeare vnto them, that would our King be lightly moued to an Occaſion to breake with them, it is now in his power (conſidering the preſent miſerable Eſtate they ſtand in) to ſett his Foote on their Heads, & ſincke them for ever. Adviſes that ſome Method be taken in order to draw them to better Termes of Commerce than thoſe now in uſe, otherwiſe the Perill of our Merchants wil be much, and theire Gaine nothing. That the Spaniards are a moſt ſtiffe & ſtrange people, and in their humours ſo deſperate, as that they will adventure the ruyne of all, rather then forgoe their Cuſtomes, or haſten their pace in any thinge. That as for their Divinity, at this inſtant it hardly agreeth with good Humanity. That to murder or make away any man that ſtands betweene them & their ends, they account it rather a matter of Meritt than of Malice.

179. To the Lords of His Majeſties moſt honorable Privie Counſell, from Madrid. 492.

Complaining of the incertain humor of the Spaniards, from whom he cannot as yet procure Juſtice to be done to our Kings complaining Subjects. That the Spaniards alledge that in England they receive noe Juſtice nor Favor at all; That unto the Hollanders there are permitted 5000 Souldiers, to them not one; That our King, by his Articles, is to ſecure the Coaſts, where the Subjects & Souldiers of their King are continualie ſpoiled & maſſacred: with the plain & reſolute Anſwers he returned unto them, & their Thraſonical Reply. He ſetteth forth the great Weakneſs of the Spaniard, and the very wretched way they go by, in the management of affaires. That there had been a notable Sermon preached in the Kings Chapell, enforceing the Neceſſitie of Obedience to the Authoritie of the Pope, whom, with reſpect to the Venetians, it is reſolved in Council the King ſhall not abandon. That at laſt, after long Sollicitation, Blount is apprehended & kept cloſe priſoner. That farther, to content our King, they have lately given warninge to all the Iriſh Captaines, Souldiers, Fryers, Prieſts, & Beggars (of all which there are lately come a great ſwarme) that ymediately they avoyde the Countrey: and one Cuſack a Doctor of Doway, who was in a good way to have obteyned 20000 Crownes for amplifyeing the Iriſh Seminarie in Doway, is now like to loſe his labour. That divers of thoſe whom He had procured to be delivered from the Gallies had fallen again to their old Trade of pillaging the Spaniards & Portugueſe, & were ſett upon by Don Lewis Firardo, with whom (notwithſtanding his much ſuperior force) they fought deſperately for a day & a night, killing many of his People; but were, at laſt taken, the principal of them hanged, & the reſt putt to their old Stations.

180. To the Earle of Saliſburie, from Madrid. 498. b.

Much againſt the Spaniards; & hinting as if the peace between England & Spain was an Impediment to the greateſt advantage & meanes to inriche our King & Realme, that in any Age hath ever ben offered. As to the the Man that ſhould kill his Lordſhip, he doth now vehemently ſuſpect one Captain Burke an Iriſhman, becauſe of his owne evill Affection to our Nation and Government; and the greate Favours & Increaſe of Penſion & Reward that he hath received ſince his comeing. That among the Pages of the Duke of Lerma's Chamber, a common talke it is what an extreme Perſecutor His Lordſhippe is of the Catholiques in England. Hereupon, every man wiſhes that their hands might give him the Pugnaladol this his Cruelty deſerveth. That among the reſt, one Warren an Engliſh Barber (and of ſome privacy with the Duke) wiſhed he were in England to give his Lordſhip the Stabb, though he were hanged & & quartered the next daie after. That theſe are the fruites of the malicious reports of our Jeſuits & Fugitives, which, as yet he cannot ſuppreſſe.

181. To my Lord of Saliſburie. 502.

That pittiful Reports had been ſpread about Blounts Impriſonment, as if he was putt into Irons, &c. whereupon Sir Charles had ſome purpoſe to ſend one to have Conference with him & relieve him, the matter was ſo continually referred forwards & backwards, between the Conde de Villa-Longa Secretary of State, & the Conde de Miranda Preſident of Caſtile, that it came to nothing at laſt. Sir Charles adds, I verelie thinke if a man ſhould putt up a memoriall vnto them deſiring it might be lawfull to eate Muſtard with his Beefe, they would keepe one Three Monthes in the Councells & Conſults before they would determine it. That by their delayes they daily diſtate all people but thoſe of theire own Nation; And yet they had a mind to have Blount tried by their Laws, although a Subject of our King, & his Treaſons committed out of their Dominions. That the ſeveral Councils of State, Warre, & the Indies ſitt exceeding often & very cloſe. That there are three projects on foot for raiſing money to the King. 1 A Libertie of Habitation & Religion to the Jewes; which people offer very largely. 2 An yeerlie portion to the King out of all Biſhopricks & Eccleſiaſticall Livings. 3 A Ratable proportion of the Gold & Silver Plate of that Kingdome. But that he believed, all three would prove but a Faggott to warme their Shirts, not a Fire to roſt their meate. He doubts not but his Majeſtie will provide ſome Reliefe for his poor ſubjects who can have no Juſtice in Spaine; but is of opinion that the olde Waye of grantinge Letters of Mart or Repriſaall, will be dangerous; His Majeſties Subjects having ſo great effects there. That Sir George Carre hath received Advertiſements from England, which he had communicated to the Conſtable, to the Secretarie Prada & Villa-longa.

182. To Sir Thomas Edmonds his Majeſties Ambaſſador with the Arch-duke, 9 July 1606. 506. b.

That he believeth the Spaniards will not aſſent to deliver up Blount for England, toward which their Humor is much changed for the worſe. The cauſe of this Alteration they attribute to us, with whom in generality they find neglect, and in particularity contempt. But Sir Charles judgeth it to proceed from the Intelligencers who deprave the King, & exaggerate the Perſecution (ſo called) of the Catholicks, together with our aſſiſting the Hollanders underhand. Herewith they bitterlie charge ſome of His Majeſties Miniſters of greateſt power, and are not without a Will to revenge the ſame by any meanes they can either publique or ſecret. That by the ſuppoſed Loſſe of the Indian Fleet, and the extreme want occaſioned thereby, they are become both ſtupid & deſperate, & even careleſſe of the continuance of the Peace, whereof they never had ſoe extreame neede, ſince if our King was at Libertie, it would be within his power to ſet his foote on their Heads, & ſincke them for ever. Rehearſeth the three projects abovementioned for rayſing Money; concluding, that things there are in much Diſorder and Confuſion, being infected with the malignant Breath of ſome Jeſuits & other Fugitives, and other ill-affected Countrey-men of our owne.

183. To the Earle of Saliſburie, 9 July 1606. 509.

That finding the tymes grown on the ſudden into ſoe extreame Alteration, he ſendeth this Meſſenger (Mr. Pindar) expreſs to His Lordſhip, to whoſe Report he hath committed much, as finding him to be a man of traſt & abilitie. He prays for the Preſervation of his Majeſtie, and ſafetie of his Lordſhip; againſt whom, whatſoever Malice can doe, will not be omitted.

184. The Coppie of a Letter written by my Lord (i. e: Sir Charles Cornwallies) unto Secretary Prada, tranſlated into Engliſh. 509. b.

Remonſtrating, that in noe one thing (though as cleere as the Light of the Sun) hath he ſince his coming into that Countrey, obtayned end for any of his Maſters Subjects. What this hath wrought in England, he cannot tell: but preſume (if the Complaints from thence be juſt & true) that one Neglect hath begotten another.

185. From Sir Thomas Edmondes His Majeſties Ambaſſadour with the Arch-Duke, 22 June 1606. 510.

That ſince our King refuſed to ſend over the Information for the Trial of our Fugitives there, Order was preſently taken for their enlargement, & even of Owynne, who is now in as great Credit as ever. That as to Captaine James Blount, who (with ſome others of his Coate there) had been detected of deſigning to have carryed awaie the Engliſh Regiment there into England, for the aſſiſtinge of Cateſbie his Enterprize after the Execution thereof: he had received Commandment from England not to urge the delivering him up, ſeeing his Majeſties Requeſt was before denyed, and therefore adviſeth Him to ſurceaſe his purſuit of him in Spaine. That the Engliſh Regiment there hath received much Diſgrace by the ſuddaine Caſhiering of all the principal Officers thereof, & almoſt one half of the Captaines. The Cauſes thereof are pretended to be the Diſagreement between the Coronell & Sir Thomas Studder the Sergeant Major, which drewe the Regiment into great Factions: Secondly, the pretended weakneſs of that Regiment, though it was then 1000 men ſtrong: but chiefly becauſe of the denyal to ſuffer any more men to come out England thither: although the ſaid Reſtraint was onely limited vntil the end of the Parliament. And that their other carriage towards England (by the incitement of our Fugitives) is ſuch as may engender evill Conceipts between both Courts. That ſome Officers have been beheaded, & others diſgraced, for not doing their Duty at the attempt to take Sluyce by ſurpriſe, which Towns the Flemmings would have to be again beſieged, but that it was intended rather to be beſiege ſome Inland Towne than a Place that could be relieved by the Enemy. He advertiſeth other particulars relating to the State of the War there. That the Jeſuites had procured the Revocation of the Popes Nuntio, becauſe he was more moderate, & would not join with them in their violent Courſes. Recommendeth to his Sollicitation the Caſe of Mr. Peter Benevoire Merchant of London; whoſe ſhip, intended for Virginia, taking in Water in the River of Helena in the Coaſt of Florida, was ſurpriſed by the Spaniards, the Goods confiſcated & ſent into Spaine. As alſo the Caſe of one Mr. Mountpeſſons an old Gentleman who had ſome arrearages of a Penſion from the King of Spain, called Remato, due unto him; which is not uſed to be paid, but by eſpeciall Order out of Spaine, to be obtained there, as friends can be made.

186. To the Lord of Saliſburie by the waie of Flanders, preſently after the goeing of Mr. Pindar the 9th of July 1606. 516.

That he hath awakened the Spaniards out of their Dreame by ſpeaking lowder than they: and now they ſay that they are not ſo evill affected as to breake the Peace vpon a few vnkindneſſes, proceeding rather from His Majeſties Miniſters then Himſelf; and promiſe Anſwers of all the Cauſes here depending, but he ſuſpecteth the Sicilian buſineſs will ſtill be ſhuffled off at laſt. That the King of Spain hath iſſued freſh orders for preventing Injuries to be done to our Country-men, & for puniſhment of divers Officers who have contravened the laſt.

187. To Sir Thomas Edmondes His Majeſties Ambaſſador in the Lowe-Countreys. 5. 8.

How that by his pulling the Spaniards by the Sleeve, he hath made them to open their Eies. That Blount remaineth ſtill in Priſon, but that (upon receipt of his Letter) he told them, that conſideringe they purpoſe the ſame way with him, that before they did with Owyn, our King not allowing any Tryal for any Subject of his at the Tribunall of another Prince, he remitted him wholly to them, whoe (as he perceived) are determined to ſett him at Libertie.

188. To my Lord of Saliſburie, in the beginninge of Auguſt. 519.

That the want of Money & Plenty of Miſeries dayly encreaſe. That a Gentleman is come from the Marquis Spinola, whoſe principal Errand is thought to be an Advertiſement of a faileing in the Undertaking for the furniſhing of Money, vpon the loſſe of the Indian Treaſure, and a Sollicitation for a Supply from Spain. That they now again give hopes (ſince they have no money) to the Engliſh ſuffering Merchants. That he hath of late, & ſhall be again very playne with them, upon their Reports of our King, that he hath broken his Covenants; and that they formerly thought the Engliſh Nation valiant, honorable, & punctual in all their Actions, but perceive them now to growe cautelous & irreſpective of their Word & Promiſe. That as to the Sicilian Cauſe (i. e. that of Hall & Eldred) the Conſtable, being Preſident of the Councell of Italie, was authorized to make this Anſwer. That ſuch are the Lawes & Cuſtoms of that Countrey, as a Cauſe there ſentenced cannot be revoked, to be reviewed in another place. That the manner of proceedings there (i. e. in Spain) is ſo troubleſome, vnjuſt, & vnpittiful, as without ſome newe Conventions for reformation of the daiely oppreſſions of their Officers in the Ports, it will be neither profitable nor ſafe for his Majeſties Subjects to continue their Commerce there. Relates the Conferences he had with the Conſtable, & with the Secretary Prada, touching our Merchants, & the better Regulation of the commerce between both Nations. Touching which, the Secretary deſired him to have a little patience, ſaying that their Intricacces, Diſtractions, & Neceſſities were not unknowne to him. That thoſe had made them forgett themſelves in many matters that much imported them at Home; and therefore noe marvaile though they had not taken that Courſe & Care they ſhould with Forraigners in matters abroade; and that there ſhould be an end of all very ſhortly, and in the mean time, the King will take a ſpecial care to puniſh the very next delinquents that ſhall oppreſs any of our Kings Subjects in his Ports. That all this while whoſoever ſpeakes worſt of England, is held the moſte ſound Friend to Spaine, and continue their ſame bad opinion of His Lordſhip. That the Captains Burke & Weſton continue there ſtill, being both ill affected to our Countrey in generall & to his Lordſhip in particular. That Blount is ſtill in Priſon, although they would not deliver him up to our King, having proteſted that for their Honor they would not doe it, if he were a Turke. He ſendeth to his Lordſhip a Treaty between the French King & the Hollanders, likely to prove prejudicial to theſe Eſtates.

Admiring at the courſe taken by the Spaniards in ſo frequent infringing the Treaty of Peace, which his Majeſty muſt think proceeding from the Great ones, unleſs due puniſhment be done on the inferior Officers. For the embargoing our Shipps at Liſbon, conſtrayning our Marryners to ſerve in Warlike Actions againſt our Friends; confiſcating of whole Shipps & Goods for a ſmale Quantitie of pretended forbidden Commodities; exacting ſtill 30 per Cent, in the Iſlands of Terceras, cannot be conſtrued as done by private Authority; beſides many ſuch other notorious wrongs dailie brought unto his Majeſties Eares, the Redreſſe whereof the Merchants pretend to be delayed through his (Sir Charles's) Remiſſneſs. Directeth him how to proceed at the Spaniſh Court with relation to Blount, who had been accuſed of the Gun-powder Treaſon; who being ſummoned upon his Allegiance to repaire into England, willfullie diſobeyed, & went from Bruxelles, hopeing to receive a better ſupport in Spaine. That our Queene had been delivered of a Daughter, who died the next day. That they were in Expectation of the King of Denmarks coming over to England. He ſendeth Sir Charles a Proclamation publiſhed ſince the finiſhing the Parliament, concerninge the baniſhinge of Prieſts & Jeſuits, by which he might ymagine the future courſe of his Majeſties Proceedinges againſt them would be rather by Lenity & Moderation, than by Seueritie in th'Execution of the Lawes: although in this Parliament there hath been ſome ſharpnes paſſed in Terrorem. That the French King hath invited our King to be Godfather to his eldeſt Daughter at the generall chriſtening of his three Children, at once. That our King willingly accepted of the Honor, but ſince the Pope was to be Godfather to the Dolphin, he deſired to be excuſed, becauſe he could not avoid Scandall in participating with the Pope in any publique action. But if the eldeſt Daughters Chriſtening might be performed ſome convenient tyme before the other twoe (although his Majeſtie knoweth the Difference beweene a Dolphin & a Daughter of France) yet he will be moſt ready to accept of it.

192. From the Lords of His Majeſties moſt Honorable Privy Counſell; dated 9 July 1606. 532.

All upon the Subject of the Spaniſh cruel & unjuſt Uſage of our Countreymen, who had deſired Letters of Marque for their getting Satisfaction, ſince Juſtice had been denied them; & requiring him again to ſolicit theſe matters with all imaginable earneſtneſs & Zeal, in order to procure Redreſs for the poor People, if it might be poſſible.

193. From my Lord of Saliſbury; dated 12 July 1606. 526. b.

That the Merchants impute their lack of Redreſs in Spain in a great meaſure, to a Guift beſtowed on him by the King of Spain, with this further Circumſtance, that certain Engliſh Merchants ſhould have bought it of him, but that he differed in the Price, not a Trifle, but ſome Thouſands of Pounds; and that therefore He dare not offend the Spaniards. His Lordſhip wonders why he doth not putt them more in mind of their often breaking the late Treaty of Peace, when upon every petty Injury they ſhall be whining here, & yet deny Juſtice to our Countreymen who have ſuffered more notorious & flagrant wrongs, and of twenty times the Value. The Truth of the Matter concerning the Reſtraint of our People who were willing to ſerve the Arch-Duke; and of the Proceedings in our Parliament with reference to Spain, and the late Treaty of Peace, and of the Neutral Conduct of the Miniſtry in reſpect of the Men who are willing to ſerve on either Side. the Spaniſh Ambaſſadors houſe here, againſt his Majeſties Perſon, and for ſeizing his Cautionary Town of Fluſhing betweene one Captain William Nuce, & Thomaſo Franco, who mett in the Chamber of one John Balle an Iriſhman, Servant to the ſaid Ambaſſador; who had made too many Scruples about the delivering up of this ſame Balle; who had alſo kept poyſoned Paſt of Genoa by him, of which (as it ſeemeth, through miſtake) Nuce & his Family did eat. Sir Charles is deſired to advertize this matter to the King of Spain.

On the ſame Occaſion,

196. From the Earle of Saliſburie; dated 27 Auguſt 1606. 547.

That he had laid his ſeveral Letters, wherein he had ſett forth the great coldneſs of the Spaniards towards us, with their intolerable delays and Refuſal of doing our poor Merchants Juſtice, before the King & Councill. That thereupon, His Majeſtie (before he would breake with Spain) had come to a Reſolution of drawing the Spaniſh Ambaſſador here to an orderly Conference upon the Subject of our Peoples Grievances, and of the preſent Coldneſs of the Spaniards, which was for the moſt part attributed to his Advertiſements from hence. That this Conference was held the 22 of Auguſt, wherein the Baron of Holloque the Arch-Dukes Ambaſſador was alſo called to aſſiſt the Spaniard. His Lordſhip giveth the particulars tranſacted at that Meeting, which hath alſo an eſpeciall relation to Franco, Nuce, & Balle abovementioned. He deliverеth his Opinion, that the Spaniſh Coldneſs towards us at this time, is occaſioned by their Repentance of the Treatie of Peace, which left us a Liberty of Voluntaire Service to the States both at Land & Sea, which galleth them many waies. That their denying us Juſtice in Spain, is to draw us to trade with them in Flanders. That therefore if our Country-men ſhall continue to be thus tyranized upon in Spain, and can receive no right, it will be high time for His Majeſtie to bethink himſelf of another Courſe, for which he had never fairer Overtures of ſtreight & potent Conjunctures; although his inward intention be to conſerve Peace as long as he maye with Honnour & Safety. That lately upon great & generall Complaint of the Reſort of Papiſts to Maſſe at the Spaniſh Ambaſſadors Houſe, the High Commiſſion had ordered ſome of the Offendors to be ſtayed. That as ſoon as this was knowne the Officers were ordered to forbeare to come neere His Gate any more that daie, whereby divers Perſons of good Qualitie who were within, eſcaped. He writeth of other matters relating to that Ambaſſador and his Nation; produceth a new Inſtance of their ſmall reſpect for our Kings perſon, by their not puniſhing a fellow at Antwerp who had ſpoken injuriouſly of him; and as to himſelf, notwithſtanding his danger by their bloudie practiſes, is reſolved to be the more zealous in the Service of God and his Countrey.

197. The Introduction (to the Conference ſpecified in the former Letter) deliuered by the Earle of Saliſburie to the Spaniſh Ambaſſadour. 558.

This ſetteth forth the Nature of our Complaints againſt the Spaniards, as, 1. Embargeing our Ships. 2. Continuing the Duties of 30 per Cent. in divers places of their Dominions. 3. Forceably taking our Marryners out of our Ships, & making them ſerve in theirs. 4. Confiſcating of Ships & whole Ladeings for a ſmale quantitie of prohibited Goodes. 5. Putting our Men into the Inquiſition without layeinge any particuler Charge unto them; & forceing them to doe Reverence to the Sacrament in the Streete. 6. Impoſeing of New Impoſitions, & Continueinge of other Exactions at their pleaſure. All theſe were directly againſt the late Treaty, beſides, 7. Particular Wrongs & Injuries, and denyall of Juſtice; & 8ly. Many Indignities & Unkindneſſes, not to be ſeparated from the ame Treatie ſalva & illæſa Amicitia.

198. Sir Henry Wotton from Venice, 2 September 1606. 560. b.

Partly in Cyfer, but relating to the Difference betweеn that State & the Pope. That the War between them, is as yet a Paper War, the Printer gaineing more than the Cutler. That the King of Denmarke is departed homewardes, having brought with him Sixe of his Counſellours that diſwaded the Voyage.

199. To Sir Henry Wotton, 29 September 1606. 562.

That ſoe long as the Paper-fight contynueth, there is to be expected more Effuſion of Witt than Blood; the Exerciſe being better, and the Perill leſſe. That the diſaſtrous Fortunes & Improvidences of the Spaniſh State doe daiely more & more ſhewe themſelves. That their Eaſt-Indian Fleet is partly periſhed, & the reſt taken by the Hollanders, the Admiral of Biſcay fallen into the ſame Hands, and now an Hundred Holland Ships of Warre come upon their Coaſts, to attend the comeing home of their Fleets from the Weſt-Indyes. That ſtill, they will do no Juſtice to His Majeſties Subjects, but Injuſtice continually; whereby, the Peace will become as perillous to Our King, and much more diſadvantageous to his Subjects than the Warre. That Six of his principalleſt Servants are now ſick of the Calenture (not to mention three more lately dead of it) this Countrey being in his Opinion much more perillous than the Campe in the Low Countreyes. Sir Charles thanketh him for his good Advice to his ſon Sr. William, whom he ſtyleth unthriftie & unfortunate, ſaying that he had ſpent him 5000 pounds at Court, and now, when he had given him 200 pounds a year more, he turnes his backe to his Fortunes. And that of all ſorts of people he moſt diſpairs of thoſe of his ſorte, that are Philoſophers in their Wordes, and Fooles in their Workes.

203. To my Lord of Saliſburie. 577. b.

That by private Notice from a friend, he underſtandeth that the Merchants give out that he dare not offend the Spaniards by importunate Solicitation of their Cauſes, as having received great Gifts from the King there: and that he hath prevayled for ſuch of our Countrymen as ſued for Penſions, but obtained not the Libertie of ſuch as were kept priſoners. To which he anſwereth, that He hath ſpared no paines in their Cauſes; that that alone of Hall & Eldred, hath coſt him one way or other, out of his owne Purſe, the better parte of an Hundred Poundes. That the Spaniards are ſuch a people as that no man can learne how to deale with them, by reaſon of theire extreame delayes, much mutability, & little reſpectivenes to their owne honour or conſciences. He cleareth himſelf of the Imputation of having receiued Gifts, owning no more than what hath been before mentioned. That as to Penſions he never was Suitor for any man whatſoever, but refuſed all; only when the King of Spaine ſent him word that he had inlarged the Penſion of Mr. Robert Southwell becauſe he heard that he was his Kinſman; he gave (as became him) humble Thankes to his Majeſtie for ſoe greate a Fauor. That as to his remiſſneſs in in ſoliciting the Libertie of our captivated Country-men, his Letters would eaſily prove the contrary; beſides he had actually delivered twoe out of the Inquiſition, one out of the Priſon at Liſbon, and 43 or 50 out of the Gallies. That his Servants daiely fall ſicke, the Heate of this Somer having been ſo exceſſive, as that they have lived in a manner as in an Oven; & he himſelf is grown ſoe weake, as his Leggs will ſcarce carry him.

204. To my Lord of Saliſburie. 12 September, 1606. 585.

In anſwer (as it ſeemeth) to that above remembred at § 193. and again purgeth himſelf of the Gifts ſaid to have been received by him; particularly, he relateth the matter of his Privilege of tranſporting Corn thither, which was the thing harped upon by the Merchants, and generally granted to Men of his Place. He alſo ſayeth, That if he would have been tyed up to the Spaniſh Rack-ſtaves, he might have had more than he expected to be worth in his whole Eſtate. But, if the King of Spain would have geuen him the Value of all his Kingdomes, he would not have tranſgreſſed in his faith, or in any thing have failed the Truſt repoſed in him. That although the Spaniards are bad enough in their own Natures, & egged on by Fugitives & falſe Intelligencers; yet ſome of our Merchants have been to blame in giving Vent to malicious & untrue Reports, for ſerving their own Turnes. He deſires that His Majeſtie would lend him 4000 l. to be repaid by 1000 l. a year; by which Sum, he ſhall be able to quiet his Eſtate, & provide for his Daughter now marriageable.

205. To my Lord of Saliſburie, 17 September 1606. 592.

That as to redreſſing the Grievances complained of by our Merchants, all that comes from the Spaniards are onely wordes to wynne tyme, and without all Intention. That our People having made their Complaints in generall termes (without ſpecifying the Names of thoſe who ſuffered, or did the Injuries) his Repreſentation muſt be ſo too, and conſequently his anſwer will be to little purpoſe. That if our Merchants muſt ſuffer the daiely Injuries offered unto them by the Spaniards; better it were that the Traffique were wholly left. He proceedeth to hint at a Rupture between the two Crowns, and ſendeth his Lordſhip a Project for raiſing money to ſupport the War. That divers of his Servants are fallen ſick of the Calenture, & ſome dead. That there die of the Spaniards at leaſt 300 a week, & of the Iriſh, many, the Phiſicians being ſo ignorant, that if a man fall ſick, it is almoſt an even lay that he ſhall never recover.

208. To the Lords of the Counſell, 9 September 1606. 600.

Relating his proceedings at the Spaniſh Court, in behalf of many of our injured Merchants. That as to the Shippe Caſtor & Pollux, he knowes not how to frame his Suite, becauſe the Spaniſh Jealouſie of their Indyes is ſo extreame, as they reſolve to make it capitall to all ſuch as ſhall fall into their Hands there. That Sir John Watts was not well adviſed to ſend thither with Goods of their Produce, eſpecially Maſſe-bookes & Copes, which are not Wares for Engliſh Handes; but however, he will doe his beſt to recover what is taken from him. Relates the Arguments they uſe to keep their own People faſt in their Religion, and to draw in ours; which have had their Effects. That the Acceſs to the King there is difficult, that whoſoever applies himſelf to Him for any thing, ſetts back the Clock of his buſineſs very many Degrees. That the Method of the Spaniards in Diſpatch of buſineſs, is vaſtly different from, & more tedious than that of England, as he ſheweth by particulars; ſo that the moſt juſt & fauored Buſynes cannot (in walking in the Ordinary Path) come to end, in leſs than 13 or 14 Monthes: but if croſſed, or put out of the Waye, very hardly in ſoe many yeeres. Yet he meaneth to be a Suitor to His Majeſtie for brief Diſpatch of the ſeveral Cauſes recommended to him, according to Lawe & Equity, although he knoweth this Attempt will be brought about with exceeding great difficulty. That when they before ſhewed ſo much good Humour to him, they had their Aim at the reaping of many Advantages (which he enumerates) from their Peace with England; but failing in them all, he feareth that their Amity (how long ſoever it ſhall continue) will be without Love & Truſt. That in caſe of breaking with His Majeſtie, they would endeavour to trouble him by Ireland; but now of late, hope much more to kin le Fire in Scotland; and at the laſt findeing none other Remedie, they ſaie they will accept of the Allyance & League offered by France. That at the l te Conſultation about the relieuing of the Kings Wants, many things have beene propounded; and amongſt the reſt, the Raiſinge of His Coyne, which is wholly rejected: but the puttinge of an Impoſition of 2 Ryalls upon euery Hereage of Wheate ſpent or ſold, they ſaye will yeeld to the King a Revenue of at leaſt 14 Millions. That Sir Anthony Sherley is arriued at Liſbon, where he arrogats to himſelf the Title of Ambaſſadour to the Emperor; by whom, he ſayeth, he is ſent to the King of Marocco, whom he had preſented with a Rubie of great perfection, of the weight of twoe Ounces, eſteemed at 500,000 Ducats; the farther Story whereof, & of the Papers he ſent to the Duke of Lerma, & to the Conde de Villa-Longa, I ſhall here omit.

209. To my Lord of Suffolke. 608. b.

Setting forth the Reaſons (before rehearſed) why he now deſpaireth of any Succeſſe in the greate Buſynes. That they now begin to attribute all their late Calamityes, to another Sin. For openly in Pulpits it hath ben preached, that better it had ben for them to have ſuffred Hunger, Penury, nay Peſtilence it ſelf, than to have contracted Friendſhip with Heretiques & Enemys of God. That they have already conſulted & agreed of the Courſe they will take when the Peace ſhall breake, and he doubteth not but our King hath done the like.

210. To my Lord of Northampton. 610.

Concerninge the Imputation laid upon him by the Merchants; as to which he referreth himſelf to the Letter he hath written to the Earl of Saliſbury.

211. To Sir Thomas Edmondes, Ambaſſadour with the Arch-Duke, 19th September 1606. 611.

That the Spaniards Eares are full of money, but their Purſes empty. That many Conſultas and Juntas haue ben lately made about the Prouiſion of a Royal Navy; but what is concluded, or where they ſhoulde finde money to performe it, he cannot yet learne. That the Alteration of their behaviour towards us upon the ſuddaine, is greate; and though he hath of late exhibited divers Memorials, he can haue Aunſwere of none, neither Acceſſe to the King, or the Duke of Lerma.

212. To the Lords of the Counſell, vltimo die Septembris 1606. 612.

Relating a Conference he had with the Duke of Lerma, upon the Subject of our Merchants Complaints; the falſe Reports raiſed by our Fugitives; that two or three Commiſſioners might be appointed to hear & determine of our Merchants Cauſes according to Juſtice & Equity; that a more ſtreight Commandment might be geuen to the Apoſentador for an houſe to be aſſigned to him within the Towne, as to all other Ambaſſadors. How the Duke began to wheedle, in order to induce him to return to Popery (wherein he had been bred) and the Anſwer made him by Sir Charles. That Owynn is arrived at Madrid, ouer whome he will keepe a watchfull eye. And, that Blount hath exhibited a Memoriall pretending to be of kindred kindred with diuers Noblemen of England, that he left his Countrey & Goods for Religion, & by Sir Charles's means had ſuffered long and ſtraight Impriſonment, &c.

213. To my Lord of Saliſburie. 623.

Still deſiring that His Majeſty would lend him the 4000 l. abovementioned. Setting forth the great Mortality reigning in his Houſe, which is ſo ſtraight, that neither Day nor Night he can avoid hearing the Groanes of his ſick & dying Servants. That the Duke of Lerma begins now to make half a Profeſſion of following his Pleaſures, and geueing over to attend the publique buſines. That the Court is followed by Comedians who coſt the King 45 l. a day, when thoſe to whom the King oweth money dye daiely for want of Bred. That there is ſome Rumor as if theire Indian Fleete of the laſt yere, is either come Home, or verie neare the Coaſt, and that the Hollanders either miſſed it, or dared not to attack it. That there is a generall fame, that the Hollanders labour much both of want of Men & Money, and hopeth that our King will not ſuffer the Spaniard to conquer them. That now again they daiely ſhew more Violence to his Majeſties Subjects and leſs regard to what they capitulated. That he can by noe means get the two Secretaries to meete according to the Dukes late Order; nor from him any one Aunſwere or Diſpatch of any thinge.

214. To my Lord of Saliſburie. 626. b.

Relating the Diſcourſe he had with Secretary Prada concerning his Lordſhip, the Opinion of the Spaniſh Court concerning him, & how they came to conceive that Opinion; and that they were now altered. That Prada, in Concluſion, plainely confeſſed that they had received a double Offer out of England; either to murder his Lordſhip, or to raiſe a Difference between him & ſome other great Lords; both which he proteſted, were abſolutely denyed & refuſed, and gave him the Reaſons why. That Owynne hath met with a very cold Reception; and neither He nor Blount goes abroad by day-light. That the Ambaſſador of Venice tooke knowledge to him how much that State holds its ſelf obliged to his Majeſtie, and alſo enlarged himſelf in particular Commendations of his Lordſhip, and that the other Ambaſſadors there, carry the ſame mynde. That in another Converſation with Prada, he told him that the Spaniſh intollerable Delayes & Procraſtinations drewe much Hatred upon their Nation, & ſcandall to their Government; the blame whereof Prada laid upon the late Erection of Conſultas, but again promiſed fair things. He believeth that there are ſome ſecrett Treatyes in hand betweene Spain and France. That diverſe of our Iriſh Fugitiues haue of late obtayned increaſe of their Penſions. That his Couſin Henry Cornwallies is come thither, whoſe wants he relieveth, endeavoring alſo at the ſame time to reduce him from Popery; that the Young Gentleman deſireth ſome Penſion from His Majeſtie, whoſe Pleaſure therein Sir Charles will expect. That the Spaniards ſtill continue ſhuffling in the Cauſes of our Merchants, promiſing much & performing nothing, he therefore believeth that their true Intent is only to wynne tyme, without any purpoſe to giue Contentment in any thing of Subſtance. That the Ambaſſador of Mantua there, hath of late received ſeuerall ſpeciall Commaundments from his Maſter to offer his Affection & Service to our King, whoſe anſwer Sir Charles deſireth to receive. That the Mortalitie continueth in the Houſe, Mr. Hawkſworth his Secretarie & 4 more being dead; his Chaplain & twoe others Sicke, & Three more late fallen downe: and that notwithſtanding he hath taken Phiſicke, he is in daiely doubt to endure what his Servants have done. Laſtly, he deſireth that his Majeſties Allowance may be better paid, he having gonne, by borrowing, to the vtmoſt end of his Credite.

215. To my Lord of Saliſburie. 633.

That Hawkeſworth his Secretary being dead, he provided himſelf of Cooke, who ſometymes ſerved the Emperors Ambaſſador; but his Confeſſor & Countreyman ſo terrefyed him with the Fire of Hell to his Soule, and that of the Inquiſition to his Body, as he withdrew himſelf without taking his Leave, and will not be perſwaded to returne. That there is no hope of ſucceſſe in the greate Buſynes; for without Tolleration of Religion, they will not aduenture a Daughter in England. That Sir Anthony Sherley did in Barbarie play many parts of Mountebankerie which, perhaps, ſome Merchants Factors in London will bitterly taſt of; and thoſe of Liſbone hardly eſcape him. That Sir Anthony hath ſhewed an inexampled Licenſe or Paſport from our King; deſiring all Princes to geue him Paſſage thorough their Countreys, and to aſſiſt & ſupply him in all Neceſſities, which he would accept as a Fauor to himſelf; and concludeing that what he deſired of forraigne Princes he ſtraightly commaunded to his owne Subjects. That the Seale was like unto the Privy Seale, and the Name ſubſcribed under the Licenſe. That Seventy Shippes are lately arriued out of the Indies, & have lately brought with them at leaſt Ten Millions, which hath much erected the Myndes of the Spaniards and encouraged them to threaten a Reuenge againſt the Hollanders.

216. To my Lorde of Saliſburie. 28 October 1606. 635.

That he findeth, of late, a full Song among the Spaniſh Clergy (who abſolutely governe there) that nothing hath drawne the heauy Hand of God ſoe faſt upon them as the Conjunction with Heretiques his greateſt Enemeys: and thereupon, are content to publiſh & proteſt their vttermoſt Endeauors to work a Diſſolution. As to the Court, his Opinion is, that although to ſerue their owne occaſions, they maie temporize for a while, yet whenſoeuer they ſhal be able to arme their Mallice, they will not forbeare to vſe th'effect of it; and neither tarry for termes of Honour or Conſcience to geue Juſtifications to their Actions. That notwithſtanding the arrival of their Fleets (which the Hollanders ſo narrowly miſſed) they are ſtill deuiſeing means to relieue the Kings wants. That the Duke of Lerma hath entered into a reſolution to abandon the World; and hath obtained a Breue of the Pope for taking the Order of St. Jerome, and hath alſo gotten a Licence of the Pope to retaine his Revenues in Commendam. This Report, is not vnprofitable, were it but to abate that Envye that followes his wordly Greatnes; nor unneceſſary, if at any tyme he ſhould (by the end of the Life or Fauour of the King his Maſter) endure a Change of Fortune. That hitherto he hath been able to procure but ſmall Effect of their Promiſes of redreſſing the Wrongs of our injured Merchants. That our Fugitiues & Jeſuits have ſworn a Report, that none can liue in England, without takeinge the Oath of Supremacy; but he hath ſomewhat taken off the edge of that malicious Slander. That the Spaniards are become very careleſs of the Contynuance of the Peace; and the generall Opinion amongſt them is, that it will not hold. That he tells them the firſt daie of the breach will be the beginninge of their Sorrow; and the progreſſe of the Warre the Ouerthrow of their Greatnes. That they have encreaſed the Penſions of diverſe of the Iriſhe: and Carre the Scotchman ſends & receiues diuerſe Diſpatches to & from Scotland: & therefore deſireth that an Eye were had vpon his Correſpondents. That by his laſt, Intelligence was brought of the Arraignement & Death of Garret, & ſince then, he hath gotten 200 Ducats of his Penſion. That Commiſſioners are expected from the Hanſe Townes with Offer to ſerue the King by Sea againſt the Hollanders; and an Ambaſſador from Savoy.

217. To my Lord of Northampton. 641. b.

That his Importunitie in the Cauſes of our Merchants hath been ſo much, as made him ſuſpected; and ſome (of the beſt Sorte) were content to whiſper that he did ſo, for his own Commoditie, & not by Commiſſion or Commaundement of the King his Maſter although thoſe ungratefull People have miſrepreſented him at home.

He

Num. 1875.

He ſheweth many of the reaſons why he hath been delayed. That the Delayes in Spain are equal to all men: He inſtanceth in the Duke of Feria, who bought a Manor of the King for 40 00 Crownes, for which nobody elſe would give above 35000) The money being paid down, he was to be put into immediate poſſeſſion; but before that could be done, an order came from the King forbidding it; the Duke being ſufficiently great already, & the King not willing to part with a Seignorie of ſuch Command & Value. Hereupon the Duke deſires his Money, but in two years time can get nothing, notwithſtanding continuall & importunate Sollicitation; nor (as it ſeems) any intention of reimburſing him. To particuler like Examples in Perſons inferior, were to write a whole Volume. That the Conde de Villa-Mediana, though (ſince his returne) exceedinge beuntifully rewarded by his King, is ſayd to liue in great neceſſity.

218. To the Lords of the Counſell, 3 November 1606. 646. b.

That though our King had done Juſtice, on the Pirates whom the Spaniards complained of: in a late Caſe of one Thomas Leinæ a Scotchman, they have not done Juſtice; and he expecteth the ſame Succeſs in another like Cauſe. That he never yet could get the two Secretaries to meet, according to the Duke of Lerma's Promiſe: which pitiful dealing would have troubled him more, was it not common alſo to the Ambaſſadors of other Powers. Adviſeth that Conſuls & Officers be ſent to keep Order in the Affairs of our Merchants in Spain & Portugal, whom he would have to be of hability & diſcretion. That Blount being offered a Penſion of 35 Crowns a Month from Naples, refuſeth it as a Reward too ſmale for the greatnes of his Meritt. That the ſame Offer will be made to Owen. That as to the Apprehenſion of Balle, he hath ſatisfied them, by an Example taken from themſelves, being this. The Wife of Antonio de Perez, not charged with Treaſon, but with Effects of true Love to her Huſband, was a meane of his Eſcape out of Priſon. The King deceaſed apprehended her in the houſe of the Venetian Ambaſſador there, and ſo cauſed her to be committed. That his Couſin Mr. Henry Cornwallies abovementioned, is deceaſed in his Houſe.

219. To the Lords of the Counſell, 12 November 1606. 651.

Concerning the Alteration in the Spaniards with reſpect to England, and the Reaſons of it. That the motion for Aliance with France is revived & purſued with all Violence by the King himſelf; and with no leſſe Ardour ſollicited by the Pope & the Duke of Florence: that, nevertheleſs, there remained a party in the Council, who were rather for the Alliance with England. That one of them had deſired him to recollect his thoughts thereon, which he did by way of Proof of this his Theme. That in the Allyance with France, the danger will be greater, and the utilities & honour leſs, then in that of England; wherein he already findeth that his Arguments have not been without their effect. That the Duke of Lerma & the Conde de Villa-Longa are yet for the propoſal for England, and in a fewe dayes will confer with him thereupon: although himſelf holding it eaſier to deſtroy then to build, conceiveth he ſhall be more able to break their intended Alliance with France, then to effect that with England.

220. To my Lord of Saliſburie, 16 November 1606. 661.

That the Jeſuits have tranſlated into Spaniſh, & printed our Laws againſt the Popiſh Recuſants. That by their procurement a Breue is ſent from the Pope, forbidding the Engliſh Catholics to take the Oath. That he hath written again to the Duke of Lerma in behalf of our poore complaining Countreymen. That the Duke played the dilatory game with this alſo, alledging it muſt be conſidered in Council, before it could be anſwered; that being overpreſſed with the weight of the Kings affairs, he could not be ſpoken unto, &c. when as all the while he doth nothing but take his pleaſures in his Houſe & Gardens. That by the Spaniards Actions it appeareth, that ſuch is their over-weening, as they thinke they may playe with the Noſes of all other People of the World. He therefore conjectures by their Government & proceedings, that the tyme drawes neere when it will be ſaid of them, as in the Pſalmiſt, "Perijt memoria eorum cum Sonitu." That under colour of this late Debate betweene the Pope & the Venetians, they aime at a further Eſtate in Italy. That one Fludd a Jeſuit in Liſbon, lately wrote unto another, that he had made ſure three Men very apt & truſty for the purpoſe projected: & wanted two more of like quality & truſt, which ſhortly he hoped to procure. What the buſineſs is he cannot certainly tell, but addeth that thoſe late Executions of their Colleagues in England hath ſett the hearts of the Jeſuitical Faction on fire, and apted them for the undertakinge of any Miſchiefe whatſoever. That Blount & Owynne are not ſo careſſed as formerly. That in Liſbon there is one Linway a Pylot; a man of a moſt traiterous Diſpoſition that uſeth daiely to rayle upon our King, for exerciſe: and wiſheth that Fludd & He were fetched away into England, they both doing very much Miſchief there. That Mr. Treſham who was ſo long Priſoner in the Fleete is come to Madrid, in a very neceſſitous Condition. That our Laws againſt Popiſh Recuſants are printed & publiſhed there, of which he hath complained, & hopeth to obtain ſome Redreſs in the end.

Num. 1875.

221. To my Lord of Saliſburie, 20 November 1606. 668. b.

That upon his Declaration, that if he could not ſucceed now in our Countreymens Cauſes he would trouble them no more, but geuing them ouer as deſperate, leaue them to be remedyed by the King his Maſter, they have ſent them all to the Conſulta. That Blount hath gotten his Penſion in Naples tranſlated to the Lowe-Countreys.

222. A Copie of a Letter written by my Lord Ambaſſador to the Duke of Lerma in Nov. 1606. 669. b.

Complaining of the Breach of the Treaty by their harbouring & relieving our Traytors and Fugitives, and the moſt intollerable Delay of Juſtice, ſo long that our poor Countrey-men were expoſed by them to all manner of Myſeryes & Neceſſityes, euen to Famyne it ſelf; if he had not, to his greate Charge, all the laſt Winter, and the moſt part of the enſuing Somer, ſuſtained them; and reproacheth him, in handſome terms, of his Breach of Promiſe.

223. Articles ſent unto the Duke of Lerma, in Juſtification of the Letter above-mentioned. 671. b.

Setting forth the Injuries done by the Spaniards to our Countreymen, ſince the Peace.

224. The Brief of a Letter written to my Lord of Saliſbury, dated 21 December 1606. 673. b.

That Mr. Button who carried his laſt Diſpatch, was accompanied by one Gammage a Jeſuit, who goes by the name of Reade, and yet ſaid nothing of it to him. That there are great Preparations made for Sea-Service the next Yeere. That now Mr. Francis Cottington is poſſeſſed with a Calenture.

225. To the Lords of the Spaniſh Counſell of State. 674. b.

Entreatinge the Suppreſſinge of certaine Engliſh Lawes againſt Recuſants, printed & publiſhed in Spaine. Shewing alſo, that the Pictures & Books found in the Shops of London repreſenting the Cruelties of the Inquiſition, were ſuppreſſed upon the firſt application to our Kings Council. And that in this pretended Tranſlation, Termes & Wordes diſhonorable & falſe, are malicioufly inſerted, in derogation of his Majeſties Lawes & Government.

226. The Coppie of a Second Letter written by my Lord Ambaſſador to the ſaid Counſell of State, being aunſwered to his former Letter, that he ſhould proue the Falſhoods which he alleadged to bee in the Tranſlations of our Engliſh Lawes againſt Recuſants. 676.

Num. 1875.

He ſheweth the Strangeneſs & Unreaſonableneſs of this Demand; but yet ſendeth them the Falſhoods & malicious Impudencies he meant; together with ſome briefe Reaſons of the Occaſion of thoſe Lawes, which in the Originall are at large expreſſed, but cunningly ſuppreſſed by the Tranſlators, for the better coveringe the Treaſons & unnatural Practiſes of certaine Traitours & evil-affected Subjects whom they favour.

227. Concerning the Queſtion, whether his Majeſtie of Spaine ſhall proceede with the Allyance with England moued from themſelves; or with that of France ſollicited by others.

The Conſiderations are 32 in Number, and are drawn up by ſome in the Intereſt of France.

228. To the Earle of of Northampton, 19 December 1606. About his private matters. 682. b.

229. To the Earles of Dorſett, Nottingham, Suffolke, Northampton, & Saliſburie at the ſame time. 683. b.

About the abovementioned 32 Heads or Conſiderations; which, ſome ſay were drawn up by Creſwell the Jeſuit (who hath withdrawn his Love from his Countrey, upon ſeeing his Name in our late Statutes) or by the Biſhop of Mounte-pulſiano the Florentine Ambaſſador, but rather by the latter. That Sir Anthony Shirley, having gotten ſome Inkling of the Matter, perhaps by the Conde de Villa-longa (whoſe Cuſtome it is to diſtill all Hearbes & Weedes that promiſe any Juyce) pretends now to be a Dealer in it, which himſelf takes to be abſolute Mountebankery. That he had ſent one of the Newe Mapps of England, Scotland, & Ireland, unto the ſaid Conde de Villa-Longa, with a Meſſage that he ſhould peruſe it well & often, as that Continent from whence Spaine muſte drawe the continuance & engreatinge of their Monarchy. That he very kindly receaued it, with particular reſpects to the King & Prince whoſe Pictures were engraven therein. That the Spaniards uſe the French Ambaſſador with more reſpect then before, but ſay that there will be no concluſion of the Marriage of their Princeſſe, till the King ſhall have more Sonnes. That there is a Diſcourſe upon the Heade abovementioned, ſaid to be exceedinglie well penned.

230. To the Earle of Saliſburie. 687.

That what the malicious Tongues of our Jeſuits deliuer of the King, of the Queene, nay of the ſweet Prince (the Hope of our Countrey, who neuer offended them) he forbeareth to write, not onely Honoris gratia, ſed etiam Verecundiæ; ſince ſuch they are, as are neither fit to revenge, or ſo much as ſtirre, or mention. He hopes that, at laſt, his Majeſtie will, in Conſideration of his Honor & Office, procure Satisfaction for the greate & intollerable Injuryes there done to his people.

231. To the Lords of his Majeſties moſt honorable Privie Counſell. 687. b.

That the Spaniſh Counſellors delay (according to their old cuſtome) the giving anſwer to his Complaint againſt the falſe Tranſlation of our Laws againſt Recuſants lately publiſhed there, as having noe will to ſatisfie us in any thing further then Neceſſitie will enforce them. That there are lately preſented to that State, by our Fugitives, certaine Advices or Declinatures of the State & Government of our King, ſoe malicious, ſoe wicked, & ſo ſlanderous, as muſt proceed from the Devil himſelf. That the Jeſuits are much offended with him for noting the faults in their Tranſlation, which Creſwell uſeth his utmoſt endeavours to palliate & ſmooth over. That Creſwell hath drawn up a Letter to him, commending his former Carriage in that Courte; wiſhing the continuance of his Temperance; and inſinuating Scandall & Perill that followeth Violence; but hath not adventured to ſend it. That Wadſworth his revolted Chapleine, now a feather of that Wing, owned that they are much accumbred with what he had made appeare in their Tranſlations. That they now ſpread a Rumour that his Majeſtie hath reſolved to take away all the Biſhopricks of his Kingdome, and overthrowe all the Cathedrall Churches. That the Spaniſh Court is much perplexed with the litle will the Emperor ſheweth that there ſhould be a Diett for the Choice of a King of the Romans. And they are in greate doubte that he will not geue his Voyce to thoſe of his owne Houſe; which moues them to entertayne new purpoſes of drawcing that Dignity to the Howſe of Bauier, and to beſtowe a Daughter of Spaine in it.

232. To my Lord of Saliſburie. 691.

That he can, as yet, gain no acceſs to the Duke of Lerma. That Creſwell hath written a Book & dedicated it to the King there; wherein he endeavoureth to cleere himſelf & his Colleagues of the Treaſons layd to their charge; and to proue, that this late Powder-Treaſon (howſoever undertaken by the intemperate heades & handes of certaine ignorant young people) yet was plotted & deviſed by ſome Counſellors in England, for the ouerthrowe of the Catholique Religion. That Creſwell taketh inceſſant pains in the matter of their publiſhing a falſe Tranſlation of our Lawes; & that he & his Collegues loſe ground there. That the wants of Money, & Miniſtration of Right & Juſtice, are as greate as euer; and the Treaſurie-doore is ſhutt up, as where there is no Money. That the Cryes & Diſcontents of the People, Soldiers, and Ordinarie Servants of the King are extreme. And, were they not brideled by Extremity of Lawes & feare of the Inquiſition, things would not reſt long in the State they are in. That the Peru-Fleet is come in, having brought above the Value of Five Millions, in the moſt ſeaſonable time. That the French Ambaſſador hath gotten a better Order for Relief of his Maſters Subjects than that obtained by him. That his Secretary Mr. Collington, and others being ſick, his Kinſman &c. dead; he inſinuateth a Deſire to be recalled. That he hath had noe late acceſſe to the King or Duke, who give him hopes that all his Cauſes ſhall be accommodated at laſt. That the Spaniards hopes are greate, with dayes gotten to diſuſe us in that wherein wee are ableſt to offend them; and reduce our Neighbours to extremitie, who are the Wall betweene them & their deſires to ruyne us. That he hath drawne the Edge of the Jeſuits Penn upon him by publiſhing their late falſehoods, which they are attempting to defend. But if he may avoyd what he maie receaue in the Platter, he ſhall not much fear their Penns. That from a great Feaſt made by the Preſident of the Treaſury, one Ramirez de Prada one of the greateſt men in the Kingdom for matter of money, & in Authority in thoſe buſineſſes, & walked even with the Conde de Villa-Longa, was taken into a Coach, & ſent to a Priſon twoe Leagues from the Court. His Houſe & all that he had, was inſtantly ſeized upon, and his Wife, Children, and Servants removed. This is thought to proceed from his gathering too much to himſelf, & reſpecting too little the Kings benefit. He was a Lawyer by Profeſſion, borne to little, and within a fewe yeeres poſſeſſed of little; yet had then 24000 Crownes by yeere in Land, beſides infinite Wealth in Plate and Money. How ſoe much ſhould be gotten with the Kings Salary, & Ordinary Fees, is the Riddle he muſt reſolve.

233. From the Earle of Saliſburie, dated the 28 November 1606. 695.

That His Majeſtie and his Counſellors were heartily ſorry for the Calamities which had come upon his Houſe in Spain, by the Death & Sickneſs of ſo many of his beſt & moſt neceſſary Servants. That notwithſtanding the Spaniſh Ambaſſadors promiſe made in Auguſt, at the Conference, that he would produce his owne Complaints againſt us in 5 or 6 dayes, and ſhew the Reaſon that moued him to find fault with our Juſtice here; He hath temporized all this while without propounding any thing;

excuſeing

excuſeing himſelf upon one Diſpatch or other to come about it. That a Watch had been ſett upon the Spaniſh Ambaſſadors howſe to interrupt ſuch Engliſh as ſhould reſort thither to Maſſe, unknowne to his Majeſties Counſell, & by Warrant onely of the Eccleſiaſticall Commiſſion. In th'execution of which Warrant, becauſe ſome Diſorder was committed by the partyes put in Truſt, three of the principall ones were committed to Priſon; where they laye vntil the Ambaſſadour beinge throughly ſatisfied, made often interceſſion for their Diſcharge.

234. To Sir Thomas Edmondes, His Majeſties Ambaſſador in Flanders. 698. b.

That upon a Memorial, he hath received an Anſwer to his Complaints, which in Papers appeares a verie Mountaine; but in performance he doubts will proue leſſe than a Molehill. That Owyn & Blount are defended as inculpable; and to our Kings Charge is layed Levinus and all others of the Low-Countrey Nation inhabiting within his Dominions, who are dubbed with the Marke of Rebells & evil-affected Subjects, the faults of Owynne & Blount being parelleled with thoſe poore Soules of the Low Countreyes that fledd VENTURAM IRAM. Of the late precipitous fall of twoe greate Miniſters of that State, the Conde de Villa-Longa and Ramaris de Prada: whoſe Plate, Jewells, & Money, buried under Churches, hidden in Friers Cells, conveyed into Ambaſſadors Howſes, caſt into Privies, laden into Carts under other Semblances, are drawen out by the Officers. That the Spoile of them & ſome others that were partakers of their Fraudes & Briberyes, will be worth to the King, at leaſt, Three Millions; and yet he hath an ill bargain; for, with the gaine of Three Millions or four, to themſelves, they loſt to the King at leaſt Fifteen.

235. To Sir George Carew his Majeſties Ambaſſadour in France, 19 Jan. 1606. S. N. 700.

That Ramaris de Prada a Principal Miniſter of that State, who with the Earle of Villa-Longa abſolutely governed the Kings Treaſure, being worth almoſt a Million and a half, was apprehended & ſtript of all about the beginning of Chriſtmaſs. After Chriſtmaſs ended, his Colleague the Conde de Villa-Longa ran the ſame fortune, being taken in his Houſe about 11 a Clock at Night, carried inſtantly to Priſon divers Leagues from Madrid; his Cheſts and Caſkets of Plate, Money, & Jewells laden in Carts out of the Windowes; his Wife & Children about one of the Clock that Night removed out of the howſe; and all ſeized on to the Kings Uſe.

236. To the Earles of Dorſett, Notingham, Suffolke, & Saliſburie. 700. b.

That he believed the Spaniſh Alliance with France was now become impracticable, after all the pains that the French Ambaſſador had ſpent about it; who, among other Things, had ſhewn them the Picture of the Dolphin armed, and with his Pike in his hand, at his Age of foure yeeres & certaine monthes; and now exclaimes againſt the Government there, much out of the boundes of all Patience.

237. To the Lords of the Counſell, the 14th of Januarie 1606-7. 701. b.

That his diſplaying the malicious falſhoods of the Jeſuits Tranſlation of our Laws againſt Recuſants, had had this effect, That whereas before, every Religious Houſe in Madrid had them, and their Preachers vſually helped out their Sermons with Declamations againſt the Cruelties of England; ſome of them affirming that much eaſier it was for the Chriſtians in the daies of Diocleſian: now, there is hardly one of thoſe Tranſlations to be found. The Jeſuites themſelves are ſoe aſhamed of the Worke. as euery of them denyeth to haue had any hand in it. That moſt of the Ambaſſadors there have Coppies of his Letters and Annotations, and haue ſent them into their Countreys. That Creſwell cannot get the Penſion for ſuſtentation of the Seminaries of Rome, Doway, & Sevill in the manner & value he deſired. That Doctour Cecill

& one Singleton a Prieſt have been at Rome to ſollicit the ſending of one to England veſted with Epiſcopal Dignity, but were baffled there by the Jeſuites; who were alſo too hard for the Arch-Prieſt then reſiding in England. He can, as yet, get no Copie of the Briefe prohibitinge the taking of the Oath by Papiſts, and yet the Jeſuits are in a great Choller that he knew any thing of it. That Sir Anthony Sherley promiſing to doe Miracles againſt the Hollanders, ſueth to be made Generall of the Kings Armado; and offereth for Suertie, to be aſſiſted with a Counſell, and attended with a Guard that ſhall continuallie obſerue his Actions. That the Conde de VillaLonga being ſeized, was carried inſtantly away to a Dungeon called La Motta de Medina. That at a late Tournay held at the Court he was preferred before the Ambaſſador of France. Finally, that he is inſinuating himſelf into the eſteem of the Kings New Confeſſor, who profeſſeth his Love to Juſtice & to our King; who ſeemes to be a Man of Courage, & of an able Underſtandinge.

238. To the Earle of Saliſburie. 705.

That Creſwell meeting his Man at Secretary Prada's, ſpake honorably of his Lordſhip, & dutifully of his Majeſty; and that the Heads or Reaſons (abovementioned at § 229.) for the Allyance with France were not drawne up by him. That it is reported, as if 160 Prieſts as yet abide in England. He ſendeth his Lordſhip a deſcription of that retayner to the Jeſuits, who went with Mr. Button for England. That the King intendeth to ſend a Fleet to the Levant-Seas, to diſturb the Trade of the Hollanders in thoſe parts. It having been reported that the Dutch earneſtly ſue either for Peace or Truce; 'tis ſaid that the French King hath ſent them Blanks firmed with his Hand, admittinge them to inſert any condition that ſhall ſeeme reaſonable vnto themſelves, rather than to come to any concluſion with the Spaniard. That Money now growes very plentifull in the Kings Treaſurye: they tell it not with their Fingers as in England, but weigh it in Scales large enough to contayne twoe greate Oxen. That if their Fountaine be not ſtopped, & if by Peace or Truce their waſte be reſtrayned, he diſcerneth not how they may be ſtayed from overflowinge, in tyme, all the parts of the Earth that their Pride & Ambition ſhall turne their Streame vnto; eſpecially now that the falſe Fingers of the Miniſters are broken, which by deceipt paſſed by (in prejudice to the King) at leaſt 20 Millions, to the Uſuringe Genoeſe & Portugalls; and a better Courſe be held for the future. That it is ſaid that the Earle of Villa-Longa had in Lands neere 100,000l. by yeere, and in other Wealth to the Value of a Million & a Half. He relateth the Diſcourſe he had with Creſwell the Jeſuit before the Ambaſſador of Florence, upon the ſubject of the Villanies of him & His Fraternity, and how at length he putt him to Confuſion. That the Spaniards ſtill continue to give good words, but yet he can promiſe to himſelf nothing of the event. That Sr. Edward Baynham hath viſited him, pretending to come there only to ſee the Countrey, & to learne a little Spaniſh; but Mr. Cottington hath found that he hath been there neere three Monthes, and paſſed as a French Man, and had found him alſo with Creſwell at Secretary Pradas. That this Secretary Prada is likely to become great, haueing Villalonga's Office: he ſheweth much Honeſtie, Playnenes & Charitie; but is a ghoſtly Child of Creſwell, and much affected to that Societie. That his Chapleine & twoe more of his Engliſh & moſt neceſſarie Servants being ſcared with the Sicknes, are importunate to be gone: whom to keepe againſt both their Willes & their Stomackes, agreeth not with his Diſpoſition, neither is without danger.

239. To the Earle of Northampton. 711. b.

That it was his Fortune to meete with the Falſhoods of our Jeſuits & Fugitives ſoe aptly in their late pretended Tranſlations of our Lawes againſt Roman Recuſants, as ſome

Num. 1875.

ſome of themſelues have acknowledged the Loſſe of the principal Feathers they were here wont to fly with, and are now ſtudyeing how to amend their Wings. Relateth the falls of Ramaris de Prada, & the Conde de Villa-Longa; of which laſt, he had drawne to favour hartelie the State of England, as far as he durſt, he being adverſe to that of France. Obſerves that Birds of his Qualitie are not put in Cage with purpoſe to be lett out againe; the Intention of the Court beinge to profitt by his Sufferinge, not to take Pleaſure in his Singing. And that it is thought he will not be the laſt that ſhall followe in this Tragedie.

240. The Briefe of a Letter to my Lord of Saliſburie. 714.

That the Spaniards have laid an Embargo on all Shipping along their Coaſts, being about to equipp out a Fleet with all ſpeed. That as to our Complaints, it is their Arte not to deny Juſtice, but (which is worſe) to protract, & not performe it. Nevertheleſs we haue this Advantage of other Nations, inaſmuch as either for Loue or Feare, they make ſhewe of Deſire to ſatisfie us, or at leaſt to ſtill us: to others, they geue Appearance of Diſregard, neither performeinge what they deſire, or geueinge eare, or aunſwere to their Complaints. That the French Ambaſſador ſaith he will write to the King his Maſter to render them la pareille for the Spoiles they daily make of their Subjects.

241. To my Lord of Saliſburie. 715.

Relating the Effect of a long Conference he had with the Duke of Lerma upon the Subject of the Good Will borne by his King to ours; That ſome of our Kings Miniſters out of Puritaniſme, and Hatred to the Religion profeſſed there, diſſwaded Contynuance of Freindſhip with Spaine, upon two ſeverall Reaſons. 1. That the holdinge of Ametie with Spaine would be a meane to introduce the Catholique Religion & ſubvert theirs. 2. That the King of Spain taking Reſt & gathering Treaſure & Strength, would as ſoon as he had finiſhed his warres with the Hollanders, make his next attempt againſt us. How our King had reſtrayned his Subjects from the Service of the Arch-duke, and ſoe much enlarged them to the Hollanders, that their Armyes by Land & Navyes by Sea, were full of the Bodyes & Veſſells of the Engliſh. With that of the Alliance of England, eſpecially on the topic of Religion, the Treaty with the Hollanders, and the Cauſes of ſome of our Countrey-men which the Duke referred to the Conde de Lemos Preſident of the Counſell of the Indies. That talking with the Conſtable about the abovementioned Jeſuiticall Tranſlations, he made theſe pitiful Excuſes for them vizt. that the King had noe Privitie either with the Doer, or what was done. That to matters of any moment, the Office of Inquiſition tooke an eſpeciall regard; but ſuch Papers & Pamphlets as that Tranſlation, haue alwayes ben ſuffered to paſſe without Survey. That His Majeſtie wiſhed there were a true Tranſlation of them, and that himſelfe had them in Latine, either nothing or very little different from the Spaniſh. Beſides, to them that vnderſtand not the Engliſh, it would appeare that there were not ſo many faults in the Tranſlation as I alledged: which Excuſes raiſed Sir Charles's choler. That the Conſtable and others, even in Council, ſpeak well with regard to England, but yet, ſecretly geue beſt Countenance & Eare to thoſe that are worſe affected to our King & his Gouernement, and haue lately diſpatched Blount with Captaine Burke & twoe Iriſh Fryers into the Low Countreye with an Entertaynement of 50 Crownes a Month.

242. To my Lord of Saliſburie, Februarie 1606-7. 725. b.

Concerning an Engliſh Ship (wherein his Lordſhip was ſaid to be concerned) bound for Virginia, taken by the Spaniards, & brought to Sevill, which he was not without hopes of retrieving, as having procured the French Ambaſſador to write earneſtly to the Marſhall of France

Num. 1875.

& Lieutenant of the Duchie of Guyen to favor the Crew in their Suits againſt certain Spaniards whoſe Shippe is ſtayed at Bourdeaux. That as to the Spaniſh Miniſters, ſo farre as he can conceue out of their Actions, their Papers and their wordes are to none other end than to wynne tyme. For not in any one of the things pretended to be commaunded by the King, can he procure Performance, or much Probability of any meaneing to doe it. That Blount is gonne, with an Entertaynment, for the Low-Countreyes, the Dukes Promiſe not thought on; they neuer thinking it leſſe than meritorious to deceiue Heretiques. To our Fugitives money is geuen daielie, but to his Majeſties faithful Subjects noe Penny payd of what is due unto them. That Secretary Prada being now in Villa-longa's place, is too much devoted to the Jeſuites; and all thinges are much worſe than they were before, ſo that the wiſeſt of their owne people prophecie a preſent ruyne to their Monarchie. If therefore the States faint now when they haue moſt cauſe to hope, it ſhal be to their greate Aduenture. Sir Charles deſireth to be recalled, his Eies beginning to faile him, & his Body conſuming, and addeth theſe words, If I liue long, it ſhal be more than I expect or deſire; but if here I dye (beſides the diſcourageinge of him whoe ſhall ſucceede) I ſhall in my owne particuler ſuffer more than I cann expreſſe, to end my dayes without a farewell to my Wife & Children.

243. To my Lord of Saliſburie, 6 Februarie 1606-7. 728.

That he is in Doubt that the Hollanders mean to wrapp up an Agreement with the Spaniards, whoe doe much affect it, and will yield to large Conditions; but hopeth that if it ſhould happen ſo, our King will worke out of it his owne Honour, Profitt, and Safetie. Relateth the Diſcourſe he had with Secretary Prada about this matter. That the Confuſion in the Spaniſh Affairs is greater now than euer; becauſe the Duke cannot endure to remitt any parte of the Authoritie he had engroſſed, nor will tell whom he will take in to help Him; ſoe greate is his Jealouſy. That the King hath commaunded our Lawes againſt Recuſants to be truely tranſlated out of the Engliſhe, by Sir Andrewe Wiſe, that calles himſelf Prieur of England. That whoſoeuer goes from England to America muſt prouide to goe ſtronger; for if they be taken, they are to expect noe Remiſſion. That his Secretary Cottington continueth ſick.

244. To my Lord of Saliſburie. 729. b.

That the Conde de Villa-longa ſuffers his Miſeryes with greate Patience: that a Judge being ſent to examine him, he was content to anſwer to matters inferiour, as to Bribes & Corruptions, but not to thoſe that concerne matters of State; except it were in the preſence of the King, the Duke of Lerma, or ſome of the principalleſt of his Majeſties Counſell. That the Spaniards ſtill continue their old cuſtome of delaying or denying Juſtice to our Countrymen, as he maketh appear by divers freſh Inſtances. So that if our King ſhall not be pleaſed that His Subjects uſe ſome meanes to right themſelues, he can expect neither Juſtice nor Fauor, whatſoeuer outwarde ſhewes the Spaniards may ſett upon the matter.

245. To Sir Thomas Edmondes His Majeſties Ambaſſador in Flanders, 8 Februarie 1606-7. 732.

246. To my Lord of Saliſburie, 8 Februarie 1606. Stylo Anglie. 733.

That ſince the fall of the twoe moſt negotiating Miniſters of that State Villa-longa & Prada, there hath none other riſen in their place; by meanes whereof, thinges are more confuſed & diſordered than euer. That as to the Paper Diſpatches which he ſent into England (containing the meanes of Satisfaction which the Spaniard had ſolemnly promiſed our ſuffering Merchants) they remayne as yet in their owne Nature, neither altered in Subſtance nor Accidents, nor one Sillable of them performed; but on the contrarie parte, all that hath ſithence appeared before them, either ouerthrowne or soe delayed, as there is litle Hope. That Ten Shippes of Warre are makeing ready, as is geven out, for the States; but, as it is thought, to fetch in the English that are gone into the Indies. That great Boasts are made what infinit Treasure the King is offered out of Churches & Religious Houses towardes his Warres in the Low-Countreyes, & ayding of the Pope.

247. From my Lord of Salisburie, 9th Januarie 1606-7 735.

Comforting Sir Charles in his household Afflictions, and want of Succes in the Causes he sollicited in the Spanish Court. That the Spanish Ambassador had desired a Conference with our Ministers, pretending to give answer to our Complaints, and came off in most wretched manner.

248. From Mr. Levinus Monke Secretarie to the Earle of Salisburie, 10 Januarie 1606-7. 738. b.

That Sir Charles is little beholding to some Younglings that are come from Spain, especiallie to one Vaughan; but least of all to one Daniel Powell, whoe hath exhibited some Articles against him, of his disloyaltie in Religion & Dutie, but himself hath stopped them all as well as He can; and if it had not been for him the Lords had geuen Eare to him. That as to the matter of Consulls, it is referred to the Merchants to appoint whome they will; because neither His Majestie nor the Lords would be aunswerable for the Errors which they might committ. That as to the Great Matter, seeing the Spaniards encline not to us, it is little cared to whome they bend. The Style of this Letter is somewhat extraordinary, Mr. Monke seeming to have a very good Opinion of himself, and to be superior to Sir Charles.

249. Sir Charles to the Confessor of the King of Spaine, 27 Februarie 1606-7. 741. b.

That having for almost two Years continually sollicited the Causes of our suffering Merchants, he hath not obtayned any entire or due Satisfaction in any one of them, and therefore now for his last Shift (for he meaneth not longer to employ his Labours therein) he addresseth himself to his Reverend Fatherhood, as the Adviser of the Kings Soule & Conscience. Desiringe that he would be pleased to acquaint the Duke therewith; and afterward, to be a meane that His Majestie may presently appoint some of his Counsell to take understanding of the seuerall Causes, & drawe them to some finall end; without such intollerable delayes & protractions as have been hitherto used.

250. A Letter received from the Duke of Savoy, dated 10 December 1606. 743. b.

It is not inserted; but the purport thereof appears to have been a desireof our Kings Amity & Good Affection.

251. Unto the King our Soueraigne, 7 Martij 1606. Stilo Anglie. 744.

Concerning the Duke of Savoys Letter, which He sent enclosed in this; and desiring to be recalled.

252. To my Lord of Salisburie, at the same time. 745. b.

That in order to delay the giving liberty to the English taken in the Indies by Firardo, Secretary Prada had quibbled with the Memorial he had offered in the poor mens behalf, saying that it seemed not either to come from our King, or to be authorized with his Name, with the other Discourse on this matter. That the Spaniards boast of a great Victorie they have gotten of the Hollanders & English that haue begun to fortifie themselues in an Island in the East Indies called Terra nata; of whom they have not left one man aliue, and have also slayne 4000 of the Natives that tooke their parts. The present Bootye they found there (besides 700 greate peeces of Ordnance) they report to be at least 8,000,000l. and that the Islande will yeeld in yeerely profitt to the King, a Million & an half. That the Order of St. James is lately bestowed on Sir Anthony Sherley, Sir James Lindsey; & upon the Sonnes of O Sullivan Beere & Mac

Williams, Irishmen. They haue also made Sir Anthony of his Majesties Councill of Naples, and Generall of diuers Shippes, which must be of his owne procuringe: and Jeremy Laurence muste drawe them out of England for him. That it is reported that they have bestowed 105 peeces of Ordnance upon the King, which Laurence long since transported out of England. If this be soe, it is not well that soe liberall a Passage is geuen to Merchandize of that nature. They talk of fitting out of a Greate Navye; and 'tis certaine that 400,000 Crownes are deliuered for present Marine Charges. That Secretary Prada hath sent him word from the King that the abovementioned English Prisoners shall for this one time be delivered, but if hereafter any shall be taken offendinge in the like sort (i. e. by presuming to go for America) they shall nor haue leisure to become Suitors, but receiue their Dispatch immediatlie after their Apprehension. He hopes therefore, that such as shall faile into those parts, will prouide to keepe themselues from falling into Spanish hands. That the King hath sent expres Commandment to his seuerall Counsells, for speedy end of all our Countreymens Causes; when he shall see the fruite of them, he will beleeue they are truely intended; for although in England the Old Prouerb is, Hee that is in Possession, hath Eleuen Points of the Lawe for Him: there, he may well be sayd to haue Eleven & three quarters. That poore Mr. Dorington travaileth daielie, and findeth himself noe whitt neerer his Journeys end. That he tooke himself, at his first arrival, for a Man of much understanding in Spanish Causes, but now hath sufficiently found the contrary.

253. To Sir George Carewe, his Majesties Ambassador in France. 750.

Relating the Misfortunes attending his Household, by the Death of many of his Servants, & the Departure of others who feared to die. That thereby, till he could get others from England, he was forced to retain Papists, of whom he hath at length cleared both his Howse & Table. That the Jesuits watch his Family so carefully, as none of them can goe out of his doores without perill of some Alterations. That some they perswade, some they threaten, & others they allure; twoe of his principallest Gentlemen having ben offred the Penn werewith to sett downe their owne Conditions. That the bearer of this Letter his kinsman, sonne to Sir Thomas Cornwallies his Majesties Groome Porter, was placed by him with the Constable of Castile, who gaue his Word that he should not be tampered with in his Religion, but notwithstanding that, the Jesuites (unless he had timely prevented them) had perverted him, & made him a Pensioner to that State. He therefore desireth Sir George to receive him into his House, or some other place near him, untill the Young Gentlemans Father can give Order about him; desiring farther, that he may be allowed 10l. a quarter (being his Fathers allowance) towards which he sendeth two Bills in Hand.

So far touching this valuable Book; it now remaineth that I should say somewhat concerning him by whose Command it seemeth to have been first made, and of whose hand-writing much remaineth therein, still to be seen. I mean Richard de Morins, who was made Prior of Dunstable A. D. 1202. and deceased A. D. 1242. as will appear anon; a man eminent in his time, and yet not remembred by any that have treated of our English Writers, so far as I can hitherto learn.

That he was an Historian or Annalist, is plain, from the beginning of the Annals of Dunstaple, to be found in this Book written with his own hand, at fol. 40. b. (of which above § 9.) and of which this is the first Sentence, "Ab Adam usq; ad Nativitatem Christi, fluxerunt anni secundùm Hebreos tria milia. 900.48; secundum Septuaginta Interpretes 5 milia 100.96; et exinde usque ad Octavum Annum Nostrum 100.200.10." and this Man therefore was made Prior A. D. 1202. in which year in the Dunstaple-Annals now in the Cottonian-Library inscribed Tiberivs A. x. I find these words, "Anno 1202. Ricardus Canonicus Meretoniæ adhuc Diaconus, fit Prior de Dunstaplia; et Sabbato Quatuor Temporum ordinatus; die Sancti Mikaelis primam Missam celebravit."

This is the man, who seemeth to have been him who caused our present Chartulary to be made up; and began the same, partly with his own hand, & partly by the hands of others, as occasion offered. After the Entries of many matters, at fol. 40. b. (according to the present Numeration of the Leaves; for it is 93. b. after the Old Figures) he began his Annals with his own Hand; but then, perchance, considering that they would, in time, come to be the foundation of the Annals of the House, he kept on this Book for the Chartulary, & began his Annals again, in the same words, and with the same (that is his own hand) in another Book, namely that Cottonian MS. above mentioned, which is often cited by our modern Writers by the Title of the Chronicle or Annals of Dunstaple.

Although he proceeded with his own hand in these his Annals not much farther in one book, than in the other; I may believe that he might often dictate the matter, even when he himself is mentioned in the third person; as we see that Moses often writeth of himself in that manner.

As to the Actions of this Prior Richard, without doubt, much may yet be found which is not recorded in this Chartulary, nor in the Cottonian book; but forasmuch as I have not now time to search elsewhere, I shall content myself with citing some places of the Annals (according to the Transcript which I made of them the last Winter) and also hint at some others in the Chartulary, & so conclude:

"Anno 1203. dictus Ricardus Prior, intrante Februario, Romam pro D'no Rege perrexit; et prospere reversus circa festum S. Jacobi, secum adduxit Legatum unum, scilicet Abbatem de Casemere ad componendum inter Reges."

"Anno 1205.—Eodem anno, Ordinavimus super Priorem apud Rokeshac; et dispositimus de Elemosinario et Sacrista, quid recipere & quid facere debeant annuatim."

"Anno 1206.—Eodem anno, Ricardus Prior noster, auctoritate Johannis Diaconi Cardinalis Apostolicæ Sedis Legati, factus est Visitator omnium Virorum Religiosorum per Episcopatum Lincolnienſem; exceptis Templarijs, et Hospitalarijs, et Cistercienſibus, et Præmonstratenſibus."

"Anno 1212.—Eodem anno, mense Octobri, missi sunt Inquisitores per omnes Episcopatus Angliæ ad inquirendum de ablatis, & damnis Anglicanæ Ecclesiæ illatis. Et inter cæteros, missus est Prior noster per Episcopatum Lincolnienſem."

"Eodem anno, mense Septembri, misit Papa tres Prædicatores in Angliam; scilicet Magistrum Willelmum de Lundonia, et Magistrum Leonem Decanum Wellenſem, et Magistrum Philippum de Otheforde. Qui cum Privilegijs multis per se & Coadjutores suos, multos signaverunt ad honorem Crucis, multa colligentes, et Truncos per singulas Ecclesias statuentes. In quo Officio, vicem eorum gessit Prior de Dunstaple in Comitatu Ontedoniæ, et Bedefordiæ, et Hertfordiæ."

"Anno 1213.—Eodem anno, in festo Sancti Lucæ, dedicata est Ecclesia de Dunstaple ab Hugone II. Licolnienſe Episcopo, præsentibus Comitibus & Baronibus, Abbatibus & Prioribus, et Nobilibus multis, et Plebe cujus non erat Numerus. Ubi Pœnitentibus vere Confessis, infra quindecim Dies illuc venientibus, facta est Remissio Triginta Dierum; et exinde in perpetuum ad Anniversarium Diem Dedicationis, vel infra Octo dies sequentes venientibus, facta est ibidem Remissio Viginti Dierum, pereundem Episcopum; a quo, Reliquiæ multorum Sanctorum, per Priorem a multis amicis adquisitæ, repositæ sunt in Majori Altari."

"Anno 1215. Celebratum est Concilium Lateranis, quod inchoavit in Crastino Omnium Sanctorum, et solutum est in Crastino Sancti Andreæ, sub Innocentio Papa Tertio. Cui interfuerunt Patriarcha Constantinopolitanus, Jerosolymitanus, Aculegenſis, Venetianus, et Alexandrinus Fratrem suum Procuratorem destinavit. Interfuerunt etiam quadraginta? Episcopi, et Octingenti Abbates et Priores; et inter cæteros Ricardus Prior Dunstapliæ interfuit; et rediens Parisiis, in Scholis Theologiæ eodem anno integro remansit. Sed alij redeuntes Insidias

"Anno 1219.——Eodem anno, die Sancti Benedicti, Ricardus Prior apud Dunſtaple tenuit Curiam ſuam, de omnibus Placitis Coronæ & Capitulis, coram Juſticiarijs uſitatis. Et tunc aſſidebant ei Stephanus & Mauritius Juſticiarij Domini Regis; et firmata ſunt Juramenta ſub hac forma, "Hoc audis Domne Prior Juſticiarie Sancti Petri de Dunſtaple," &c. Et tunc habuit ibi Placita Coronæ; nominatim, de Theſauro invento, contra Godefridum Maſchun: item, de Novis Diſſeſſinis; et de Fuga Incarceratorum; et de Morte multorum.

"Anno 1220.——Eodem anno Prior dirationavit apud Scaccarium, Miſericordiam Stephani Vinitoris, et Petri Vinitoris, ... ſui; ſicut ſcriptum eſt in Rotulo D'ni Regis Anni quarti."

"Eodem anno, idem Prior fecit Concordiam cum Marjoria de Bukleſhore & Sororibus ſuis; quæ rotulata eſt coram Juſticiarijs in Bancho. Quo anno, idem Prior contra multos Parochianos ſuos Decimas de Fœno obtinuit."

"Eodem anno, Prior de Dunſtaple tractus in Cauſam contra Ricardum de Stepingele, per Breve D'ni Regis de ultima Præſentatione, receſſit quietus a Judicio, et alter in Miſericordia remanſit. Similiter tractus in Cauſam per Alis Martel, per Breve de Dote, de Terra de Bokeleſhore, quietus a Lite remanſit."

"Anno 1221.—— Eodem anno Ricardus Prior movit Controverſiam contra quoſdam Burgenſes de Dunſtaplia; et tandem contra omnes, ſuper Decimis Negotiationis (vid. ſupra § 11.) ubicunque exercitæ; et ſuper Decimis Fœni et Molendinorum; et ſuper quibuſdam Oblationibus; de quibus Compoſitio facta eſt coram Johanne Archidiacono Bedefordiæ, et coram Populo Dunſtapliæ, in Eccleſia recitata eſt, et ab omnibus approbata, et per Judices a Papa delegatos confirmata," &c.

"Eodem anno, Moſſy filius Brun Judæus, vexavit Ricardum Priorem de Dunſtaple, et Eccleſiam ſuam, ſuper Septingentis Libris, per quandam Cartam; quæ ideo probata eſt falſa per D'nm Martinum de Pateſhulla et alios Juſticiarios D'ni Regis, quòd Carta loquebatur de mutuo accepto per Priorem Thomam (Ricardi deceſſorem) et Sigillum appoſitum expreſſit Nomen Ricardi: ipſa etiam Carta fuit lota; et inſuper, falſam Grammaticam continebat. Unde dictus Judæus incarceratus fuit in Turri Londoniæ per Annum & ampliùs, quia alij Judæi dederunt Regi unam Marcam Auri pro Judicio deferendo. Et poſtmodúm, cum' ampliùs prorogare non poſſent, dederunt Regi Centum Libras ne ſuſpenderetur in Ligno, in opprobrium Legis ſuæ. Et ſic ſuper Rotulum (Legem Moiſis) ſuum dictus Judæus abjurans Regnum Regis? et Utlagatus eſt."

"Anno 1223.——Eodem anno, Prior Dunſtapliæ factus eſt Viſitator Ordinis Noſtri in Provincia Eboracenſi, unà cum Abbate de Derleia. Qui pacifice exſecuti ſunt Officium ſuum uſque ad Eccleſiam de Kircham. Ubi occurſus eis Prior de Novo-burgo, contra ipſorum Officium appellavit; quem Ipſi in receſſu ſuo Excommunicaverunt."

"Anno 1224. formatum eſt Cirograffum in Curia Regis, inter Priorem de Dunſtaple, et Willelmum Filium-Baldewini, de Terra Johannis Nerbonenſis."

"Eodem anno, formatum eſt Cirograffum inter Priorem de Dunſtaplo & Ricardum Pirot, ſuper Eccleſiam de Helingedune."

"Anno 1228.——Eodem anno, Prior de Dunſtaple celebravit Curiam ſuam apud Dunſtaple, aſſidentibus ei Domino Stephano de Segrave & Willelmo Londone. In qua Curia, Prior conſtituit Coronatores Helyam de Capella & Willelmum Filium-Willelmi, qui juraverunt quod ita ſe haberent in Burgo, ſicut alij Coronatores extra Burgum ſe habent. Eoſdem etiam fecit Prior Cuſtodes Menſurarum, ſcilicet de Ulnis, & Galonibus, et Buſſello, et Latitudine Pannorum."

"Eodem anno, die Sancti Stephani, inventus fuit Theſaurus in Cimiterio de Huſſeburne, valens circiter quinquaginta Marcas; quem, coacti fuimus præſentare coram Juſticiarijs tunc Itinerantibus; et ſub eorum Sigillis, delatus fuit Londonias, coram Rege. Et quia tam Epiſcopus Lincolniæ, quam Prior Dunſtapliæ, quam etiam Rex Ipſe dictum Tëzaurum vendicabant; proviſum fuit, ad preces Domini Regis, quod Epiſcopus & Prior conceſſerunt dictum Tëſaurum Novo Hoſpitali de Doura, ſalvo jure cujuſlibet.

"Eodem anno, impetratæ ſunt tres Juratæ contra Priorem, de Muro qui eſt circa Cardium; et dixit Jurata contra Priorem.

"Eodem anno, orta fuit Diſſentio inter Priorem de Dunſtaple & Decem Burgenſes ejus, ſuper Subtractione Oblationum. Conſpiraverunt enim quòd in Nuptijs vel purificationibus, vel præſentibus Corporibus Defunctorum, principalem perſonam tantum' duæ perſonæ ſequerentur; et pro hoc, illi Decem fuerunt excommunicati. Sed populus, hoc non obſtante, communicavit eis; et ipſi paſſim intrabant Eccleſiam, et populus cum eis; ita quod tam Conventus quam Preſbiter Parochialis a Miſſis ſollennibus ceſſaverunt in Eccleſia, a kalendis Auguſti, uſque ad feſtum Sancti Dionyſij: interim, in Capella Infirmariæ ſollenniter celebrantes. Qua de cauſa, Epiſcopus Lincolniæ acceſſit ad locum, cum multitudine Clericorum & Capellanorum, et in Pulpito Eccleſiæ ſollenniter excommunicavit dictos Decem, ſi de cætero, Eccleſiam intrantes Divinum Officium turbarent; item, omnes alios qui, de cætero, eis communicarent; et tam illos quam omnes alios, ſi infra proximum Feſtum Sancti Martini non ſatisfacerent Eccleſiæ de ſubtractis; et hoc ſciente et præſente Sacriſta: item, omnes illos qui, de cætero, propter aliquas Lites vel Odium alicujus perſonæ, aliquid ſubtraherent Eccleſiæ de Oblationibus debitis, vel Conſuetudinibus, Venationibus, ante Lites motas uſitatis ibidem. Eodem die, mediantibus de Lincolne, et de Bedeforde Archidiaconis, et Magiſtro Stephano de Ekingtone, compoſitum fuit in hac forma. Quod Excommunicati in forma Eccleſiæ abſolverentur; et poſtea invadiarent Priori viginti libras, quas Prior remitteret eis ad preces Mediatorum, uſque ad quinquaginta Solidos, infra dimidium Anni Priori ſolvendos. Et poſtea ſub Juramento injunctum fuit eis, quod in Sententijs Eccleſiæ de cæteris eſſent obedientes; et quod, de cætero, nihil ſubtraherent Eccleſiæ de Decimis vel Oblationibus, vel aliquibus Venationibus, ante tempus Litis, in dicta Eccleſiæ, uſitatis; et de tunc ſubtractis ſatisfacerent infra proximum feſtum Sancti Martini, Eccleſiæ Sacriſtæ. Similiter, quotquot eis communicaverant, ſub ſimili Juramento et Diſciplina, ad Oſtium Eccleſiæ ſolleniter ſunt abſoluti, et ſimilia ſunt eis injuncti. Et ſic, qui, de cætero, aliquid ſubtraxerint, non ſolum in Sententiam Epiſcopi, ſed in perjuriatum incidunt."

"Eodem anno, de Dunſtaple & de Neuham Priores, per Generale Capitulum ſtatuti Viſitatores, viſitaverunt Monaſteria ſui Ordinis per Epiſcopatum Lincolnienſem & Coventrenſem; et tunc renuntiante Priore de Sancta-Frethesswitha, ſubſtitutus eſt ei alius, nomine Helias. Similiter et Prior de Griſeleya Prioratum ſuum reſignavit."

"Anno 1229.——Eodem anno, menſe Majo, Henrico Rege tranſeunte per Dunſtapliam, et in Prioratu hoſpitato, Ricardus Prior humiliter ei ſupplicavit. quod ſicut totius Regni gubernaculum accepit, et ſpecialiter ipſius Eccleſiæ habuit Patronatum; ſuper diſcordijs ortis inter Priorem & Burgenſes, Pacem Deo acceptabilem faceret, et tam Eccleſiæ quam Burgenſibus utilem provideret. Tunc Rex, de Conſilio H(uberti) de Burgo, mediantibus majoribus de Curia Regis, videlicet, Luca Dublinenſi electo, Radulfo Filio-Nicholai Seneſcallo, Roberto de Lexintona, Johanne de Monemue R(adulfo) Epiſcopo Ciceſtrenſi D'ni Regis Cancellario, et multis alijs, quandam Pacem formavit, quam majores populi de Dunſtaple, Rege præſente, admiſerunt; ſed poſt receſſum Regis, Regis, penitùs contradixerunt; ideóq; Prior per Breve Domini Regis, fecit eos citari, cujus verba sunt hæc, Rex, &c.——Postmodum dictis Burgensibus coram Bancho constitutis, ipsi Justiciarij, habito Consilio cum Domino Rege & Primatibus ejus, ipsam Pacem apud Dunstaple priùs formatam, partibus præsentibus recitarunt quam postmodum Vice-comiti Bedefordiæ mandaverunt ut eam faceret observari; cujus Verba sunt hæc, Henricus, &c.———Quoniam vero Burgensis per has Literas pro Vice-comiti noluerunt in Tallagium consentire, nisi haberent Mandatum Regis super hoc speciale; ideo, D'ns Rex iterum scripsit Ei in hæc verba, Rex, &c. ———Cum igitur Vice-comes hoc Auctoritate vellet talliare Burgenses, responderent quod tantum in Capite Tenentes de Priore, et non alios permitterent talliari: et accedentes ad Regem, impetraverunt ab Eo literas, in hæc Verba, Rex, &c.——Cum verò Prior hijs Literis impeditus, vellet saltem in Capite Tenentes talliare, vocavit in medium Duodecim Burgenses quos fideliores æstimavit. Qui juramento corporaliter præstito, quòd rationabiliter assiderent Tallagium, nec æmulos injuste gravarent nec deferrent amicis; assiderunt tantum Sexaginta-tres Solidos; ita quod ditiores Burgi non erant assisi nisi ad tres Solidos. Huic autem perjurio manifesto succesfit tantus furor populi, quod in odium Ecclesiæ subtraxerunt Decimas et Oblationes; ita quod Funere præsenti, vel Muliere se Purificante, unum tantum Denarium obtulerunt; fabricam etiam Ecclesiæ admodum dissipate, pro derelicto habuerunt; Blasphemias et minas Canonicis et eorum famulis intulerunt, et per impositionem falsorum Criminum eos per totam Angliam diffamarunt. Bannum etiam in Ecclesia publice proposuerunt, quod nullus Burgensium moleret ad Molendina Prioris. Bladum etiam Dominicum ipsius Prioris in vijs antiquitùs usitatis prostraverunt in terram, et equum sub sua custodia incluserunt; qui aliquando per Præpositos, aliquando per vicinos Capellanos, aliquando per ipsum Decanum vix poterat liberari. Corruperunt etiam Ballivos Nobilium Vicinorum, ut nos et res nostras in suis territorijs impedirent; quod, frequenter muneribus illecti, fecerunt. Cum autem hæc omnia D'ni Regis Cancellario, et S(tephano) de Segrave D'ni Regis Capitali Justiciario, in hujus persecutionis fervore per Burgum de Dunstaple transeuntibus, Prior ostenderet; videbantur turbari & pro malo habere, et cœperunt Burgo comminari; veruntamen, illis recedentibus, Malitia non cessavit. Hijs omnibus accessit, quod cum Ballivus Vice-comitis vellet pignora capere pro Tallagio non Soluto; tam masculi quam fœminæ de Burgo insurrexerunt in eum, omnimodam districtionem fieri prohibentes. Et quamvis ad instantiam Prioris, Domnus Lincolnienfis Episcopus per vicinos Burgos et vicinos Decanatus præfatos malefactores diebus solennibus excommunicari jussisset; tamen ab incœpto furore et malitia non cessarunt, set profitebantur, se esse Excommunicatos, et se velle potiùs ad Infernum descendere, quam in causa Tallagij succumbere. Prolocuti fuerunt etiam cum Willelmo de Cantilupo quod in Campo vicino Burgo de Dunstaple, concederet eis quadraginta acras, in quas Tabernacula sua transferentes habitarent a Tallagio & Teloneo quieti. Hac igitur Tempestate, utriusque Fori Judices per frequentiam querelarum Prioris fastiditi, quasi per accidiam victi, dissimulando stupuerunt, et tantam universitatem Populi scandalizare abhorruerunt. Et quia tanta Multitudo fuit in Causa tam Munerum quam Populorum, infinita scelera remanserunt in punita. Cum itaq; tanta iniquitas habundaret; ecce, repente visitavit Dominus spiritum Magistri J(ohannis) Archidiaconi Bedefordiæ: qui inter Partes amicabiliter composuit, et procellas pestilentes subito convertit in Speciem Lenitatis; sicut per Cyrographum factum in Curia Domini Regis, et Cartam Prioris & Conventûs manifeste patet; quæ inferiùs subsequuntur." Unde Walterus cum tribus Fratribus de Ordine Minorum reversus, ad Capitulum Dunstapliæ humiliter petijt absolvi; et juravit quod pareret mandatis Prioris in omnibus, salvo Ordine suo. Et sic absolutus est, jussu Prioris a tribus Canonicis, per corporalem Disciplinam; et postmodum, a toto Conventu voce tenus. Demum injunctum est ei, ut imprimis restituat Quaternas & Pannos quos asportavit; et infra annum deliberat, ut si Ordo Minorum arctior est nostro ibi remaneat; sin autem, ad nostrum Ordinem revertatur, ubi Gratiam valuerit invenire. Johannes vero Londoniæ inventus, a Priore similiter absolutus est." &c.

Anno 1242.——"Eodem anno, quinto Idus Aprilis, mortuus est bonæ memoriæ Ricardus de Morins quondam Prior de Dunstaple."

Thus far I have taken from the Annals; I shall now hint at some few other matters relating to our Prior Richard out of the Chartulary, which I have not yet mentioned in describing it.

He seemeth to have studied the Canon-Law, not only by the nature of the several Employments abovementioned, but by some Notes of his own Hand, still to be seen at fol. 74.

His Hand is like aFrench Hand, and his Name looks like a French Name; but whether he was a Frenchman, or descended of a French Family, I know not.

He seemeth to have been a Man of a griping & exacting temper, which often brought him into troublesome suits of Law with the Townsmen, & others his Tenants & Neighbours.

He was Prior 39 years, and what by grants of Corrodies, Money, Letters of Fraternity, or other ways, he got much Land, which enlarged the Revenue, and also amplified the Monastery itself with divers costly buildings.

56. In his time notwithstanding the Canons of Councils) divers of the Clergy were married Men, & left their Benefices to their Children, as may be seen by one of his Complaints or Accusations about Bradbourne-Church (44.) which beginneth thus, "Conquerimus Deo & Vobis de Roberto, et Willelmo, et Henrici, Persona & Vicarijs de Bradeburna, quod contra Justiciam impediunt Institutionem nostram in Ecclesia de Bradeburna & Capellis suis: et ideo injuste, quia Robertus filius est Godefridi qui proxime ministravit in eadem Ecclesia, et imitator paterne Incontinentie. Henricus similiter filius fuit Johannis Vicarij ejusdem Ecclesiæ, et Patri suo in medietate succesfit, et paterne incontinentie imitator exitit. Willelmus similiter focariam publice tenet, canibus venaticis insistens, Tonsuram & Clericale officium relinquens." This Dispute was terminated in the seventeenth year of Pope Innocent, that is, about A. D. 1214.

I mentioned above (sub anno 1221,) the Trouble that this Prior met with, at the forging hands of Mossy the

Num. 1885, 1886.

Son of Brun the Jew; which he ſeemeth partly to have deſerved, becauſe he brought the Jews to Dunſtable, and had dealings with them there; as may appear by theſe extracts from our Chartulary.

Et hoc quidem fecimus Conſilio & Aſſenſu Domni W. Lincolnienſis Epiſcopi, ut ſic Bona Eccleſie noſtre, cum aliter non poſſemus, de manu Judei liberaremus. ibid.

59. "Willelmus de Huſſeburna——Sciatis me reddidiſſe—Priori & Conventui de Dunſtaplia totam præbendam meam quam idem mihi conceſſerant,——Cartis etiam quas ſuper predictis de predictis Canonicis habui, in manus eorum omnes reſignavi,——Quare volo & concedo quod predicti Canonici tam predictam Prebendam quam predictam Terram——Pro hac autem dimiſſione & quieta clamatione, et preſentis Carte confirmatione, predicti Prior & Conventus adquietaverunt me erga Flamengum & Bendinum, et Aaron, et Jacobum, et Leonem, Judeos; de ſexaginta & decem Marcis. Many other of the Actions of this Prior Richard may be collected from this Chartulary, which I ſhall omit for the preſent, thinking that what is already done may ſuffice.

A paper-Book in fol. (bought of me) firſt deſigned by the Burgo-maſter Chriſtopher von Sternſee of Harlingen in Frieſland, for a Debt-book; as may appear by the Alphabet at the beginning, and by what is written, in the High-German Language. 1.

But this purpoſe being changed, it was employed to a better uſe, the ſame man writing therein a Copie of the Annals or Regiſter of the Province of Frizeland, from the Year . . . . to the Year . . . . What care was taken in compiling theſe Annals, by the States of the Province, may appear by the Preface thereof, which at my intreaty Mr. John Drummond tranſlated from the Low-Dutch into Engliſh, and is (with ſome few Amendments only) this which followeth:

"The Preamble of an Act made by the Common Conſent of Frizeland, about making a Regiſter; and what perſons were appointed to compile the ſame.

Num. 1886, 1887.

1528th year, on the 27th day of February, in the Town of Leeuwarden, it is deliberated at an ordinary Diet & general Convention of the Prelates, Clergy, Nobles, Gentlemen & Commons, Cities & Inhabitants of the Province of Frizeland. Foraſmuch as in the Affairs of Frizeland & places adjacent, many Tranſactions have happened in our times, more remarkable than have hitherto paſſed in the Memory of Man: And whereas in different Diets, many Matters have been treated on, which have not as yet been entered into any Public Regiſter: And whereas out of natural Inclination & prudent forecaſt, it is Satisfactory, Profitable, & Neceſſary, to know & keep in memory Matters & Tranſactions paſſed for an Example. And ſince, next to the misfortune of Sickneſs, and the incertainty of Mans Life, nothing can be more uſeful & ſatisfactory than to preſerve in Remembrance the Words & Deeds of Men. It is found beneficial & neceſſary to cauſe an Annal or Regiſter to be compoſed. Towards the doing of which, the States & Votes beforementioned have deſired & appointed in particular, Kempo van Martena, Doctor Knight & Counſellor here in this Court of Frizeland, as confiding in his Wiſdom & Experience of all matters paſſed ſince the Year 1498, touching the Income of the Taxes of the Saſſes to the Year 1540, raiſed by any Act during the Reſidence of the Lady Mary Queen of Hungary in the Netherlands, the yeare 1545, included; particularly what may relate to the Land & People of Frizeland. Alſo to recollect, diſcover, ſett in Order, & regiſter the chief & moſt remarkable occurrences which have happened without the Land of Frizeland, which may ſerve for Example, Uſe, and Improvement; and to bring the ſame to be examined & authorized by Gerrolt van Herema alſo his Majeſties Councellor, Mr. Seyts Tyarda, Jarich de Hama, Wychis van Canmunga, & Jonge Janche Douwena. And whereas by divers Impediments the Perſons aforeſaid could not perform the ſaid Orders, the General States of Frizeland in a Diet holden at Leeuwairden on the 18th of April in the Year 1539, did again order & appoint Mr. Jarich & Siche van Ethama, Syts Tyaerda, Aebe Syouxina, and Janche Douwema; and upon another Diet held at Leeuwairden the fourth of December, Syſbrandt van Roorda was joyned to the Perſons aforeſaid, to reviſe, correct, & authenticate, or cauſe to be authenticated this preſent Regiſter. And it is to be underſtood, that the Five Perſons abovementioned ſhould take to their Aſſiſtance the Councellours of Frizeland, namely Mr. Albert Aernſma, Doctor Renich van Bourmania, Doctor Hector van Hoxwier, and Pieter van de Hama, by them to be examined & approved jointly with the others. To all and every one of whom, the States & Voices aforeſaid (as truſting in their Diſcretion & Experience) do order, appoint, & give full Power, to examine & to approve of the ſame as they ſhall find meet; that the ſame may be carried on & continued for an Example, & for the Uſe, Advantage, and Information of our poſterity."

This valuable Book beginneth with the Year 1498, & endeth with the Year 1545, both abovementioned.

A paper-Book in fol. (bought of me) and written as appeareth by fol. 167. (according to the new Numeration) by Sir John Coche Vicar of Stockland-Gaunt, A.D. 1545, containing his Collection of Receipts & Medicines Phyſical & Chirurgical, &c. to which divers others have been added by thoſe, who after his time owned the Book, a liſt of whom may be ſeen in fol. 167. b.

I ſhall chooſe to deſcribe it more particularly, in the manner following,

1. The Vertue & Degrees of ſome Herbs. 1.
2. Tractatus præfati Domini Joannis Coche, ut videtur, de Theoria & Practica Medicinæ. 2.
3. Tractatus mirabilis Aquarum; quem compoſuit Magiſter Petrus Hiſpanus, ex naturali induſtria ſui Intellectus, manu ejuſdem Joannis Coche. 46.
4. Receipts

Num. 1887, 1888.

4. Receipts of Waters, added by John Coch, to the laſt Treatiſe. 55.

5. Another Collection of Receipts, of Phyſic, Chirurgery, &c. partly in Engliſh & partly in Latin, by the ſame John Coch. 58.

6. How Mannys Nature is chaunged from one Complexion into another; by the ſame John Coch. 136.

7. Ad cognoſcendum omnia Ulcera ſive Apoſtemata de-foris, cujus generis ſive qualitatis fuerint; in Engliſh, by the ſame. 142. b.

8. De Herbis colligendis; in Engliſh, by the ſame. 143.

9. Tabula Salerni; manu ejuſdem. 144.

10. Of the Virtues of Herbs, by the ſame. 151.

11. The Tretyſe of the 4 Elements with the 7 Planetts, and the 12 Signes, with there Qualiteys, Naturys, & Diſpoſicions, the which is ful neceſſary & expedient to be knowen for many cauſes concernyng the diſpoſicion of mannys Byrthe, & the Miniſtracion of Medicines in tyme of Sicknes; and to know the Tymes, Dayes, & Houres, which be gode or evylle to do any thyng yn &c. by the ſame. 155.

He writeth (fol. 162. b. where he is upon knowing the Wether by chonge of the ☾) that part of this Tract is taken from the work of John de Barba de Monte Peſulano, as John Bolte tranſlated the ſame owt of Latyn into Englyſh. And at the end, is this Rubric by the ſame Hand, 'Et ſic in Xpo valeatis, 1545, et 14 die Menſis Aprilis, ex induſtria Johannis Coch, Vicarij de Stoclond-Gaunte.'

12. Another Collection or Sett of Medicines & Receipts chiefly Chirurgical by the ſame Hand. 168. to 262.

It may be noted, that all along, in theſe Collections, the ſeveral Medicines are ranked under certain Heads; and ſpace left for inſerting more, as they ſhould come to Hand. This work hath been performed by thoſe who, in proceſs of time, came be owners of the Book, and who by the pains they have taken, did ſufficiently manifeſt their Eſteem of it.

I am not inſenſible of many things therein, which may be impertinent enough at this time, wherein we find a new Practiſe eſtabliſhed: but notwithſtanding them, I am pretty ſure, that many uſeful Hints may be herein found, both as to Phyſic and Surgery, which if revived might redound to the public good.

A paper-Book in fol. the Title whereof ſeemeth to be of Sir Simonds D'Ewes's Hand-writing, in theſe words, 'A Journall of the Parliament holden at Weſtminſter in anno 35 Reginæ Elizabethæ, Aº. Dñi 1592.'

In comparing this with Sir Simonds D'Ewes his Journals of Queen Elizabeth's Parliaments in Print, I find it to be often therein cited, as particularly in the places following.

—and a Speech uſed by Her Majeſty Her Self at the Concluſion of the Parliament, which alſo is ſupplied out of a certain Journall of the Houſe of Commons, very elaborately taken by an Anonymous. 456. col. 1.

Nota, That which is ſet down touching the coming up of the Houſe of Commons—is not found in the Original Journal-Book of the Upper-Houſe, but is here inſerted out of the Original Journal-Book of the Houſe of Commons, and partly out of another very exact Journal of that Houſe which was in my Cuſtody, being very diligently obſerved & ſet down by ſome Anonymus, who was a Member of the ſaid Houſe during this Parliament. 458. col. 2.

Nota, That theſe ſeveral interlocutory Speeches of the Speaker & the Lord-Keeper, are not found in the Original Journal-Books of the Upper Houſe, or the Houſe of Commons, but are ſupplied out of a very elaborate Journal of the paſſages of the ſaid Commons Houſe, taken by ſome anonymous Member thereof this Parliament. 460. col. 2.

Num. 1888.

Note——Partly out of another very exact Journal of that Houſe, which was in my Cuſtody, being very diligently obſerved and ſet down by ſome Anonymus who was a Member of the ſaid Houſe during this Parliament, out of which the ſaid Speeches were written almost verbatim. 467. col. 1.

Which Paſſage, as alſo divers other particular Speeches, being not found in the Original Journal-Book of the Houſe of Commons, are ſupplied out of another Journal of the ſame Houſe very exactly & elaborately taken by an Anonymus, being a Member of the ſame at this Parliament. 468. col. 1.

Nota, That none of theſe particulars—are ſett down in the Original-Journal book of the Houſe of Commons, but are abſtracted out of another Journal of the ſame Houſe taken by an anonymous Member of the ſame during the Parliament. 470. col. 1.

——and therefore that which followeth, is ſupplied out of that anonymous Journal mentioned at the beginning—— ibid. col. 2.

Nota, That this is all that is found in the Original Journal-Book of the Houſe of Commons touching theſe Speeches; which, becauſe they contain many excellent Paſſages concerning the Hiſtory of theſe times of Her Majeſty, I have therefore ſupplied at large (Sir Edward Stafford's Speech only excepted, which was wanting there alſo) out of a very elaborate Journal of the ſame Houſe, taken by ſome anonymous Member thereof at this Parliament. 471. col. 2.

Nota, That there is no other Speech touching this Buſineſs particularly & fully ſet down in the original Journal-Book of the Houſe of Commons; and therefore thoſe Speeches which follow, are ſupplied out of that anonymous Journal of the ſame Houſe, &c. 474. col. 2.

After this Speech of Mr. Bacon, there is no particuler mention of any other Speech which was ſpoken at this time touching this Buſineſs in the original Journal-Book of the Houſe of Commons; and therefore theſe Speeches which follow are ſupplyed out of another anonymous Journal of the Paſſages of this Parliament, &c. 477. col. 2.

Now, in the next Place, there enſueth the Relation of her Majeſties ſending for the Speaker, and of the Meſſage which ſhe gave him in Command to deliver to the Houſe; all which he declared at large this day, as it is very elaborately & fully ſet down in the anonymous Journal,—— and therefore it is wholly inſerted out of it; and the rather, becauſe it is almoſt wholly wanting in the original Journal Book itſelf, there being one whole blank Page and a good Part of another Page left unwritten with Intention doubtleſs at firſt to have inſerted it, although it was afterwards very negligently omitted by Mr. Fulk Onſlow Clerk of the ſaid Houſe of Commons. 478. col. 1.

——All which (ſome alterations only excepted for Order and Explanations ſake) are herein inſerted out of the ſaid anonymous Journal, &c. 479. col. 2.

Nota, That theſe Speeches are all tranſcribed out of the ſaid anonymous Journal. 480. col. 2.

Thus far out of the before-mentioned anonymous Journal, touching the aforeſaid Queſtion, how far an outlawed Man might be a Member of the Houſe. 482. col. 2.

——are either very imperfectly ſet down, or wholly omitted in the original Journal-Book it ſelf, and are therefore ſupplied out of the ſaid anonymous Journal. 483. col. 2.

——All which ſaid Speeches being either very ſhortly and imperfectly ſet down in the original Journal-Book of the Houſe of Commons, or wholly omitted, & for which three intire Pages and more, are left blank to have inſerted them (in which are ſet down the Names only of ſome of theſe that ſpake them) therefore, they are ſupplied out of the aforeſaid anonymous Journal very elaborately taken by ſome Member of the ſaid Houſe during this Parliament. 487. col. 2.

Nota,

Num. 1888.

Nota, That there is no more found of this Days Paſſages in the original Journal-Book of the Houſe of Commons, although there be almoſt two Pages left blank by Mr. Fulk Onſlow, at this time Clerk of the ſaid Houſe, with intention doubtleſs, at the firſt, to have inſerted them; and therefore they are very largely & fully ſupplied out of the aforeſaid anonymous Journal, very elaborately taken by ſome Member of the ſame Houſe, during this Parliament. &c. 489. col. 2.

Nota, That there is no more of this days Paſſages found in the original Journal-Book of the Houſe of Commons, although there followed divers Speeches upon the foregoing Motion of Sir Thomas Heneage—concerning the great buſineſs of Supply to be given to Her Majeſty; all which are therefore inſerted out of that foreſaid anonymous Journall taken by ſome Member of the ſaid Houſe during this Parliament, which are there ſet down (with very little alteration to them) in manner & form following. 491. col. 2.

But what thoſe alterations were upon which the old Bill (againſt Recuſants) was rejected & a new Bill framed, are not ſet down in the original Journal-Book itſelf; and therefore, becauſe it is a matter of no ſmall Conſequence, and may alſo be of ſome Uſe, I have inſerted the particulars thereof, out of the aforeſaid anonymous Journal, &c. 497. col. 2.

——which Speeches containing in them matter of good conſequence, are wholly omitted in the original Journal-Book it ſelf, and are therefore ſupplied out of the the aforeſaid anonymous Journal, &c. 500. col. 1.

——which ſaid Speech, containing divers matters of good moment in it, although it be omitted in the original Journal-Book it ſelf, yet I have thought good to ſupply it out of the aforeſaid anonymous Journal, &c. 504. col. 2.

After which, there followed divers long Speeches & Arguments on both ſides, both with the Bill & againſt the Bill; which ſaid Speeches being omitted in the original Journal Book of the Houſe of Commons, are in reſpect of the great weight of this matter touching Aliens now controverted, ſupplied out of the aforeſaid anonymous Journal, &c. 505. col. 1.

Nota, This is all which is found in the original Journal-Book of the Houſe of Commons of this days Paſſages; and therefore there being an excellent Vote or Reſolution of the Houſe touching the Addition & Amendments of Bills after their paſſing of either Houſe, ſet down in the often-before-recited anonymous Journal —I have thought good to have it inſerted, &c. 512. col. 2.

Which ſhort remembrance of this excellent Precedent—is all that is found in the original Journal-Book it ſelf of the Houſe of Commons: and therefore—I have cauſed it to be tranſcribed at large out of the often before recited anonymous Journal, &c. 514. col. 1.

I purpoſely omit divers other citations made by Sir Simonds D'Ewes from the preſent MS. but do obſerve, that 1. It was of exceeding great uſe to him, in compiling his Narration of the Occurrences paſſing in this Parliament, as being his only original for a great part thereof. 2. That, notwithſtanding his owning the ſame to be an exact Journal, he hath not copied the ſame exactly, but abridged & varied from it in ſuch places as he thought wanted amendment; as may be ſeen by comparing the ſame with his Manuſcript Journal in the Library. 3. That Mr. Bowes (who borrowed the ſaid Manuſcript-Journal of Sir Willoughby D'Ewes; and printed it without aſking his Conſent, as Sr. Simonds D'Ewes and his Lady more than once aſſured me) hath uſed the ſame Liberty in his Print, as old Sir Simonds did in compiling his Manuſcript; and what was worſe, hath all along neglected the keeping up to the Alteration of the Hands in his Print, as is uſed in the Manuſcript, whereby Sir Simonds plainly diſtinguiſhed what was ſaid from Authority, from that which was only of his own Hand.

A paper-Book in fol. wherein are contained the following Tracts.

1. A Confeſſion of the Faithe, by Mr. Francis Bacon. 1.

2. An Advertiſement touching the Controveſies of the Churche of Englande. 5.

Herein, the Author layeth open the faults on both ſides; & ſeemeth, to me, to handle the matter with Judgement & Impartiality.

3. Certaine Conſiderations touching the better Pacification & Edification of the Church of England; dedicated to his moſt excellent Majeſtie K. James 1. 18.

Many Phraſes and Expreſſions ſhew this Tract to have been compiled by the author of the former: and he (near the beginning) owning himſelf to be of a Profeſſion, and that different from Theology; ſome other circumſtances alſo concurring; I am inclined to think that Sir Francis Bacon might be the man.

Num. 1893, 1894.

A Book in ſmall fol. neatly enough bound in Crimoſine Velvet with Silver Claſps, & Gilt Edges; written all along in the Spaniſh Tongue. It conſiſteth of two main Parts, the firſt whereof being in a larger & plainer Hand is upon Velum; the other, upon paper. But before all, I find

1. A Picture of Ignatius Loyola, Founder of the Jeſuites. 1.

Then follow,

2. An Eſcocheon wherein are painted Quarterly, the Armes of the Families of Ynchaurandieta, Maquibar, Lecuona, & Elizondo. 2.

3. An Hiſtorical Account of the Riſe & Progreſs of the ſaid Families, and how & when they came to intermarry; given by Don Franciſco de Morales Zarco Hiſtoriographer & King of Armes to His Catholick Majeſty King Charles the Second. dated the 20th of October A. D. 1697. 2. b.

The chief buſineſs of this Account or Certificate, is, to ſett forth the Merits of ſome of the abovementioned Families, as alſo to diſplay the Excellency of their ſeveral Bearings in their Armes. This, Don Franciſco hath done in ſuch a manner, as he thought might beſt diſcover his profound Learning, extenſive Reading, & Heraldical Skill: although, notwithſtanding all this Splutter, ſome ſome in England would deem him an ignorant perſon, and one who would ſay any thing for Money. The Certificate is adorned with the Armes of the ſaid families painted, I ſuppoſe, as well as the Spaniſh Heralds could perform. At the end is Don Franciſco's Hand & Seal of Office; and afterward, come the Certificates & Hands of ſeveral other Officers, atteſting & authenticating the ſame.

Num. 1894—1896.

Thus far, all is written upon Velum: what followeth is upon Paper.

4. A Plea or Proceſs of Deſcent, Nobility & Gentry, & Clearneſs of Bloud, carried on by Sebaſtian de Azcue Aranguren, Neighbour in the Noble & Loyal Valley of Oyarzun in the very Noble & very Loyal Province of Guipúzcoa in Biſcay, as Huſband of Maria-Martin de Ynchaurandietta, Siſter to Captain Don Ignatio de Ynchaurandietta, and in his Name & behalf, he being abſent in the Indies; in Order to his being admitted into the Number of the Gentry, & conſequently, capable of bearing Offices in the Province both Civil & Military. In carrying on this tedious Cauſe (which held above a twelve-month) it was, at laſt, proved, that this Don Ignatio was a Native of the ſaid Valley, & deſcended of the firſt peoplers thereof (although I do not remember that the allegations, as to the antiquity of the family, amount to above 100 years) that he ſprung from the Old Chriſtians, clear of all evil race of Jews, Moors, Lepers, & Penitents from the Holy Office of the Inquiſition, or of any other reprobate Sect: and therefore Sentence was given accordingly in his Favor: which was confirmed by the Junta of the ſaid Province, which, although it be but a part of Biſcay, hath nevertheleſs its own government. This Tranſcript from the Regiſters was ſigned & authenticated by the proper Officers, En Teſtimonio de Verdad, in November & December, A. D. 1697. 27.

In the proceſs, beſides the Interrogatories, & Depoſitions of Witneſſes, are Extracts from the public Records touching this Family; and what is more conſiderable, divers Grants & Charters of Privileges made to the Province by ſome of the Kings & Queens of Spain are here recited.

5. The Original Confirmation of the Province, abovementioned; with the Seal & Hand "Per mandado de la Junta," of Don Phelipe de Aguirre their Scribe: added to the end of the book. 97.

This is before recited, at 92. b.

6. The Grant of an Augmentation to the Arms of the Province of Guipuzcoa, by Joan Queen of Spain. dated the 28 of February, A. D. 1513. 93.

This is ſigned as the laſt; but hath the Seal of the Province affixed.

Advice to His Majeſty touching a New Model of Fortification: with many Draughts.

The Hand & manner of Drawing ſhew the Author to have been the late Colonell Thomas Colepeper, moſt of whoſe Papers, by my means, are come into this Library; although this individual Book, was (with others) given by Colonel Henry Worſeley, at preſent His Majeſties Envoy-Extraordinary in Portugal.

A parchment-Book in fol. bought & given by my noble Lord Harley; wherein are contained more of the Tranſlations & Compoſitions of John de Treviſa Vicar of Berkeley, & Chaplain to Thomas Baron of Berkeley, than I haveſeen in any other book.

They are,

1. Dyalogous inter Militem & Clericum; i. e. between the abovementioned Lord & Himſelf; in Engliſh. 1.

It beginneth thus, "Ich wondre Sire noble Knyzt, þat in fewe dayes tymes beþ chaungide; rizt is y-buried; lawes beþ overtorned; & Statutes beþ y-trode under feet." And the main Drift thereof ſeemeth to be to impugne the Papal power in Temporal matters: for, as may be gathered from John Bale, he was no great friend to the Regular Clergie of thoſe times; and might, poſſibly differ in opinion from them, touching more matters than their Pride, Luxury, & Hypocriſie. Thus a little from the beginning the Knight ſaith, "No man haþ power to ordeyne no Statutes vppon þynges, ouer þe whiche he haþ no Lordſchip: as þe Kyng of Fraunce may ordeyne no Statutes vppon þe Empyre; noþer þe Emperour vppon þe kyngdom of Englond, And alſo Princes of the World may ordeyne no Statutes of zoure Spiritualte; for þei haueþ no power ouer zoure Spiritualte. Alſo, ze mowe ordeyne no Statutes of Temporalte, ouer þe whiche ze haueþ no power noþer auctorite. þerfore, ich louz wel faſte whanne ich herde telle þat Pope Bonefas hadde made a newe Statute, þat he hym-ſilf ſchuld be aboue alle ſeculer Lordes, Princes, Kyngis, & Emperours, & aboue alle Kyngdoms, & make lawe vppon alle þinges; & þat him nediþ nouzt but write; for alle þinges ſchalle be his whanne he hath y-write. For, to make a Statute is nouzt elles but wilne þat þe decre be y-holde, & ordeyne & hoote þat hit be y-holde. Zif he wole haue my Caſtel, my Toun, my Feelde, my Money, & alle ſiche þingis, hym nediþ nouzt but wilne hit, & write & make a Decree, & hote þat hit be y-holde; & whanne þat is y-do, he haþ rizt to alle ſuche þingis. Nowe, goode Clerk, þou knoweſt wel how worþi þis Jape is to be ſcorned." This notable Statute, as the Knight calleth it, I take to be that Conſtitution of Pope Bonifacius VIII. which I find in the Corpus Juris Canonici. Edit. Pith. Extravag. Comm. Lib. 1. Tit. VIII. De Majoritate & Obedientia, an Extract from whence, I venture here to put down. "Unam Sanctam Eccleſiam Catholicam, & ipſam Apoſtolicam, urgente fide, credere cogimur & tenere. Nóſq; hanc firmiter credimus, & ſimpliciter confitemur: extra quam, nec Salus eſt, nec remiſſio Peccatorum.——Igitur Eccleſiæ unius & unica; unum Corpus, unum Caput; non duo Capita, quaſi Monſtrum; Chriſtus videlicet, et Chriſti Vicarius Petrus, Petriq; ſucceſſor——Sive, ergo, Græci ſive alij ſe dicant Petro ejúſq; Succeſſoribus non eſſe commiſſos, fateantur neceſſe, ſe de Ovibus Chriſti non eſſe, dicente Domino in Johanne, Unum Ovile, et Unicum eſſe Paſtorem. In hac ejúſq; poteſtate duos eſſe Gladios, Spiritualem videlicet & Temporalem, Evangelicis dictis inſtruimur. Nam dicentibus Apoſtolis, Ecce Gladij duo hìc (in Eccleſiæ ſcilicet cum Apoſtoli loquerentur) non reſpondit Dominus nimis eſſe, ſed Satis.—— Uterque ergo eſt in poteſtate Eccleſiæ, Spiritualis ſcilicet Gladius, & Materialis; ſed is quidem pro Eccleſia; ille verò ab Eccleſia exercendus. Ille Sacerdotis; is manu Regum & Militum; ſed ad nutum & patientiam Sacerdotis. Oportet autem Gladium eſſe ſub Gladio, et Temporalem auctoritatem Spirituali ſubjici poteſtati.——Spiritualem autem & Dignitate & Nobilitate terrenam quamlibet precellere poteſtatem, oportet tanto clariùs nos fateri, quantò Spiritualia Temporalia antecellunt.——Nam Veritate teſtante, Spiritualis poteſtas Terrenam poteſtatem inſtituere habet, et Judicare ſi bona non fuerit.——Ergo, ſi deviat Terrena poteſtas, judicabitur a poteſtate Spirituali: ſed ſi deviat Spiritualis minor, a ſuo Superiori: ſi verò Suprema, a ſolo Deo, non ab Homine, poterit judicari.——Porro, ſubeſſe Romano Pontifici omnem humanam creaturam declaramus, definimus, & pronunciamus omnino eſſe, de neceſſitate Salutis."

This Tract is omitted by John Bale, & John Pits.

2. Sermo Domini Archiepiſcopi Armacani, Anglicè. 6.

This Tranſlation is alſo omitted by Bale & Pits (as all Treviſa's works are by John Leland & Dr. Cave) but the Latin Original is publiſhed by Dr. Browne in his Appendix to the Faſciculus Rerum expetendarum & fugiendarum, at pag. 466. where it beareth this following Title, "Defenſorium Cvratorvm contra eos qui privilegiatos ſe dicunt: Propoſitio Richardi [Filij Radulfi, ſive Fitz-Rauf.] Archiepiſcopi Armachani Primatis Hiberniæ, facta in Conſiſtorio coram Domino Papa, & Dominis Cardinalibus ac Prælatis, ad utilitatem Cleri & populi Chriſtiani, ſuper materia Mendicitatis & Privilegiorum, contra Fratres de Ordinibus mendicantium quibuſcunque; apud Avinionem octava die Menſis Novembris A. D. 1357.

In this learned Tract, it appeareth that during the Times of Popery, there were more Students in Oxford, than at this day; for ſaith he, fol. 11. b. "So þat zet in my tyme in þe vniverſitie of Oxenford were þritty þouſand Scolers at ones: & now beþ vnneþe ſixe þouſand:" but good Books were ſcarcer there, proportionably, than now; for it followeth preſently thus, "for þeſe Orders of Beggers, for endeleſs wynnynges þat þei geteþ by beggyng of þe forſeide Pryvyleges of Schriftes & Sepul-

Num. 1900.

tures & opere, þei beþ now so multiplyed in Coventes & in Persons, þat many men tellip þat in general Studies, unneþe is y-founde to fillyng a profitable booke of þe faculte of Art, of Dyvynyte, of Lawe-Canon, of Phisik, oþer of Lawe-Civil, but alle bookes beþ y-bouzt of Freres; so þat in euerech Couent of Freres is a noble Librarie & a grete: and so þat euerech Frere þat hath State in Scole, siche as þei beþ now, hath an huge Librarye. And also y sent my Sugettes to Scóle þre oþer foure persons: and hit is seid me þat some of them beþ come home azen, for þei myst nougzt finde to selle oon gode Bible, noþer oþere couenable bookes." Here (by the way) I like the English Translation General Studies (which signifieth as much as Universities) much better than the Latin Text, as given us by Dr. Browne, or as cited from the Lambeth Manuscript by Mr. Henry Wharton, in his Auctarium, or Appendix to Arch-Bishop Ushers Historia Dogmatica de Script. & Sacr. Vern. page. 429. in both which, the words are Studijs communibus.

3. "Þe booke of Methodij þe Bischop of þe chirche of Paterenis & Martir of Crist; which he chargide to translate of Hebrue & Greck speeche into Latyn: þat is, of þe bygynning of þe world & the Rewmes bitwixe, of Folkis, & þe ende of worldes; which þe noble man Seynt Jerom in his werkis praysed." 21. b.

This Tract is likewise omitted by Bale (& Pits) of whom the former (to do him Justice) after splitting Trevisa's Translation of the Polycronicon into many pieces, concludeth thus, et alia plura fecit & transtulit. As to the Original; learned men generally deem it supposititious; it being idle enough, and making mention of the great Conquests & Cruelties of the Sarazens, who brake not forth from Arabia until many Centuries after the decease of Methodius Patarensis.

Then follow,

4. An Alphabetical Table or Index to Ranulph Higdens Polychronicon. 24.

NB. Some of the Principal Letters are cut out, by Children, as may be supposed.

5. Another Alphabetical Table to the same Book, in English. 32. b.

6. John Trevisa's Dialogue with his Lord, touching the utility of Translations in General, & of the Translation of Polychronicon into English in particular. 42.

In one place of it (which escaped Dr. Hickes; but is cited, in Latin, by Mr. Wharton in his Auctarium, or Appendix abovementioned. pag. 439.) the Lord argueth thus, "It is wonder þat þou makest so feble arguments, & hast y go so longe to scole; Aristotils bokes & oþere bokes also of Logike & of Philosophy were translated out of Grue into Latyn. Also atte praying of Kyng Charles, Johan Scot translated Denys bookes out of Grue into Latyn; & þan, out of Latyn into Frensche; þan what hath Englisch y-trespaced þat hit myzt not be translated into Englisch? Also King Alurede þat founded þe Universitie of Oxenford, translated þe best Lawes into Englisch tonge; and a grete del of þe Sauter out of Latyn into Englische; and made Wirefrith Bischop of Wircetre translate Seynt Gregories bokes of Dialoges out of Latyn into Saxon. Also Cedmon of Whiteby was enspired of þe holy Gost, & made wonder poisyes an Englisch, neiz of al þe Storyes of Holy writ. Also þe Holy man Beda translated Seynt Jones Gospel out of Latyn into Englisch. Also þou wost whare þe Apocalips is y-write in þe Walles & Roof of a Chapel, boþe in Latyn & in Frensche."——

This Dialogue which taketh up no more than three pages & Six Lines, is one of the Books ascribed to our Trevisa by Bale [Upon occasion of the word Grue, twice above-written, and signifying the Greek Language [& Grues & Grees signify the Greek People] I call to mind, that in Benedictus Petroburgensis, & in his Deflorator Roger Hovedene, the Greeks or that Part of the People of a Region who followed the Greek Worship are divers times called Gryfones; which seemeth to have given occasion to the formation of the former word. And I leave it to the Heralds to determine, whether-their beloved Monster the Gryphon, were not first born by such of the Latins, who in their Sauntering towards the Holy Land, had occasionally exerted their Manhood upon those of the Greek Religion]

Num. 1900.

But to return; the next thing that appeareth, is,

7. Trevisa's Epistle to his Lord Berkeley; testifying his willingness to enter upon the Translation of the following Work, & his Resolution to go through with the same. 43. b.

8. John Trevisa's Translation of Ranulf Higden's Polychronicon, in 7 Books. 44.

This Translation endeth in the year of our Lord 1357; and hath none of the Continuations mentioned by Bale & others.

I have already (in this Volume) observed that Ranulf was not the original Author of the Polychronicon, but an errant Plagiary; and will not here repeat that matter. But it may not be amiss to put down what Mr. Wharton saith of Trevisa, & of this Performance, in pagg. 48 & 49 of his Appendix to Dr. Caves Historia Litteraria. "Ranulphi Polychronicon, saith he, jussu nobilis viri Thomæ de Barkeley Anglice vertit Joannes de Trevisa, Sacerdos Cornubiensis, ac Vicarius de Barkelij; qui et multis alijs Scriptis, imprimis vero integrâ utriusq; Testamenti versione Anglicâ, inclaruit. Polychronici Versione ipse nonnulla, apposita tamen semper distinctionis notâ de suo intexuit, præsertim contra Monastici Ordinis petulantiam ac Superstitiones, quas sæpius exagitare solet. Versionem ad finem perduxit, uti ex nota calci adnexa patet, anno 1387. die 8vo Aprilis: adeo ut palum lapsus sit seu incuria seu errato Typographico Caxtonus; qui in fine Versionis a se typis impressæ, adnotavit eam finitam esse anno 1357. Illam enim immutato paululum Anglicæ linguæ Archaismo, et a seipso ad annum usq; 1460. Edwardi IV. Regis primum continuatam, typis impressam evulgavit Londini 1482. Gulielmus Caxtonus, qui sub Edwardo Rege dicto claruit, primusq; omnium artem typographicam Angliæ intulit. Ipsamet autem Johannis de Trevisâ versio, a Caxtono nondum perpolita, extat MS. in instructissima Rev. viri Thomæ Tenisoni Theologi nostratis doctissimi, Bibliotheca."

The abovementioned Note at the end of this Translation, hath created yet more trouble to learned men, as may partly appear by the following Citations. "Ad petitionem Domini sui Thomæ de Barkeley (saith the learned Primate Usher, Hist. Dogm. pag. 157.) in Anglicanum idioma transtulit totum Bibliorum opus, utrumq; scilicet Testamentum; præfatione præfixa, cujus initium 'Ego Johannes Trevisa Sacerdos,' &c. ut habet Balæus, Centur. 7. Cap. 18. ubi etiam notat eum Polychronicon continuasse ab anno a Christi Incarnatione 1342. usq; ad annum ejusdem 1397. in quo, inquit, ipsemet Trevisa claruit sub Richardo II. Anglorum Rege. Verum ipse in fine Translationis Polychronici, tempus quo scripsit, his verbis proponit, Versio ista finita est, die Jovis (lege potius die Martis) die 18 Aprilis A. D. 1357. anno autem 35 Patroni mei Thomæ Domini de Barkeley, qui me Versionem istam adornare fecit; atq; anno 31 Regni Regis Edwardi post Conquestum Angliæ III. Diem Martis pro die Jovis ideo legendum censui, quod se Trevisa Versionem feria 5ta Paschalis Hebdomadis finivisse ibidem asserat. Anno autem 1357, dies 18 Aprilis in feriam 3 Paschalem incidit. Anno quidem 1397. dies 18 Aprilis est feria 5. sed incidit is in annum 20 Richardi II. In MS. Codice, qui penes M. Fosterum Collegij D. Johannis Cantabr. habetur, sic lego: die Jovis Aprilis 8vo anno 1387. decimo Richardi II. In Cod. MS. Cottoniano, die Jovis, Aprilis 18. anno 1387. duodecimo Richardi II."

To the above-written paſſage of Arch-biſhop Uſher, Mr. Wharton maketh the following Anſwer, Auctar. pag. 439. "Treviſæ ætatem Cl. Uſſerius a Caxtono deceptus male poſuit. Quæ enim ex fine Tranſlationis Polychronici citat, a Caxtono foede corrupta ſunt. Námq; is Verſionem paſſim emendare, et pro lubitu mutare in ſe recepit; quod in Præfatione Editionis ſuæ fatetur. Cum itaq; Hiſtoria Polychronici anno 1357. deſierit; ille Verſionem iſto anno finitam eſſe, aut imprudens credidit, aut forſan etiam ſciens ſubſtituit. Propiùs ad veritatem accedunt bini Codices MSS. ab Uſſerio memorati, alter D. Foſteri, alter Cottonianus; quorum ille notat Verſionem finitam eſſe die Jovis, Aprilis, † octavo, anno 1387. decimo Richardi II. Iſte autem, die Jovis, Aprilis 18. anno duodecimo Richardi II. Uterque vero lapſus eſt. Neque enim (in priore calculo) Aprilis 18 anno 1387. in diem Jovis incidit, ſed in diem Lunæ: nec (in poſteriore) annus 1387. incidit in duodecimum Richardi II. annum, ſed in ‡ viceſimum. Utrique igitur ſcrupulo feliciter ſatisfacit, et finitæ Verſionis tempus recte definit Codex MS. qui in inſtructiſſima cl. Teniſoni Bibliotheca habetur, his verbis. Iſta Tranſlatio finita eſt die Jovis, decimo octavo Aprilis die, A.D. 1387. decimo Richardi II. poſt Conqueſtum anno; anno autem triceſimo quinto ætatis Patroni mei Domini Thomæ Baronis de Berkely, qui me Tranſlationem iſtam aggredi fecit. Craſſiùs adhuc hallucinatur Seldenus (in fine præfat. ad X Scriptores Angl.) qui Treviſam Higdeni Polychronicon convertiſſe, et ad initia Edwardi I.‖ annum ſc. 1460. continuaſſe dicit. Qui Verſionem enim Polychronici primus edidit Caxtonus, Continuationem ejus ab anno 1357. ad 1460. non a Treviſa, ſed a ſemet ipſo conſcriptam fuiſſe diſertis verbis affirmat."

† If the MS. Copie of Treviſa's Tranſlation now in the Library of St. Johns College in Cambridge, be that which formerly belonged to Mr. Forſter (as in probability it may) the date thereof is right enough; for it expreſly ſaith eyghteuthe; as appeareth by the ſame ſent by Mr. Baker to Dr. Hickes, with a remarkable paſſage from the ſame book; which, although it was before printed both by Caxton, and by Wynkyn de Worde, the Doctor reprinted in the general Preface to his Theſaurus, at pag. 17.

I have only to add, concerning the date, that in the preſent Copie of my Lords now before me; and in another now in the poſſeſſion of my learned Friend Mr. Anſtis, I find plainly the xviii day of Auezyl, and the tenỳe year, about which ſo much diſpute hath been made; and I doubt not but the ſame true reading may be found in other Copies. As to the Bible's being wholly tranſlated by our Author Treviſa; I percieve it mentioned by Caxton; from him by Bale & Pits, who give the beginning of the Preface thereunto; from Bale, Primate Uſher takes the notion; and at length Mr. Wharton (App. ad Cav. Hiſt. Litt. pag. 49.) believes it may be ſtill extant: it relating not to the book in hand, I ſhall ſay no more but this; I ſhall be very glad to ſee one of them.

A paper-Book in fol. (given by the Hon. Coll. Henry Worſeley, at this time His Majeſty's Envoy extraordinary to the King of Portugal) being a ſecond tome belonging to a former, deſigned to be a complete Regiſter of the ſeverall Acts, Negotiations, & Letters relating to Sir Thomas Roes Ambaſſage in Germany, for bringing about the Reſtoration of the Palatine-Family. A good part of it ſeemeth to have been written by Sr. Thomas Roes own Hand; the reſt, by his Secretary or Amanuenſis. This Second Tome may be conſidered in the manner following, Firſt, Minutes or Draughts of Letters to diuers Kings & Princes, drawne vp by his Majeſties Order, to be ſent to Oxford, Auguſt 1643.

NB. Thoſe that follow in this Diviſion, are all in the Name of K. Charles I.

1. To the Duke of Brunſwick & Lunenburgh. 1. b.

Thanking them for the Affection they had ſhewn to the Queen of Bohemia His Siſter, Her Son the Prince Palatine & his Familie, at the late Diet at Ratiſbon; whoſe Intereſts His Majeſty is ſtill reſolved to purſue at the general Treaties deſigned to be held at Munſter and Oſnabrug; eſpecially, ſince at the Aſſembly in Francfort the German Princes had declared the Exile & Oppreſſion of his Nephew, an Elector & principal Member of the Empire, to be a cheife impediment of the interne Peace: and particularly, ſince the Crownes of France & Sueden would take that juſt Cauſe into their Protection. He deſireth them, therefore, to join with thoſe other Princes & States who are mediators, or ſhall be intereſſed in that Treatye, for the generall pacification, inſiſting upon the Vindication of their fundamentall Lawes & Liberties, and a general Amneſtie to the yeare 1618. becauſe both the being of the Proteſtant Religion, & all the Lybertye & Pruiledges of the German Princes, will depend vpon the Concluſion of this Treatye. For, as this ſhall leaue them, either ſecured, or oppreſſed, or over-balanced by the inequalitye of the Electorall Colledge, many future Ages are like to find them.

2. A Note, ſhewing that the ſame in Subſtance was to be ſent to the Landgrave & Landgravine of Heſſen, to whome the Title of Illuſtriſſima Celſitudo is to be given, in like manner as to the Dukes of Brunſwick. ibid.

3. To the French King. 2.

Deſiring that he would give ſuch Commands & Inſtructions to His Ambaſſadors at the approaching Treaty of Munſter, as that the exiled Palatine Family may be comprehended therein, as principal Members of the Empire; whoſe oppreſſion hath beene an abſolute impediment of the Peace; and without which, nothing can be ſettled ſecure & ſtable. 2.

4. To the Queene Regent of France. ibid.

Deſiring that through Her Protection, & Authority with the King Her Son, the Condition of his Siſter the Queen of Bohemia, & the Rights & entyre Reſtitution of the Princes her innocent Children, may be comprehended in the generall intended Pacification of the Empire, without which, no peace can be ſecure, while one of the principall Members ſhall be excluded from that generall benefitt, whoſe cauſe he can never in Honour, nor for the nearnes of bloud, abandon. In which worke alſo, he is aſſured, the Queene of Suede will concurre & co-operate. ibid.

5. To the Duke of Orleans. 2. b.

Invoking both the Aſſiſtance of his Authoritye & Wiſedome, that in the generall intended Treatyes for the Pacification of the Empire, the reſtitution of the Palatine Family may be comprehended, as eſſential to the Peace. Which can never be ſecured, but by reſettling the principall Members in their antient Right & Inheritances. That, in this conjuncture he ſhall haue Oportunitye to oblige two of the firmeſt Pillars of the German Lybertye, the Illuſtrious Houſes, Palatin & Lorreyne; whoſe poſteritie will owe this benefitt to the Crowne of France, that they may be able to ſerve it, as bulwarkes againſt any Enemye.

6. To the Queene of Suede. ibid.

Thanking Her for acquainting His Nephew the Prince Elector Palatine in her late Letters, that ſhe had reſolved, in the preſent Conjuncture of the deſigned Treatye of Pacification, to embrace his Cauſe, as an impediment of that conſequence, that no Peace can be ſecure with the Oppreſſion & Excluſion of one of the principall Pillars & Members of the Empire; and to that end, had procured from the Emperor, a Safe-Conduct for him or his Deputies, to appeare & plead his owne Rights. Shewing, that both the well-being, & being of the Proteſtant Religion, doth abſolutely depend upon reſettling the ballance of the Electoral Colledge, and the Preſeruation of thoſe Princes who will be vnited by the Common band of the ſincere worſhip of God. His Majeſty declareth his Opinion, that She will not find the Emperor very averſe; he having taſted the bitternes of the Bavarian Friendſhip; and is moſt aſſured that She ſhall meete the Cooperations of the Crowne of France, of His Unkle the King of Denmarke, and of all the Princes & States of Germany, that take any care of their owne Safetye & the Common Libertie.

7. To the King of Denmarke. 3.

Declaring, that ſince neither the Juſtice of the Prince Elector Palatines Cauſe, his own longe abuſed Patience, nor the Interceſſion of ſo many Kings & Princes, had brought forth Effects anſwerable to his deſires & endeavors for the Common Peace; & eſpecially ſince by the Reſolutions of the Duke of Bavaria, it doth appeare, that there is left no Hope, that he will by any private Treaties or Mediations, make any Reſtitution acceptable, neither of the Dignitie nor Lands by him vſurped: His Majeſty had thought it fit to lay hold vpon the opportunitie of the generall Treaties at Munſter & Oſnabrug, principally deſſigned for the reſettling & pacification of the Empire. In which, His Daniſh Majeſty being the cheife Meditator, He fervently recommendeth the Cauſe of the Palatine-Family to his protection, that it may there be received as a principal Impediment of the deſired Peace; which can neuer be ſecured with the Excluſion and oppreſſion of the firſt Elector, as long as there ſhall liue any of that Illuſtrious Famely, that haue either freinds or Courage.

8. To the Elector of Saxe. 3. b.
9. To the Elector of Brandeburgh. ibid.
10. To the Elector of Mentz. 4.
11. To the Elector of Collen. 4. 5.

The purport of all theſe Letters is the ſame; vizt. to exhort them to purſue the Intereſts of the Palatine Family at the approaching Treaties of Munſter & Oſnabrug; which they would find to be countenanced by the Crowns of France, Denmark, & Sueden.

There are Notes concerning the Style to be uſed to the Electors in writing; namely, that to the Secular Electors, Sereniſſima Celſitudo muſt be given in the concluſion; as alſo in the ſame manner to the Eccleſiaſtical Electors, who muſt be complimented with Rever^ma^. Celſitudo at the beginning? & Reu^ma^. Dignitas toward the middle.

Now followeth, the Second Tome, or Continuation of Acts, Negotiations, & Letters, of my (i. e. Sir Thomas Roe's) Ambaſſage to the Emperour, Electorall Diet, Princes, & States of Germany, viz.

12. Relation of a Conference betweene the Mediatours & me; $\frac{17}{27}$ March 1641-2. 5.

Theſe Mediators were the Ambaſſadors of the King of Denmark & of the Elector of Mentz, who ſaid they came to Sir Thomas with a Meſſage from the Emperors Commiſſioners at the Treaty, the effect of which was, that Sir Thomas ſhould ſend away a Poſt to procure from His Majeſty K. Charles I. two things; firſt, an actual Ratification of what ſhould be concluded in the Treatye, ſo that the Execution on our part might follow immediately without more Ceremonye; for that they would actually and inſtantly reſtore & give poſſeſſion to the Prince Elector-Palatin of whatſoever ſhould be agreed vpon. Secondly, that His Majeſty would procure a Declaration from His Parliament, that they would be obliged to aſſiſt him for the performance of his part; to the end, that they might be aſſured both from the King & Kingdome. Both theſe propoſals were utterly reiected, as highly unſeaſonable & affronting.

Then follow Draughts of Sir Thomas Roe's Letters.

13. To Sir Arthur Hopton, March 19. 1641-2. 7.

Concerning the King of Spain's Pleni-potence or full-power (of which there was much talk at the Conference above-mentioned) which Sir Thomas objected againſt, as invalid in reſpect of Language, Form & Subſtance. That the Imperialiſts are grown weak, & by theſe little & oblique Arts ſeek to gain time.

Another Letter of the ſame Date, was ſent to Sir Henry de Vic.

14. To Mr. Curtius, 19 March 1641-2. 7. b.

About the Spaniſh Pleni-potence above mentioned; with remarks upon the Induſtry of the Hollanders, who during other mens Troubles, ſeek their own Opportunities; as if there were no day of reckoning. While Spayne & Portugall contend, they catch the Bone; while we wrangle, they ſnatch up the Stakes.

15. To the Duke of Wirttemberg, in French. 21 March, 1641-2. 8.

That now having attended, as Ambaſſador from our King to the Emperor & Imperial Diet, five Months, in Order to procure Reſtitution to all Princes who had been oppreſſed by the Emperor (among whome His Highneſs was one) he had not been able to effect any thing of that which was chiefly deſired; ſince the Amneſty which was coming out, was excluſive of the much-wronged Palatine-Houſe, whoſe Cauſe our King would never abandon.

16. To the Earle of Arundell. 26 March 1641-2. 8. b.
